The CAROLINIAN'S

WORDS OF WORSHIP

1. In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God.
2. The same was in the beginning with God.
3. All things were made by him; and without him was not anything that was made.
4. In him was life, and life was the light of men.
5. And the light shineth in darkness; and the darkness comprehended it not.
6. There was a man sent from God, whose name was John.
7. The same came for a witness, to bear witness of the Light, that all men through him might believe.
8. He was not that Light, but was sent to bear witness of that Light.

It Is Hush - - Hush!

One of the most recent books to come off the press is Abortion in the United States, published by Harper-Hoeber. It is the record of the 1955 international conference on abortion sponsored by the Planned Parenthood Federation of America and the New York Academy of Medicine.

In the report, an abortion specialist, Dr. G. Lotrel Timanus, tells how he built up a roster of 353 physicians who would send patients to him for abortions in his Baltimore practice. It was revealed that 1920 to 1951, Dr. Timanus performed 5,210 illegal operations.

From our knowledge, abortion is illegal in practically each one of our 48 states. The only exception that is permitted is that the abortion is imperative to save the mother's life. The report pointed out that even in these cases, the penalty was so severe that many hospitals and gynecologists won't have anything to do with legitimate cases.

It is interesting to observe that, according to the Kinsey report, one out of ten women surveyed became pregnant and had an abortion. The Kinsey survey explained that most of these women had the abortions performed by physicians.

Dr. Timanus, now debarred from practice, testified that he used the best medical techniques available. In every case he tried to get the referring doctor to state in writing that the woman's health would be jeopardized by continuation of the pregnancy.

Fees for Dr. Timanus' abortion operations ranged from $200 to $400—payable in advance—and they were charged "to make the thing more or less prohibitive."

When brought to court, Dr. Timanus was prosecuted and fined $5,000. Then he was forced into retirement after a six-month jail sentence.

The Church - It And You

Let us take a look at the church and you too. You have been criticizing the church for many of its so-called shortcomings. You say that it does not sufficiently meet the needs of the people in this Space Age. But what about you—the church member?

Since there is so much wrong with the church, and you have made the charge why do you attend?

First, we know you are going to say that you feel better by having attended the Sunday morning service. Now, is that all going to church does for you? If so, then you might as well stay at home because medicine will do the same thing for you.

For some reason you church members think going to church on Sunday is serving God. It you think so, you have the wrong idea. You fail to realize that there is no difference between working on your job and working in the church—work and religious work.

On this earth, there is much work to be done. Our Father's Business is far larger than just doing church work. It includes agricultural, commercial, educational, political, and domestic pursuits.

God seeks to develop perfect human beings, who, in spite of adversities, will learn to live the abundant life with their fellowmen. To achieve this end upon earth, the Almighty set going an experiment to which all His resources are committed. No single human talent and effort can be spared if the experiment is to succeed.

People must be fed and clothed, housed and transported, taught and healed, as well as preached to. Thus all business, daily and professional pursuits are his Father's business.

Second, you may say I go to church to make good business contacts. You think of the church as you would of fraternal and social organizations that you join for professional reasons. Thus you go to church for what you can personally get out of it. If this is all that church means to you, we advise you to stay at home.

You may be like the person who said, "Until the church can become as interesting to the people as the dance hall and movies, it cannot hope to compete for people's interest and support." This is another way of saying that you feel that the church ought to broaden its sphere of activity.

We Salute Dr. Williams

The poet, Shakespeare, said in one of his plays that "the good that men do is oft interred with their bones." We do not want this said of an educator who has given 28 years of meritorious service to one of our State Teachers Colleges. Hence, we take this means of saluting Dr. Sidney D. Williams, president of State Teachers College, who rendered unselfish service to the institution.

This great teacher and administrator came to State Teachers College at Elizabeth City,

9. That was the true Light, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world.

10. He was in the world, and the world was made by him, and the world knew him not.

11. He came unto his own, and his own received him not.

12. But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even unto them that believe on his name:

13. Which was born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God.

14. And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father,) full of grace and truth. (St. John 1:1-14.)

These facts may be shocking to most readers, but Dr. Timanus states that he knows a physician who had done 40,000 abortions in 50 years.

The aim of the parenthood conference was to discover the number of abortions performed each year in the United States. While no one knows exactly, it is reliably estimated that they run from 200,000 to 1,200,000. This is indeed a shocking number.

What the Planned Parenthood Federation of America found out at its conference—shocking as it may be—is being repeated thousands of times each month in this country. We don't know whether to place most of the blame upon pregnant females and their husbands (or boy friends) or upon the medical practitioners. But whoever is to blame need to search their consciences, or they need to be punished to the fullest extent of the law.

We are sure that the American Medical Association is aware of this condition, and we hope steps are being taken to curb this practice among its member physicians. We even suggest that the Association give more study to this matter in the near future if for no other reason than to vindicate its integrity and reputation.

In general the people in this country have high regard for the medical profession. It cannot afford to let the malpractice of a few doctors bring disrepute to the Association.

We may say that the physician—when he is caught performing abortions—should be slammed behind jail bars. Well, what about the patients who go to these physicians and lay bare their distressing problems and are willing to pay the high fees charged? If discovered, both the patient and physician should be punished severely. There should be no exceptions.

People, like you, have said that the church fails to provide services for children and young people. You say the church is doing little for aged members who have retired from their daily vocational pursuits. Your ideas are well-taken.

You are suggesting that our churches provide old folks' home, orphanages, recreation centers, educational departments, employment offices, group hospital insurance and the like. Well, we admit that these are indeed worthwhile projects and the general church should undertake them. But what about you?

In order for the church to expand its services to appeal to a wider variety of people it must get your full financial support. This means, of course, that nothing less than the practice of tithing will do. It takes thousands of dollars to build educational departments, recreation centers, convalescing homes, and what-have-you.

The reason why your church doesn't have all of these things you want it to have is that you have been putting in the collection plate the widow's mite. The day for dropping ten cents in the plate on Sunday is past. Ten cents will not pay the pastor much less expand and keep in repair your church's physical facilities.

While much money will be needed to provide many services in the church, there is a great need for the services of members. Members must give of their services freely, or else the church will be forced to employ paid workers to carry on its work.

The trouble with most church members is that we have not been doing our duty. We must dedicate ourselves to the church's program. There is an enormous amount of work that needs to be done. We must not develop the habit of "letting George do it."

Last fall, THE CAROLINIAN in a series of editorials, outlined a program of positive action for church members. It included financial self-discipline on the part of church members, tithing, participating in the Church Bonus Program, and wise investment of the church's financial resources. We would be interested to know if there is any church in North Carolina following this program.

Next time you are tempted to criticize your church and its minister, suppose you think about what you are doing.

North Carolina, twenty-eight years ago and cast his lot. At that time, he assumed the position of dean and held it for fifteen years. As administrator, his cooperation and loyalty, his eagerness and alertness, was made manifest. Without doubt, his contribution as dean led to his inauguration as president of the college in 1945.

Realizing that it takes money to carry the gospel of education to the people of North Carolina, Dr. Williams appealed to state of-

BLOOD

1. Up to this time and reaching back beyond the Flood, discoveries are being made in this stream we call "Blood"; just when and where this will stop, it is hard to tell, for its elements are as vast as a bottomless well.

2. When we consider that on this substance all human and animal life depends, it should be cherished and carefully guarded above all of life's ordinary demands.

3. Thus physicians find themselves in an endless sea trying to find a remedy for you and pass thru the blood stream to leave the patient calm and serene.

4. It is no wonder then that this vital substance has provoked highest thoughts in unusual abundance; for the deeper one delves into the secrets of this great course, countless mysteries are found in its boundless course.

5. To it have been attached metaphors and similes without end... but never before did it ever mean as much to man until God sent him to this sinful earth, that through His death men could be redeemed and enjoy a new birth.

6. It was then "Blood" took on a most unusual significance, making "Faith" the secret of inheritance, giving all mankind a right to share, and making every true and faithful believer a happy and eternal heir.

7. This "Blood" once shed has always remained the same, and bears alone the Savior's name; sincerity and faith in its origin and purposes is the combination to Heaven's safe containing security for man's losses.

8. Yes, Jesus paid it all to Him we owe, and now there is nothing greater in all the world, no matter where we go, its power and Grace super-rules the world, and to all men near and far, it stands as one great Holy Temple with its door standing ajar.

9. To enter here, all must stand a "Blood" test, that "Blood" that Christ did give, in the lives of every penitent soul, must in virtues daily lives it can't be carried in expensive charms, crucifixes have no efficacy... only real faith in this once shed "Blood" can set a soul free.

10. Genuflections may appear inspiring and intense prove a soft refrain, also marble statuary representing reality; but where genuine "Faith" and "Love" are lacking, there is little or nothing to be gained.

11. No, the "Precious Blood of Jesus" embraces only the very highest and the best, demanding the whole heart of an individual, if he or she eternal life would possess; for everything priceless to Him, He freely surrendered as the price for our sin.

12. Therefore now there must be no counterfeiting in our offerings of worship and praise, for His torture and suffering on the Cross has redeemed us through endless days... and joyful new all the Redeemed can sing, "There is a fountain filled with blood drawn from Emmanuel's veins, and sinners plunge beneath that flood lose all their guilty stains."

What Other Editors Say

AMERICA THE LOSER

Two major anti-recession weapons have fallen by the political wayside, the victims of a doubtful coalition between a Republican Administration and a fictitious "to loosen the purse strings" and make larger appropriations. When money began to pour into the college treasury, the institution was transformed into a first-class college for training elementary school teachers.

Under President Williams' administration, every building was remodelled and made into a modern facility. The addition of roads, side walks, and shrubbery has made the campus a showplace in the town. In ten years' time, these additions have been made: two modern residence halls, a science hall, a building, an up-to-date infirmary, construction of an athletic field annex, and addition of four faculty homes.

It is not generally known that President and Mrs. Williams have assisted financially many young men and women who otherwise would have been denied an education. He is an alumnus of the Antioch Presbyterian Church, has been active in community affairs. In recognition of his work as educational leader, Johnson C. Smith University awarded him the honorary Doctor of Laws degree in 1948.

Dr. Williams has "run the race with patience," and we take this means of awarding him the prize. For his long years of service, he has earned the right to retire. It goes without saying that his influence in the educational field will be missed, and his influence in the community will be greatly expanded.

"Lots of men could support a wife if they didn't have to feed her vanity."

Congress controlled by the GOP and conservative Democrats. In the face of a 10-month-old recession, the nation's worst since the end of World War II, the White House and the Democratic leadership in Congress have teamed up to block on a tax cut for low and moderate-income families.

With 5.2 million unemployed—and likely to reach 6 million in June—the Administration and the congressional coalition of Republicans and conservative Democrats have defeated attempts to pass a meaningful emergency unemployment compensation bill.

These actions, coming during a plummeting economy and in the midst of world unrest that is testing America's leadership role, disclose a queer mixture of political cynicism, timidity and fear.

The White House is committed to a "frugal" approach regardless of the cost to the nation in terms of present suffering and lost economic growth. It is haunted by an unrealistic fear of budget deficits and a future inflation. It is convinced that a do nothing timid approach to the recession eventually will result in an economic cure.

The President has strongly resisted all attempts to bolster consumer spending via a tax cut. His Administration has fought off attempts to write real legislation to aid the unemployed and substituted a measure that is best described as cruel, shame and a hoax on the jobless.

It is disturbed about budget deficits when it is painfully apparent that neither an economic recession nor Communist totalitarianism can be fought with balanced budgets.

The position of the Democrats is more difficult to understand. Originally the proponents of an all-out anti-recession program, their ardor has cooled.

There is some genuine concern that a tax cut would reduce revenue at a time when America confronts many dangers in the world.

There is also a political concern that the Democratic party may be saddled with blame for budget deficits and a future inflationary spiral. Only a few bold members of the party see the situation clearly.

A handful of liberal Democrats have led the fight for meaningful jobless benefits but were outvoted in the main by Republicans and conservative Democrats concerned with "states' rights."

The failure on the jobless aid bill, the decisions against a tax cut means that America may well be in the depths of the present recession for many months to come—if it doesn't get any worse.

It means also that the strong, dynamic America to whom the world looks for leadership during present crises in France and the Middle East, may be a weakened, economically ill nation incapable of throwing its full strength into the fight for freedom. —AFL-CIO NEWS.

VIRGINIA HANGING ON

THE LINE When the President intimated to the press a few days ago that troops were to be withdrawn from Little Rock Central High School, and expressed his regret that such a dispatch had to be the only option whereby the country could serve the prestige of its directives, there was nothing in his tone or tenor to suggest that such an action taken in the Little Rock affair would not be repeated if and when the honor of the country demanded it.

The affair at Little Rock finally boiled down to one simple paragraph: that in no instance would wrong-doing be rescued because it had massed enough strength and numbers to constitute a menace.

Now, upon the Supreme Court order on Monday, Arlington County, Va., must admit seven Negro students for its fall term. This moves the famous Virginia case into focus. Arlington, it will be recalled is a suburb of the nation's capital and naturally would be no complacent to a nation like ours with a violation of its court ruling, outlawing something that a state is permitted to carry on right in the shadow of its dome.

It must be noted the order was more specific than any previous court order, because it specifically names the seven students and the schools to which they are to be admitted.

Virginia is in that bracket of segregationists providing for pri-

JUST FOR FUN

BY MARCUS B. BOULWARE

AT PRESS CONFERENCE On Monday, June 2, Cornyard and I went along with John R. Larkins, consultant, M. C. Department of Public Welfare, to Greensboro where we attended a news press luncheon honoring Ghana's Ambassador Daniel A. Ahmeling Chapman, who also delivered the commencement address under the trees on the campus quadrangle.

We might add that at the commencement, four men, Edward R. Merriek, Paul Roosevelt Brown, Ambassador Chapman, and John Larkins were awarded honorary doctor's degrees.

The night before, I told Cornyard to wear his blue serge suit, white shirt, black bow tie, black shoes, "You know, Cornyard, we're going to be in the big time with the 'big-wigs' said I.

This pleased the old boy very much, and the next morning Cornyard looked like he was "just out of a band box." To be sure, I thought Cornyard was going to get one of those honorary degrees—because he looked the part of a successful citizen.

The luncheon began at 12:30 p. m. Monday, and we breezed in four minutes late, Cornyard, Larkins, and I.

Cornyard was carried away with the menu, so was I. Boy, we had lamb croquet, snap beans, lettuce and tomato salad, ice tea, marbled white potatoes, parsley, sherbet and cake.

We beamed with pride as the revolving camera "snagged" our mugs.

Folks, Cornyard was so carried away with the Greensboro press luncheon that he was on hand at the Raleigh press conference held Thursday, June 3, with the Ambassador from Ghana in the Senate Chamber at the Capitol Building.

WRAL and a Durham station had their television apparatus set up, and to be sure Cornyard got in the cameras' photographic range. And I looked "real cool" along side Cornyard.

You know these experiences gave Cornyard a desire to be somebody, and he will be too.

After the Raleigh press conference, my friend and I drifted on down to a cafe. We checked the juke box for some music. Cornyard likes the musical hit "Pretty One" and Elvis Presley's "Ring Around Your Neck."

Since I had the quarter, I punched the buttons for my favorites: the late Chuck Willis' "What Am I Living For?", Mahalia Jackson's "He's Got The Whole World In His Hand," and that send-me piece by the Angelic Gospel Singers, entitled "Jesus, the Light of the World."

Next time you go to the cafe for a dinner out, play "Jesus, the Light of the World" by the Angelic Gospel Singers. That organ and piano background is terrific, and I don't have the adjectives to describe how it makes you feel.

Yes, sir, if I were a church shouting man, this selection would be my choice. And that male solo singer makes your heart soar among the wildwood trees.

Cornyard then dropped in his dime to play "I'll Come Running Back To You." "No you don't," I said, "because you should have some pride, Cornyard."

"But I lost my girl friend," grieved Cornyard.

At once I added, "It's all right to have love and loss."

Cornyard shot back, "But it takes money to break in a new girl."

You know something?—There is a lot of truth in it too.

Well, I sympathize with old Cornyard because he lost his girl friend. She was number one on his hit parade.

No matter what you say—I'm all for "him" hitching his wagon to a star where he can "Sad die the Wind."

By the time you read this column, Cornyard and I will have journeyed to Alcorn A. and M. College, Lorman, Mississippi, on "the Golden Eagle." Yep, pray for us, my friends. We will need your prayers.

IN THIS OUR DAY

BY DR. C. A. CHICK, SR.

IN general, we use our imaginations living again the sweet days of childhood and youth.

Toss of us who cannot afford a long trip will have to settle for a week end, or even a day, on the beach. To play in water and sand for a day is also good for what may all one, too, gives one a new outlook on life and its problems.

Many teachers will spend their vacation time in normal study. My hat off to teachers who attend summer school. But few, if any class of people, spend as much of their meager incomes for further preparation as do teachers. They too, will return to their jobs with added information pertaining to such as schools, communities, and home life.

Those of us who can do none of the foregoing will have to settle with staying at home and working our flower and vegetable gardens. Also we may read that good book or magazine article that we have planned so long to read but have never found the time to do so. Let those of us who fall in the immediate category, those who are not able to go any place, not become discouraged.

Working in our flower and vegetable gardens as well as reading may be an enjoyable as well as a profitable vacation. What surpasses getting up early in the mornings and observing a flower or vegetable plant has "grown an inch during the night?" Or what surpasses reading a good book and discussing the same with the family.

Your columnist wishes for all of our readers a pleasant and profitable vacation. And, he advises each of you, by all means take a vacation of some kind!

Guard from paroling the institution, the twilight of the "massive opposition" settled over the Arkansas capital.

The facts are that, despite fanatical opposition and disgraceful incidents, nine Negro students were admitted to a formerly all-white high school and stayed throughout the term, regardless of outrageous provocations.

Understandably, most people are now wondering about what will happen next term, considering that all of the candidates in the forthcoming gubernatorial primary are pledged to fight against public school integration, thus giving Arkansas voters no real choice, which The Court does not necessarily follow that the majority of Arkansas citizens are opposed to public school desegregation because most political leaders are opposed to it; and they should be able to voice their preference.

It does not necessarily follow that the majority of Arkansas citizens are opposed to public school desegregation because most political leaders are opposed to it; and they should be able to voice their preference.

It is a grave reflection on representative government that such preference has little or no voice because of the so-called democratic machinery operating in so many areas of this country, notably the Deep South. —PITTSBURGH COURIER
