Campaign To Remove Jim Crow Highlight Of Omega Conclave

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—The Omega Psi Phi Fraternity last week challenged its membership to a relentless campaign for the removal of all forms of discrimination, on account of race, from every facet of American life.

In a series of resolutions adopted at the final session of the 44th annual Grand Conclave held here at the Kiel Auditorium, the group reaffirmed its faith in the decisions of the U. S. Supreme Court in reference to segregation in public facilities and services and the American judicial system, commended President Eisenhower for his action in Little Rock school crisis and deplored the ouging of lawful court orders by high public officials.

Other resolutions called for continued support of the program of the NAACP, federal and state legislation for more financial support to public education and for the protection of the right to use the ballot by all citizens. Its members were also urged to attack, with vigor, continued segregation in public transportation, continued discrimination in housing and employment and urged full support for the program of the National Urban League.

More than 500 delegates, representing all chapters of the fraternity, located in every section of the country, attended the four-day meet, December 27-30, hosted by the local Upsilon Omega Chapter. Mrs. Daisy Bates, civil rights leader, who spearheaded the fight leading to the admission of nine Negroes in Little Rock, Arkansas, was presented the "Citizen of the Year Award" and Oliver W. Hill, Richmond, Va., attorney and former city councilman, who has led the attack against racial discrimination in his state, was presented the "Omega Man of the Year Award".

Handsome plaques were presented them at the annual Founders Banquet held in the swank main ballroom of the Hotel Kingsway, here.

The fifth annual National Talent Hunt Demonstration, featuring young musicians who had won out in district eliminations held about the country was a feature of the conclave.

Among the guest participants was Barbara Louise Smith, Pittsburg, Texas, a senior student in voice at the University of Texas. Miss Smith received national note last spring when the leading role Cook pork at low temperatures. Most North Carolina soils need additional lime.

The average date for the last freeze in the spring is about April 7 and the first freeze in the fall comes about October 25.

Dr. Mordecai Johnson Delivers Address In Honor Of Late Prexy

GREENSBORO — A single-minded, devoted educational leader and statesman, motivated by love, was the description given of the late Dr. David D. Jones by Dr. Mordecai Johnson, president of Howard University, Washington, D. C. as he delivered the address of remembrance at services recently at Bennett College.

Dr. Johnson, long-time friend and associate of the late Bennett president (1926-1955), said that Dr. Jones, in assuming the presidency of Bennett, faced a "staggering task" in transforming it from a "system of education embracing elementary, high school and college work" into a woman's college.

But he knew that while he had the aid of a dedicated faculty and a small band of Christian women, he also had the help of God. And by the exercise of a group of qualities extraordinary to find in any one man, he built it into the first fully accredited college for Negro women ever to come into existence in the United States.

"The ignition of his spirit set others on fire, so that by the time he died, he had increased the financial resources of the college ten-fold, and the humblest teacher had a salary that was equal to that at which he began."

Dr. Jones was described as a man who sought "not only the intelligent and the good, but the beautiful" and whose handling of money was done with "scrupulous honor and integrity."

"He did everything in his power to make the Bennett students love one another and to love the homes from which they came."

Textile plants are expected to use around 1-2 million bales of cotton in 1958.

North Carolina's beef industry is now estimated at 30 million dollars a year.
