

Dr. Alonzo G. Moron:

Hampton's President Advocates Immediate Virginia Integration

HAMPTON, Va. — Dr. Alonzo G. Moron, President of Hampton Institute, advocated immediate integration of all Virginia schools and equal educational opportunities for all students in a speech recently at the second annual Hampton Institute conference of public school personnel held on the college campus.

In citing some of the progress made in education, Dr. Moron underlined the retarding effect of discrimination on the basis of color. "We have a constitution which guarantees equal rights to all citizens of the United States and equal treatment before law," he said,

"but many school systems deprive a large portion of our people of the chance to get a good education."

If we are going to make real improvement, even within a segregated situation, we must realize there are some things we can and must do which cannot be postponed until Mr. Stanley, Governor Almond or Senator Byrd dies," he said.

Replying to the question often asked him as to why the NAACP is pushing so hard, Dr. Moron said, "the only excuse for any kind of action the NAACP takes is that there now exists a situation which deprives thousands of children of their rightful opportunity. NAA-CP's concern is the abolition of this kind of discrimination against the nation's youth."

He told the more than 300 educators assembled for the conference that "one of the tragic results of segregation is that it warps the mind and souls of the teachers and we must avoid the real danger of transmitting the disgust, hatred and frustration on to our students."

In discussing the quality of our education and the extent which it is moving forward, Dr. Moron said our education has been compared to that of the Russians. "Russia can mobilize every ounce of its resources to accomplish its objectives without regard to the wishes or the needs of the people. Do we want to relinquish the kind of freedom and concern that differentiates ours with the soviet system," he asked.

Mrs. Hazie J. Caldwell Funeralized At Salisbury

SALISBURY — The Lutheran Church of which she was member was the scene recently of the quiet but beautiful funeral of Mrs. Hazie J. Caldwell, churchwoman and long-time citizen of Salisbury.

Throughout the funeral was reminiscent of the life she had led in the community—simple and meaningful. The pastor, the Reverend Floyd McAdoo officiated. Following a lengthy illness, Mrs. Caldwell passed away at her home at 825 W. Horrah Street, Thursday April 17.

After the opening music came the obituary, read by Mr. A. R. Kelsey. In it mention was made of the fact that Mrs. Caldwell had elected to follow the highway of fine family life, of high ideals, and of the maintenance of a fellow feeling for people at all levels.

And in his eulogy, the Reverend McAdoo pointed to Mrs. Caldwell's loyalty to the work of the church and of her struggle to help it to realize its program.

Born and reared in Cabarrus County, she came early to Salisbury where she was married to James Caldwell, began the task of establishing a home, and of rearing a family. She devoted her life to social uplift and to the work of the church.

Mrs. Caldwell is survived by her four sons—James Caldwell, Raymond Caldwell and Herman Caldwell all of Salisbury, and Dr. Edgar L. Caldwell of Martinsville, Va. Also surviving is her sister, Dorah T. Parker, of High Point, North Carolina and by a number of relatives and friends.

The funeral was conducted by the Kelsey Funeral Home of Salisbury and interment was in the Oakdale Cemetery.

Crusade For Cancer Said Success

As the 1958 Cancer Crusade ended on the 30th of April, the women of Raleigh and Wake County could look back on a job well done. The church and door to door solicitations show well that the educational and fund raising drive received good support from the Wake community despite the severe weather which handicapped its workers.

Service awards will be made this week to the county workers at their annual banquet to be held in the County Health building, while awards to workers in the city will be made at a later date. For some of the women, this will be the second certificate award.

Mrs. Georgia Betts of Holly Springs will receive a jeweled pin, the volunteer worker's highest award, for her remarkable leadership over the past two campaign years. The awards will be presented by Howard Hicks, general chairman of the 1958 Cancer Crusade.

Dr. J. W. Seabrook, President-Emeritus, Is Founders Day Speaker At Fayetteville

FAYETTEVILLE — A near-capacity audience was virtually lifted up at the Fayetteville State Teachers College recently as a result of the dynamic, factual Founders' Day address delivered by Dr. J. W. Seabrook, president-emeritus of the college. It was the institution's eighty-first Annual celebration of Founders' Day. In presenting the speaker, Dr. Rudolph Jones, president of the school, spoke of his predecessor as a scholar, teacher, educator, builder, humanitarian, and Christian gentleman.

A man who has been the moving spirit behind the growth of the school for more than three decades, Dr. Seabrook told of the faith, courage, and determination of the seven forward-looking founders who started the institution with $140—Matthew W. Leary, A. J. Chesnut, Robert Simmons, George Grainger, Thomas Lemax, Nelson Carter, and David A. Bryant. "As they did in their day," he insisted, "we must meet the challenge of our critical times."

Introductory remarks were given by Harold Hubbard, President of the student council, Dr. Lafayette Parker, dean of the college, and Orlando F. Hudson, president of the general alumni association. The program, completed with taps and the placement of flowers on the grave of Dr. E. E. Smith, was presented against the background of music by the College choir with Mary T. Eldridge directing.

A good number of donations to the J. W. Seabrook Scholarship Fund was realized through the Founders' Day effort. Preparatory to the formal program on Sunday, was the alumni meeting and the Alumni banquet.

Miss Mable Powell was chairman of the Founders' Day Committee.

QUESTION: How can I protect my hay crop from the alfalfa weevil?

ANSWER: You can control this pest by using heptachlor, either as a dust or a spray. It takes 10 to 15 pounds of a 2.5 per cent dust or one pint of a 25 per cent emulsifiable concentrate in water per acre according to the capacity of spray equipment used. Heptachlor may be used up to one week prior to cutting.

At Shaw University: Honors Day Audience Hears Mrs. Elizabeth Cofield Talk

Honors Day was observed at Shaw University on Friday, April 25, by the Alpha Omicron Chapter of the Alpha Kappa Mu Honor Society and the Shaw chapter of Beta Kappa Chi Scientific Society.

Mrs. Elizabeth Cofield, assistant professor of education at Shaw, was the speaker for the occasion.

Using the subject "I Speak of College, Thusly," Mrs. Cofield stated that the person who comes out of college into the modern world today must be quick to apprehend, comprehend and quick to act. Enterprize today, she pointed out, is related all over the world, and men with mere skill and mere technical knowledge will be mere servants and may at any time become useless servants.

The modern world must have in its trained men—good men with power to organize and guide. "College," she declared, "is meant to stimulate in a considerable number of youth what would be stimulated in only a few if we were to depend entirely upon nature and circumstance. She referred to college students as makers of tomorrow's world and urged to demand for themselves an intellectual declaration of independence and to never let their researches be ends in themselves, but guides to a more meaningful present and a more constructive future.

The speaker was introduced by Miss Amelia Smith, president of Alpha Kappa Mu. The history of the organization was given by Mary Mayfield. The history of Beta Kappa Chi was given by Howard Pritchard.

New members received into Alpha Kappa Mu are Vonnie Erwin, a junior of Charlotte, and Helen Sneed, a junior of Garner. New members received into Beta Kappa are Helen Sneed, Myrtle Streeten, a junior of Greenville, and George Murphy, a junior of Ivanhoe.

Edna Pinkney, a sophomore of Warrenton sang "Stars." Remarks were made by Dr. William R. Strassner, president of Shaw.

Dean Foster P. Payne is adviser to Alpha Kappa Mu and H. L. Irons is adviser to Beta Kappa Chi.
