National New Farmers Of America Wk. Is Underway

GREENSBORO—National New Farmers of America Week is now in its fourth week, according to W. T. Johnson, State NFA Director and National Executive Secretary, with headquarters at A. and T. College, Greensboro. This year the week is scheduled for March 23 through April 6. One of the major purposes is to acquaint the public with activities of the organization with special emphasis on the relationship between the farmer and the city dweller. The late Booker T. Washington had a desire to keep alive the life and work of this great pioneer educator, Booker T. Washington, and his life working for the advancement of Vocational Education "learning by doing".

The more than 9,000 New Farmers of America in North Carolina join the more than 46,000 throughout the fifteen southern states in the celebration. These boys are being trained and urged to practice good citizenship. In North Carolina where there are 114 chapters, emphasis has been put on the importance of developing leadership within, through the cooperative effort of the chapter in putting over community programs and conducting leadership conferences for NFA officers.

These youth who are studying better agricultural practices, better rural and urban living in our high school vocational agriculture classes, will pay special tribute to the things Washington stood for—work and died for—the conservation of national resources, crop-rotation, thrift, the live at home program, better health, better relations between the races and the economic advancement of the Negro. Washington's life is an inspiration and challenge to these farm boys as they celebrate New Farmers of America Week.

Each chapter will have appropriate programs in keeping with the philosophy of New Farmers of America Week. In the days ahead rural youth will be asked to assume new responsibilities, undertake bigger tasks and to do more with less. He will be faced with the temptation of high city wages, modern inventions and conveniences. His thinking will contribute to shaping of world policies and determining the course of our nation. It offers a challenge to guide this great section of our population and to help youth more effectively make the needed adjustments. It is a great challenge for vocational education in the public schools, and other agencies and public institutions, who are interested in youth.

Will you, the public, join this group of rural youth in observance of NFA Week, encourage them to discharge certain civic duties, accept leadership responsibility and offer finer things of life, that will prepare them to live in this changing world.

One of the reasons the governor said he showed up at the sale was to dispel certain stories about him. Because he gained "notoriety" following the racial integration dispute at Central High School, some magazines and newspaper articles have pictured him as having horns, he said.

Active in civic and political affairs he served for two terms in the New Jersey State Legislature and as a delegate-at-large to the Republican National Convention.

National Medical Journal Now Celebrating 50th Yr.

The Journal of the National Medical Association, now in its 50th year, is the oldest Negro medical periodical and contains more than 50 per cent of what Negroes have written on medical subjects, exclusive of a few books. With an international circulation it enjoys exchange relationships with some 50 medical periodicals in various parts of the world.

Although it has been the chief medium of expression for Negro physicians on medical subjects, its pages have never been restricted on a racial basis, and has had many contributions from non-Negro authors, who have included some of the most distinguished names in modern medicine.

Dr. Walter Alexander Honored

The cover page of the second issue (March 1958) of the 50th volume carries a portrait of the late Dr. Walter G. Alexander who served for a number of years as general secretary of the National Medical Association (1921-1924) and as chairman of its Publication Committee (1941-1942). A past president of the NMA (1928), he practiced medicine in Oxnard, New Jersey, for 48 years.

Active in civic and political affairs he served for two terms in the New Jersey State Legislature and as a delegate-at-large to the Republican National Convention.

Faubus Vows To Continue J. C. Battle

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Saying that he is not a quitter, Gov. Orval Faubus of Arkansas has promised to keep fighting until "this integration issue is settled." He did not explain how he believes the issue could be settled.

The governor made the remark during an appearance at a Shetland pony sale here. He drew applause from a crowd of several hundred persons from a 12-state area.

One of the reasons the governor said he showed up at the sale was to dispel certain stories about him. Because he gained "notoriety" following the racial integration dispute at Central High School, some magazines and newspaper articles have pictured him as having horns, he said.

Army Denies 'Do-Nothing' Orders To Troops In Ark.

NEW YORK CITY (AP)—The Pentagon has denied "that the federalized troops on duty in Central High School in Little Rock are operating under orders to do nothing in the case of a disturbance, except to observe."

The Army's position was set forth in a letter to Roy Wilkins, NAACP executive secretary who previously had reported to Wilbur M. Brucker, Secretary of the Army, that he had received information from Little Rock "that the soldiers on duty at the school are said to be operating under orders to do nothing in the case of a disturbance, except to observe it."

In his letter, of March 14, Wilkins cited 42 incidents of harassment, intimidations and violence directed against Negro students attending Central High School by 20 identified white students within a period of 90 school days.

Native assistant, John W. Martyn, on March 21, Secretary Brucker made no reference to these incidents. However, the Army declared, the reports that the troops were operating under "do-nothing" orders "is not correct." Martyn also gave assurance that "adequate provisions exist in the instructions issued by the Army to the troops to insure necessary action in the performance of their mission."

"It must be understood," he pointed out, "that the school authorities are directly responsible for the control and discipline of the students within the school. Accordingly, the troops at the high school have conducted themselves in such a manner as not to usurp or interfere with the responsibilities of the school authorities."

The Pentagon letter also stated: "Military personnel on duty in and about the school have been and will continue to be prepared to intervene as necessary to assist the school authorities and to carry out their other instructions."

KINDS OF VOTES
In a deliberate organization, the members cast several kinds of votes they are:

COURTESY VOTE: A vote cast by a candidate for his opponent.

MAJORITY VOTE: This term refers to the number of votes cast by an organization on a motion. A majority vote means at least one more than half of the total number of votes cast on any motion or any candidate.

PLURALITY VOTE: When several candidates are being voted upon, the candidate receiving at least one more vote than any other candidate, he is said to have a plurality vote.

TWO-THIRDS VOTE: Certain motions, according to general parliamentary law, require a two-thirds vote. Among them are the motion proposing an amendment to the constitution.

YEAS AND NAYS VOTE: When voting by roll call, those for the motion say, "Yea," those against the motion say, "Nay," but those who do not wish to vote simply say, "Present." This is a roll call vote.

TIE-VOTE: A tie-vote is always a losing vote.
