The Rev. Andrew James Turner, "A. J." to his many friends has successfully launched into the field of ministry. From every corner praises are sounded loud and wide in his behalf.

He spoke to packed churches in Raleigh and Charlotte and "died in the wool" laymen and clergymen alike opined "that he is well equipped, inspiring and interesting." He has received his license and is open for engagements.

The last three baseball games played by the Person County High School baseball team have been shutouts, with Roxboro on the victory end. . . Raleigh 2-0, Alamance County 6-0 and Durham County (Little River High School) 1-0.

Walter Browning Sr. is out of St. Agnes Hospital and is reported enjoying good health.

Casey County Training School (Yanceyville) beat Adkins High School of Winston Salem 5-1 in a baseball tussle last week. The Yanceyville pitcher registered a no-hitter.

Mae Dorr Day, the former wife of the fabulous and famous "Rip" Day of New York City, died recently in a Binghamton, New York hospital after a short illness.

Sam Owens, the Richmond, Va. filling station operator, said after getting a $500.00 life membership in the N. A. A. C. P. "It cost me one whole day's work to get that membership."

Buddy Young, the great footballer for the New York Yankees and Baltimore Colts, was guest speaker at the high school athletic banquet in Martinsville, Va. last week. He attended the Delta dance in Danville, Va. afterwards.

Boyd Holden, one time great Shaw University singer, is in the insurance business in Baltimore, Maryland.

"Horse" Lane, All-American football star and the greatest name to leave A&T College, is operating a successful taxi business in Washington, D. C.

Athletic greats are supposed to be able to meet the public.

That's why such celebs as Jackie Robinson, Buddy Young, Hank Aaron, Sam Jones and Monte Irvin land off season or permanent jobs in personnel departments of larger firms.

Jimmie Tucker, the great slugging second baseman for Johnson C. Smith University in the late twenties, operates a novelty store in Boston, Mass.

Dr. Frank Avant, Rocky Mount, was a trumpet player par excellence a few years back. Ditto for Dr. Watson Fowler, Fayetteville dentist, who was tops on the piano.

Randolph "Navy" Armstrong (Principal of Booker T. Washington High in Rocky Mount) was quarterback on his high school football team.

Miss Addie Bailey, popular welfare executive of Durham is back at her desk after being shut-in a couple of months with a broken leg.

Lawyer M. E. Johnson and wife of Durham will soon greet their new arrival.

"Be Considerate and Let Others Enjoy Themselves"

MULLING WITH MULLER
By Edna H. Muller

The holidays are sneaking up on us so fast it's a little frightening, especially with so much still to be done. If an idea for a mantel display is presenting a bit of a problem, maybe this thought will prove helpful.

Place evergreen branches into red clay pots to look as if they were "growing." Little angles, frosted with artificial snow, and tied to the branches along with tiny tree bolls, make your little "trees" a truly delightful fireplace mantel display.

Television can be a beautiful and wonderful asset to any home and of a recent Sunday night it became the purveyor of a beautiful message to millions of viewers throughout the country. The talents of many combined to give us the most rewarding experience in TV history, and those who contributed to the 50th anniversary program, presented by CBS, can be proud of their every effort.

And, as a special feature, the actual Helen Deutsch took as its theme the answer to the question posed in a scene from Thornton Wilder's "Our Town"—"Do any human beings ever realize life while they live it, every, every minute?"

Through the deft use of words, music and purposeful scenery the writer gave us a dramatic vignette of the life around us and every minute of the show provided a provocative and lasting impact for the basic theme.

The producers gathered together a fine cast from the ranks of Broadway and Hollywood and the director used them and the whole to give us something to be long remembered. Space does not permit listing even the names of the outstanding performers but we can say thank you to the sponsor for making this possible. May General Motors have a happy anniversary!

Tips on Touring

When Driver Turns Teacher

Know someone who wants to learn to drive? The best tip is to take a driver-training course taught by professionals. They know the best techniques of teaching and they know the local traffic laws. Records prove that professionally trained drivers have fewer accidents than those who learn by catch-as-catch-can methods.

But if professional teaching can't be arranged, an experienced driver can substitute.

Here are some tips on teaching—in case you decide to try.

First, check your state motor vehicle laws. Some states require learners' permits for beginners and some specify hours when beginners are allowed on the roads.

Teach only in daylight and in good weather. Never take a beginner out at night or in stormy weather.

Use quiet, back roads, avoiding congested areas. Be sure your car is in good operating condition. Any Shell station will be glad to service it for you. A beginner will have enough problems without having to handle a balky car.

When teaching parallel parking, practice behind an imaginary car. When your student makes mistakes, be patient. Anger or nervousness can upset him.

Be sure your student learns the motor vehicle laws—as well as driving techniques. Literature, usually obtainable from state motor vehicle departments, is helpful for this purpose.

"HANDY LIVES ON"—Popular singing star Nat (King) Cole has capped a spectacular career by what critics call "an amazingly believable" portrayal of the late W. C. Handy in the Paramount film, "St. Louis Blues." Cole, whose early life paralleled Handy's in many ways, has been offered three more film chores as a result of his portrayal of the "Father of the Blues." (Newspress Photo).
