

Champion Hog Raising Youth Stands Near Top Of Two Million Observing National 4-H Wk.

MARION, S. C. — (AP) — Weston Legett, Jr., champion North Carolina 4-H hog raiser of South Carolina, who marketed 190 head of hogs at yearling stands near the top of a 2,200,000 white and colored club hogs who are observing National 4-H Club Week, March 1-5.

Twenty-year-old Weston has taken over his family's 64 acre farm near Marion, S. C., and made it into a paying enterprise by applying the improved farming methods he has learned during 10 years of 4-H Club work.

Starting out with one gilt as a 4-H project several years ago, Weston now has 10 Duroc sows. Last year they farrowed a total of 153 pigs. He kept three for home use and sold the rest.

County Agent C. A. Brown points out that buyers are for Weston's hogs because they are of the meat type and are free of parasites. This is true, he says, because the youth breeds for leaner hogs, sometimes crossing his Duroc sows with Berkshire and Landrace hogs. They are usually free of parasites, he explains, because they are raised in improved pastures.

Weston grazes his hogs in 10 acres of soy and millet. He says this saves him up to 40 percent on concentrates, consisting mainly of fish-meal or tankage which is added to his own corn and other grains at the mill where he has them ground. His hogs are finished on eight acres of corn interplanted with soybeans. This feeding program puts 200 to 220 pounds on his hogs within five months.

In addition to hogs and grain, Weston also raises cotton and tobacco. By following improved practices, he has sharply increased his yields of these. Weston became interested in farming and 4-H work several years ago when his parents bought a used tractor. By the time he was 12, he was a good tractor driver. Three years ago, he was chosen county champion in tractor driving and awarded the state championship.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

It does not appear that Rep. Emmanuel Celler, N. Y., is going to let up on his drive on certain practices of big networks.

And both the networks, and the Federal Communications Commission seem intent at present

In doing their level best to promote Congressional action on the basis that the present operations of networks amounts to a virtual monopoly, which in turn, suggests the effective use of television as an advertising medium all but a few huge concerns.

Many network TV stations are now using their air time for commercials to combat the spread of the so-called "Pay-TV." Some of the messages are pretty forceful, and in fact, border pretty much on the use of misleading statements of the type which the FCC cracks down on if some little local advertiser uses such tactics.

There is a strong belief on the part of some substantial people that if people are given the opportunity to pay for the type of programs they want, they will subscribe to pay TV. Whether or not people actually will support this is a matter for conjecture, but then neither did Henry Ford have any guarantee when he started up business that people would buy automobiles, either.

In some limited areas, after a great deal of hassling, there is some experimental pay TV going on. It is too early to predict future of this type of enterprise.

But behind the scenes this fight over pay TV takes on some very ugly aspects. The big networks, with their virtual monopoly of TV entertainment today formed not only from their option on the choice lines, but also from their ownership of big shows, are scared that this monopoly can be broken by pay TV.

There is no assurance just how pay TV station operations would end up. Although at the start, there has been no commercials, with subscribers paying a nominally high service charge, there is no guarantee with experience pay TV stations might accept a few commercials, and make lower rates to subscribers.

This is what the networks are afraid of, hence the clamor about keeping the air free, et al and et al. At times it appears that free entertainment is a basic principle in the U. S. Constitution.

Yet, there is a big factor overlooked here. Both newspapers and magazines accept advertising. In addition, both charge readers for his subscription.

Thus, it is hard to see where there is any essential difference in entertainment provided by Mickey Mouse in a newspaper comic section, or Mickey Mouse on TV, or any reason why in one form the viewer has a sacred right to have it for free.

And there is still a further fear on the part of the networks, and this has to do with their solicitation of advertisers in competition with newspapers and other long-established mediums.

With TV rates continually going higher and higher, and with stations running more and more commercials together, advertisers are getting more and more restless over the increasing lack of impact, and are looking more and more toward newspapers as the favored advertising medium. Hence attempt to fool public into perpetuating a monopoly.

Yes, We All Talk

AMENDING BY ADDITION

To amend a motion by addition simply means that words are added or inserted in the original main motion. For example, let us suppose that the main motion before the house is as follows:

"I move that we give an annual picnic."

During the discussion, it may come to the attention of the group that it might be advisable to add the time and place. Hence a member may propose the following amendment:

"I move that we amend the motion by adding after the word 'picnic' the words on the second Friday in August at Oak Park."

After getting a second, the chairman might say: "You have heard the amendment. Is there any discussion?" Following the discussion period, the members will proceed to vote on the proposed amendment.

If the amendment is passed, then the original main motion as amended will read: "I move that we give an annual picnic on the second Friday in August at Oak Park."

Next, the club must vote upon the motion as amended.

Raleigh Area Holding Own In Employment For 2 Mos.

The Raleigh area is holding its own with regard to the number of people placed in employment during the first two months of 1958 in comparison with January and February 1957 in spite of the present recession, states Manager Leo Craven. A total of 690 persons were placed in gainful employment during this months period including 526 women and 63 veterans.

This was 45 more than were placed in November and December 1957 and 25 more than were placed in the first two months of 1957. The Raleigh area is composed of Wake, Franklin and Johnston Counties.

Applications from women tripled those for the immediate preceding two months period, while veteran applicants nearly doubled in number. The applicants in the active files increased approximately 1500 at the end of February 1958 over what they were December 31, 1957. They are 840 greater this year than at the same time in 1957. Women applicants are 400 greater this year than last February and veterans are up 150 over last year.

On January 9, 1958 there were 48 tests administered for the City

DOMESTIC WORK: Special emphasis is now being placed by the Divisional office in the recruitment of domestic orders from Raleigh housewives and workers to fill these orders. A woman interviewer has been added to the Divisional Office staff and her duties include the performance of this domestic work. Therefore, any homes in the Raleigh area who are needing domestic help of any type might profit by telephoning TE 4-1343.

Permanent pastures and alfalfa are long-lived crops and therefore do not have to be sown each year.

And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God... (Romans 8:28.)

It is wonderful to meet on memorable occasions that are all too infrequent, a person who truly loves God and obeys His commandments every hour of every day. Such a one radiates love and joy, peace and harmony, strength and goodness, and is really blessed and fulfilled. We can all be like that—why aren't we?
