qualified citizenship for the 15,000,000 native Americans who compose the Negro group in this country.

The meeting will also be celebrating the 4th Anniversary of the historic United States Supreme Court decision ruling segregation in education unconstitutional.

Mrs. Bates is president of the Arkansas State Conference of NAACP Branches and a member of the National Board of Directors of the NAACP. Mrs. Bates is one of America's most published and honored women of today in the field of civil rights.

This will be Mrs. Bates' first visit to North Carolina. She has won the hearts of freedom-loving people throughout the world for her gallant fight in the Little Rock school crisis. Mrs. Bates' firmness was equal only to the Rock of Gibraltar, as she puts her protective arms around the more courageous children in the face of a vicious mob, whose animal-like instinct had been heated to the point of explosion by Arkansas Governor Orval E. Faubus.

While the outside world looked on in horror, in face of death threats to herself, her family and the nine children, and while bombs were being thrown at her home, Mrs. Bates stood firmly behind the children and said: "It just as well be today as tomorrow, if it has to come." This fighting lady for freedom is standing firm against a hard core of segregationists.

Kelly M. Alexander, president of the North Carolina State Conference, stated that "North Carolina Negroes are endeavoring to develop a new concept of the American as a person, regardless of his race, color, religion or national origin, who makes this land his home and contributes to the common welfare through sharing together the responsibilities, rights and privileges of citizenship." Mr. Alexander said that 5,000 freedom loving citizens are expected to attend.

Activities will begin at 3:00 p.m.

Huge of bones pending a hearing in County Recorder's Court.

Evans was discovered lying in a pool of blood about five steps from his front door by his nephew, Norris Evans, Jr. at 1:30 a.m. Sunday.

Norris, who was visiting in the home of the accused brother, about 1,000 yards from the dead man's house, saw the murder a shot sometime after midnight.

The younger said he became suspicious when William Evans returned home shortly after the shot, his clothes and hand stained with blood.

Deputies who investigated the case said statements obtained from witnesses indicated that the brothers had been invited in the roadway in front of William's home.

William is alleged to have picked up a gun, believed to be a .16 gauge shotgun, and followed Isaiah to his home.

The dead man was clutching a double-barrel shotgun which had not been fired when his body was discovered.

The murder weapon was not found by deputies, although William made a partial confession to authorities Sunday.

William's blood-stained trousers were found in an attic where witnesses said he had thrown them when he returned to his house after the fatal deed.

About 100 families were forced from their homes in Princesville and a few families left their homes along the river between Tarboro and Princesville.

The Tar had reached a crest at Rocky Mount, 14 miles upstream, where its floodwaters claimed two lives Saturday night. Tarboro expected a crest of just under 30 feet—some 11 feet out of its banks.

On the Neuse River, another slow-moving stream draining the flat, tobacco-growing Coastal Plains, about 20 families were warned they may have to evacuate their homes in Kinston by mid-week.

reports stating that the Highway Department intended to take Berry O'Kelly's land for a new highway," declared Supt. Smith.

The meeting was called for the purpose of hearing the Wake County Superintendent report to the people who assembled in the auditorium of the Berry O'Kelly School Friday, May 9, at 7:30 p.m. with Mrs. Harveleigh White acting as chairman.

"If no attempt to seize these properties was made by the Highway Department, the Board had anticipated beginning construction on your new facilities probably in late July," said Mr. Smith.

Supt. Smith stated that he and the Board's attorney were going to appear before the Highway officials to secure a statement in writing that the Highway Department was no longer interested in the property.

"Should our efforts fail in this direction, we of course—plan to use other legal methods to restrain the Highway Department," added Supt. Smith.

IT WAS POINTED OUT in the meeting that if and when the Highway Department "expressed no further interest in school's property," the Board is confident that construction could begin within 45 to 60 days.

When asked if there was any chance of getting the proposed new facilities by September, the Superintendent said that, in his opinion, "there wasn't much chance."

Another question was, "In the event that the new facilities are not available at the opening of school, what temporary arrangements would be made for the children?"

Supt. Smith answered, "As I see it there will be no makeshift arrangements, you will have to wait until the new facilities are built."

The action by the Highway Department and the vitalized new interest on the part of the Berry O'Kelly patrons of the school might be a blessing in disguise for it has emphasized the need as never before, according to the Superintendent.

major Negro newspapers, invited some 400 representatives of Negro organizations to attend the conference.

Gov. Albert B. (Happy) Chandler of Kentucky, Labor Secretary James P. Mitchell, and counsel Thurgood Marshall of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People took part in a panel discussion Tuesday afternoon.

Walker, publisher of the Cleveland Call and Post, told a news conference the "Summit Meeting" will work out "a unified action program to bring the Negro his legal rights."

He said "Unity of opposition to the Negro in the South" made a meeting of Negroes "at the Summit" mandatory.

Dr. J. H. Jackson, president of the five-million-member National Baptist Convention, called on his race to show "racial togetherness" on other than civil rights.

In a speech prepared for delivery to the conference, Jackson said Negroes have shown "solidarity" in fighting against segregation and discrimination. But they have split on other issues, he said, with "almost as many camps as there are leaders and opinions among us."

Dr. Jackson, who is minister of the Olivet Baptist Church in Chicago, suggested several ways for Negro professional groups to help their race and the nation.

He said one course might be "investing in hospitals and health institutions" where Negro and other scientists could work to promote the health "of all the people."

He asked the delegates to "act immediately" in reducing the mushrooming crime rate in Negro communities.

to succeed himself in August as grand exalted ruler of IBOPOW.

The joint association then heard a report from grand secretary W. C. Hueston of Washington, D. C. read by Clay Claiborne, press secretary to grand exalted ruler Johnson. The Hueston report asked "... continued support of his office ..." and pledged his service to the improvement of the order. The convention voted approval of the report and passed resolutions endorsing Johnson, Hueston and Battle to their respective grand lodge posts. Battle is grand lecturing knight.

Following the reports of president K. P. Battie, Rocky Mount, and Mrs. Letitia Smith, Hickory, daughter-Elks president, they were re-elected. Battle with his entire slate of old officers. Administration leaders said the election had to be held as a sign of the law because grand exalted ruler Johnson had to depart for an important group-meeting with prominent businessman in Washington, Robinson K. Reynolds, grand civil liberties director, Philadelphia had departed late Sunday for the same meeting with Eisenhower.

Before leaving Sunday, Reynolds had suited a large audience at the Brown Mountain campus in a committed welcome program and civil liberties meeting when he urged them to seek the nullness of the ballot and to take an active part in the shaping of our state and local government as well as the support of it through taxation.

Reynolds declared: "Every person who is qualified to register and vote and does not do so is a traitor to himself, his neighbor and his country." A native Texan, Reynolds is a native legislator since having Bertie County. Reynolds warned that America could ill-afford to "go slow" where the improving of race relations are concerned, adding that, America needs all her people to win this ideological struggle against communism.

Battie and Smith were loud in their praise of the cooperation shown locally by Ashevilleians who helped the Rev. Otis E. Dunn, Mrs. Sallie Acker and Fayetteville lodge and Rhododendron temple with their superb entertainment and the musical program executed under the direction of W. T. Grimes of Rocky Mount, assistant grand musical director of IBOPOW.

Mayor Earl Eller brought official welcome to the delegates Sunday afternoon along with representatives from several fraternal groups.

Delegates attended memorial services Sunday at the AME Zion Church where Rev. Otis E. Dunn delivered the eulogy and attorney Harold T. Epps read "Thanatopsis."

tred simply because he dares to speak out for justice and freedom, is to say the least, a very poor and bad advertisement for the State of North Carolina. The victim of this automobile insurance revocation is Mr. Robert Williams, who lives in Monroe, N. C., and is the president of NAACP chapter in that area.

Although law enforcement authorities there have attempted to pooch-pooch the racial violence and lawlessness that has been going on for quite some time, we want to echo Mr. Williams' question, "If there is no violence and lawlessness there," and if Mr. Williams' life as well as his automobile are not in danger,

Elks Foundation Scholarship Given Dr. Marcus Boulware

Dr. Marcus H. Boulware, speech pathologist, and professor of special education at St. Augustine's College, has been awarded a scholarship to study audiology at Wayne State University, Detroit, during the 1958 summer session.

The scholarship awarded by the Elks National Foundation, will enable Dr. Boulware to study and receive training in general hearing testing to fit hearing aids both by earphones and free field.

He plans to adapt regular procedures for effective use with children afflicted with cerebral palsy, convulsion because he has spent the current school year developing a curriculum for training school correctionists for the public schools.

This work represents the first phase of the college's efforts to provide in the near future a speech and hearing clinic for serving the community, as well as training students.

DR. MARCUS H. BOULWARE

why did the insurance company

consider his car a bad risk and cancel the insurance on it?

One of the main reasons why violence and lawlessness has made such a headway in this State is that those charged with the responsibility of enforcing the law have a tendency to ignore and play down violence and disobedience to the law.

This State is making an out-and-out effort to lure out-of-state industries to relocate their plants here. It is very strange why those who are waging this industry-hunting campaign fail to realize that racial violence, intolerance, and a disregard for the rights and liberties of its Negro citizens will one day have to be reckoned with.

TGO BUSY:

A meeting of vast significance and importance to all of Wake County's 50,000 Negroes was held at the Bloodworth St. YMCA Tuesday night, May 8. This meeting was called to discuss with the administrator the status of our group in the new county general hospital now under construction. Less than 20 persons attended the meeting although many other people were invited to attend.

Where were the others? Your answer to the question is correct. "They were too busy." Why Negroes hereabout are always too busy to lend their presence and support to worthwhile projects is an unanswered question. These busy persons are "too busy" to support adequately our churches and schools, too busy to register and vote, too busy to help provide guidance and recreational facilities for our restless youth, too busy to promote Negro enterprise here, and even too busy to establish any type of effective and worthwhile leadership in this area.

Inasmuch as these very busy people are unable to show anything they have accomplished, would say that they just don't give a rap about this, that or the other, and stop lying about it all. History tells that Negro fiddlers while Rome burned, and this was his way of showing his indifference to the welfare of others. The indifference of some of our Wake County citizens exceed that of old Nero.

A BIG MESS:

Anyway you look at the Negro high school picture in Raleigh compels one to conclude it is one "big mess." Let's begin with the "J. W. Jones Junior-Senior High School, two schools in one. It has been shown that a junior and senior high school program cannot be carried on successfully in one plant. There are several reasons for this, and many of the reasons are obvious.

No attempt was made to combine the junior and senior high school for white school students, and this should be significant enough to cause you to realize that such a combination is both unwise and unworkable; that is, if the best results are to be obtained.

Next, we have the Washington Junior High School and Elementary, both housed in one building under one head. It is very fortunate that in both of these bad situations of having very able and conscientious, we do have the benefit of able administrators.

Having able administrators, however, cannot erase the defects of this dual system. It can be seen how an elementary and junior high program might be workable than the junior-senior high school program, but even so, there are gaps and short comings in the elementary-junior high school set up.

In the Washington School set up, there are several shortcomings over and beyond the physical and psychological gaps such a system involves. The Raleigh high school program is supposed to provide a full-time librarian to teach junior high school, but the school has to get along with a part-time librarian.

The principal of a junior high school is supposed to have a secretary, but even though there is an elementary and junior high school at Washington, the principal has to do his own secretarial work while administering the work of two schools.

From the Washington School we move to the Oberlin School where things are really in a mess. There a very feeble attempt is being made to provide a junior and senior high school program in one building and under auspices that are inadequate for elementary school purposes. No attempt is being made to provide junior high school pupils with any type of vocational training, no counseling, no physical education.

On the same street that houses the Oberlin School, Oberlin Road, there is a modern, fully equipped, complete in every detail, a junior high school for white pupils.

CHANCE FOR JOE LOUIS

PARK: Now that the Raleigh City Council has taken the forward step of establishing an Urban Renewal Commission here, there is a chance that Joe Louis Park may finally be developed. This isn't likely to come about through wishful thinking, however. The people living in that area and others in eliminating the conditions there must make their wishes known to this Urban Renewal body, and they must do so in no uncertain terms.

We know that there are many blighted areas in and around Raleigh, but it is our conviction that the Joe Louis Park is by far the worst. We must ask this Urban Renewal Commission to do something about this neglected area.
