Working With Polio Victims
During the course of illness and convalescence, every patient undergoes some degree of physical distress; the person whose illness leaves him with a permanent disability suffers, in addition, the mental anguish of fear and insecurity.

This is especially true of polio patients, who have been increasing in numbers in recent years. It is also true of many thousands of other patients, such as those suffering from arthritis, cerebral palsy, multiple sclerosis, heart disease, asthma, fractures, peripheral nerve injuries and spinal cord injuries. It is unfortunate that the greatest problem of rehabilitation at the present time is the acute shortage of professional workers. There is not even one qualified medical social worker, physical therapist or occupational therapist for each hospital in this country.

WE NEED IMMEDIATELY the following: 50,000 more nurses; 1,000 more medical social workers; 2,900 more occupational therapists; 2,500 more physical therapists, and in addition in the next five years we shall need: Fifty thousand more nurses; 4,000 more medical social workers; 4,000 more occupational therapists; 5,700 more physical therapists.

A handicapped person deserves every chance to resume a meaningful life—to regain the pride of achievement and the joy of comparative independence.

For further information regarding the need for workers with polio patients and other handicapped persons, write the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, 120 Broadway, New York 6, N. Y.
