E. Franklin Jackson, pastor, made the Parish Hall available to the Red Cross, Saturday morning.

The Rev. Jackson became alarmed at the situation when he found that the fire had destroyed all the clothing, food and in many instances all of the money that the members of the 30 families had and after being told that the Carver High School building would not be available after 4 P. Many members of the church have volunteered their services to aid in the disaster.

Rev. Jackson has made urgent appeals to the general public to aid the stricken people. He relates the fact that wearing apparel is sorely needed for children. He is asking that persons bring or send shoes and clothing for boys between the ages of 9 and 12. He is also asking that those who have such help and cannot deliver same to please call the church office and he will have them picked up. He is also aiding the Red Cross in finding places for the victims to live. The fire has put a tremendous burden on the Red Cross and Washington.

household equipment, but that the members lost more than $500.00 in money, due to the fact that the salary checks had been cashed and had been left in the house when the fire broke out.

State College Answers

QUESTION: What kind of lights can be used in poultry laying houses?

ANSWER: Use two 40 or 60 watt bulbs for each 400 square feet of floor space. Place the lights over the central part of the house, or over feed and water supply, so the birds will have enough light to find the feed and water. Hang them about six feet from the floor. Broad, shallow reflectors placed above each bulb will throw more light towards the floor and on the birds.

QUESTION: How does North Carolina rate in the production of annual lespedezas?

ANSWER: About one-half million acres are cut for hay each year—about one-half the total hay acreage harvested in the state. In addition to hay harvesting, North Carolina is one of the largest producers of seed. Annual lespedezas provide considerable supplementary grazing in the summer and fall, and are also used as soil conserving and soil improving crops.

QUESTION: Are there any general rules I can follow to help keep skippers out of my cured meat?

ANSWER: There are four that if followed would eliminate losses in most cases. They are: (1) Make sure there are no holes in sacks and wrapping paper used on the meat. (2) Use a fly-proof cloth sack with fine mesh. (3) Make sure meat storage rooms are rat and mouseproof, and (4) place meat in storage rooms so it is not crowded

Omega Psi Phi Fraternity Honors Dead At A Memorial

Members of the Omega Psi Phi Fraternity held memorial services for their dead Sunday at St. Monica's Episcopal Church, South Capitol and I. Streets, Father John Banks, pastor.

The fraternity was the guest of the church at its morning service and Father Albert Ferrell delivered the message. He warned the congregation of how sad it was when people did things for personal gain. He pointed out the mistake that James and John made when they asked Jesus if they might have the selfish privilege of sitting at his right and left. He said that the mistake that Jesus handed them was perhaps one of His sternest.

The services were concluded at Lincoln Cemetery where the brothers, with Father Ferrell leading the ceremony, laid a wreath on the grave of Mr. Ernest Just, one of the founders. Other brief ceremonies were held. It is an annual affair of the fraternity and was well attended.
