City Is Shocked Over Fatal, Brutal Beating

By F. R. TISBY

SHREVEPORT La. — (AP) — A brutal, senseless murder occurred last week leaving this city of early 200,000 which is becoming more and more plagued by outbreaks of teenage violence and terror, shocked and outraged.

Killed was Tom Rachel, elderly and one-eyed.

The alleged assailants, two youths, Nathan (Low-Day) Roberts, 16, and Thurman (Fats) Lockett, 22.

Their motive, a fifth of wine cost less than $1.

According to local police the two youths robbed the elderly man of a bottle of wine after having earlier robbed him of another bottle, and then brutally beat him over the head with a club, leaving him for dead.

Attendants at Confederate hospital, where Rachel died the next day, reported the beating was one of the most brutal cases ever received at the hospital.

The two youths admitted taking part in the robbery and beating and other youth, Robert Lee Bradley, 17, was arrested as a material witness in the case, police reported.

SNATCHED BOTTLE

Authorities gave this version of the incident: the two youths spotted Rachel leaving a liquor store with a bottle of wine. Lockett, snatched the bottle away from him and ran behind a church and drank the contents.

Rachel then purchased another bottle and the two youths intercepted him and demanded the wine.

When the elderly man refused, Roberts nicked up a club ground and handed it to Lockett who began beating the old man over the head, shouting "I'm going to kill you."

As Rachel lay bleeding and injured on the ground, the youths went thru his pocket, but did not find anything.

BYSTANDER THREATENED

An unidentified man witnessed the attack and told them he was going to call the police if they didn't stop, but Lockett warned the man that he would kill him if he didn't go away. After the youths left, police were called and carried Rachel to a hospital.

The bystander identified one of the attackers as Roberts and he was

SPEECH CORRECTION

For the past few weeks, we have had several graduations of high school students in this area. As they think about pursuing an advanced education, we think they should consider going into the field of speech correction and therapy.

National Meet, June 27-29:

St. Louis Preparing For Jack And Jill Convention

ST. LOUIS — The St. Louis Chapter of Jack and Jill of America, Inc. is preparing for a large turnout of delegates from chapters all over the country for the thirteenth annual convention to be held here from June 27th through June 29th at the DeSoto Hotel.

The steering committee headed by Mrs. Margaret Summs, convention chairman, and Mrs. Lucille Campbell, co-chairman, have been hard at work formulating plans for the convention.

St. Louis is ideally situated in midwest America to be easily accessible to those members representing the eighty-seven chapters affiliated with the organization in thirty different states.

The program is planned to cover attendance by all members of the family and activities are scheduled for the fathers as well as for the children. The convention theme is "Jack and Jill Comes of Age."

At the public meeting on Friday, June 27th, civic awards will be presented to two outstanding personalities, and an original Operetta entitled "Full Steam Ahead—S. S. Jack and Jill," written, produced, and directed by Kenneth Brown Billups, will be held at Sumner High Auditorium, followed by a reception.

Other highlights of the convention will be an open luncheon at Bishop Tuttle Memorial featuring a style show, a banquet at the Starliner Hotel, and a Cocktail Party at the Riviera.

An interesting workshop program has been set up for Saturday mornings, June 28th, to include discussions on Job Opportunities, Parental Responsibility, Mental Health and Emotionally Disturbed Children.

Mrs. Maxine Starks is president of the St. Louis Chapter, and Mrs. Nellie G. Rhoulac of Philadelphia, Pa., is national president. Other national officers are Mrs. Osbeth H. Adams, Chicago, vice-president; Mrs. Odessa P. Willis, Cleveland, secretary; Dr. Ruth B. Howard, San Francisco, treasurer; Mrs. Burns A. Whitted, Washington, D. C. program director; and Mrs. LuSybil Taylor, editor of Jack and Jill Journal.

It is considered advisable for the student to have, as a foundation in speech courses in voice science, phonetics, voice training, interpretation, general semantics, public speaking, creative dramatics, and others if the needs of the individual demand them.

Voice training, interpretation and public speaking will be directed primarily toward insuring that the speech of the prospective therapist will be satisfactory. Voice science, phonetics, general semantics, and creative dramatics are basic to activities which will carried on in one or more advanced courses and in clinical work.

Basic courses in other fields should include physical and social sciences, anatomy and physiology including basic neurology, plus sufficient cultural courses to make the speech therapist a well-rounded individual.

Usually, the speech corrector is required to do 200 clock hours of clinical practical under adequate supervision.

Most of the colleges and universities having departments of speech offer the type of training the speech corrector will need.

At Goldsboro: School St. School's Accrediment Dream Come True For Wayne Co.

GOLDSBORO — (MIE) — From 1876 and earlier, in 1923, the present School Street School site was the main education center for Negroes of Goldsboro.

The first Negro School built on this site was called the Wilberforce School. It was operated by a group of Northern White teachers as a private institution until 1876. In 1877 the county bought the school and its operation from then on was public.

Graded school work on the present site of School Street School began with one, Miles Tucker, in 1832.

In the year 1894 Reverend C. Dilard, A Presbyterian Minister, took over the principalship of the "Colored School" as it was then called.

In 1923, two new elementary and one new high school were built. It was during the middle of the term of this same year that the high school, which had its beginning in School Street School, was transferred to its new home — leaving School Street School with only the first four grades, and a Miss Irene Long as principal.

The school was very much overcrowded, and double sessions became the order of the day. Nevertheless, the teachers worked untiringly and never passed up an opportunity to improve the existing condition.

In 1938 and again in 1941, School Street School sought the services of Miss Marie McIver, then State Supervisor of Negro Elementary Schools. In his effort to become accredited, but in each case over-crowded conditions and the ever-present double session, kept this dream from becoming a reality. But the School Street School P. T. A. did set aside one hundred fifty dollars in bonds to be used for accreditation purposes whenever conditions permitted.

In 1947, three additional classrooms, a lunchroom, a principal's office and two lavatories were added to School Street School—thus improving it immeasurably. A principal's office was non-existent before that year; and lavatories were housed in the basement.

The work was done by World War II Veterans under the direction of Mr. H. B. Lucas and Mr. T. L. Parks.

In 1953, a cafeteria was built. This provided the school with a larger and more modern lunchroom and a larger place for assembly. This was quite an improvement, but the double session continued—thus putting off once again the P. T. A. dream of an accredited school.

In 1956 the construction of a senior high school for Negroes was begun. By September of 1957, this new school was ready for occupancy and the over-crowded condition throughout the system was greatly lessened and double sessions became history.

It was then that the School Street School Parent-Teacher Association started again to bring into reality its long awaited dream of an accredited school. The Ass'n. started a series of financial drives early in Sept. 1957 to assist in acquiring needed supplies. Additional help came from the Goldsboro School Board.

On May 15, 1958, following a visit from the State Supervisor, Mrs. Daisy W. Robson, School Street was informed that it had met all requirements for accreditation. This closed a twenty-year struggle and brought into reality a dream of two decades.
