CP & L Cites Growth Of State Industry

Carolina Power & Light Company last week cited record-breaking North Carolina growth to show that its power rates have not retarded industrial development, as was charged by a group of industrial customers.

The company pointed out that it is subject to regulation by the Commission, and that the rates were reviewed and approved by the Commission. It asked the Commission to dismiss the complaint and rate that its industrial rates are "just and reasonable."

Canada Now Seeking West Indians' Trade

LONDON, England — (AP) — Canada is making plans to hold two trade fairs in the W. Indies next year. The Canadian Trade and Commerce Minister, Mr. Gordon Church, has announced that his department is canvassing Canadian firms to ascertain the support that private business would give to them.

It is proposed that the fairs should be held at Port-of-Spain, Trinidad and in Kingston, Jamaica, early in 1959. Planning for the fairs requires that the overall costs be shared between the private exhibitors and the Government.

The two fairs, regarded as one single project, would apply trade promotion techniques through trade exhibits in two traditional export markets in which no annual international trade fairs take place. Besides providing an opportunity for Canadian exporters to exhibit their goods in Trinidad and Jamaica, it is expected that the fairs will attract Canadian service organizations and other institutions who will want to participate in order to tell the story of their West Indies operations to the business community and the public of the islands.

It is also hoped that the fairs will increase the interest of W. Indian producers in the Canadian market and thus help to bring about a larger exchange of goods between the two areas.

Early in 1959 is considered an ideal time for exhibitions of this kind because by then the Federation of the W. Indies will have become well established.

Hampton Instructor In City:

S. C. McGee Comments On Liberia's B. T. Washington Technical School

BY STAFF WRITER

Have you ever heard of the Booker T. Washington Technical and Trade School in Kakata, Liberia? The chances are that unless you are a relative or friend of some of the American personnel connected with this school, you know nothing of its existence.

An opportunity to learn something about this school and the work it is doing presented itself by the visit of S. C. McGee, husband of Dr. Nancy Bullock McGee, to Raleigh. Mr. McGee was in Raleigh to attend the funeral of Mrs. O. S. Bullock, mother of Dr. McGee.

Mr. McGee, a native of West Virginia, and an instructor of plumbing and heating at Hampton Institute for the past 15 years, was "loaned" to the International Cooperative Administration of the United States Department to help establish and promote technical, agricultural and crafts training in the Liberian Republic.

The school that Mr. McGee helped to establish is located in the interior of Liberia about 51 miles from the capital city of Monrovia. It was established through a grant of 2 million dollars from the American government.

This school now has an enrollment of several hundred African students ranging in ages from 14 to 35 years. The school offers 23 different subjects in crafts and skills in addition to a 4-year course in agriculture and home economics.

Mr. McGee said that the thing that impressed him most was the thorough training given these students in the basic subjects of reading, writing, and arithmetic by denominational mission schools scattered throughout Liberia.

Mr. McGee stated that these mission schools are doing a much better job in preparing these students for high schools and colleges than our American schools. Because of this superior elementary training, these students make steady progress in the courses in which they are enrolled. A proof of this is found in the fact that two of the graduates of the Booker T. Washington School are now doing satisfactory undergraduate work at A. and T. College in Greensboro.

Mr. McGee went to Liberia in October, 1955, and returned to this country and his post at Hampton in December, 1957. While there he was visited by his wife, Dr. McGee, and together they visited the Gold Coast Republic of Ghana.

Agriculture Leaders Hold 5-Day Meeting At A & T

GREENSBORO — Well educated Negroes are not replacing themselves in the American population picture an audience at A&T College was told last week.

The speaker was Calvin L. Beale, analytical statistician, Agriculture Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., who delivered a main address at the opening session of the International Conference for Supervisors and Teacher Trainers in Agricultural Education being held at the college, February 17-21.

Vocational Agriculture leaders from 16 southern states attended the five-day meet conducted along the theme, "Organizing and Conducting Instruction for Part-Time Farmers."

Beale said that while the birth rate average for well educated Negro couples had increased substantially since 1940, the average has not yet reached two-children per family. He added, "the birth rate among those higher educated families is increasing at a higher rate than those of lower educated groups."

The conference was supervised by W. N. Eam, program specialist, Office of Education, U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Washington, D. C. W. T. Johnson, assistant State Supervisor of Vocational Agriculture, with headquarters at A&T College, was in charge of local arrangements.

Speaking from the subject, "Population Trends and Their Implications for Vocational Agriculture,"

New Treatment For Infected Wounds Found By Vets' Body

A new treatment that produces better healing of infected wounds was reported by Veterans Administration recently.

Surgeons at the Fort Howard Md. CA Hospital have found that application of a substance from the tropical fruit, the Carica papaya, with other chemicals gives a high rate of healing in infected surface wounds.

Dr. Joseph M. Miller of the Fort Howard hospital said an ointment containing a combination of papain, which is obtained from the papaya, urea, and the water-soluble derivatives of chlorophyll produced excellent results, in 100 of 108 infected wounds treated, good in one, and poor in five.

In the five patients with wounds which failed to heal, gangrene was present and the blood supply to the infected areas was extremely poor, Dr. Miller said. However, he added good results were obtained in four patients in whom gangrene was present.

The new ointment, which was designed for the treatment of infected surface wound, should not be used for the treatment of lesions of cavities of the body unless they communicate with the surface of the body. VA said.

Dr. Miller and his associates, Dr. George C. Godfrey, Dr. Milton Ginsberg, and Dr. Constantine J. Papastrat have found that the papain ointment works equally well in all infections which are commonly encountered in surgical practice.

They said the type of bacteria present did not seem to influence the results, and the ointment did not produce toxic reactions.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain, Stops Itching as it Shrinks Hemorrhoids

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain — without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place. And most amazing of all — this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) — the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H suppositories or Preparation H ointment, with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug counters. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.
