Nearly 500 Attend National New Homemakers Convention

GREENSBORO — Nearly 500 school girls from 15 states attended the national meeting of the New Homemakers of America held at A&T College, June 9-13.

Meeting on the general theme, "Teens With A Purpose," the youngsters heard a series of addresses, participated in roundtable discussions on matters of interest to teenage girls, elected a new slate of officers and had the time of their lives in a busy round of social activities.

Principal speakers appearing on the five-day meet included: Dr. Warmoth T. Gibbs, president of A&T College; Dr. Willa E. Player, president of Bennett College; Dr. Irvin V. Sperry, professor of Family Development at Woman's College of the University of North Carolina;

Mrs. Eireta Alexander, Greensboro attorney and Mrs. Clara Evans, chairman of the Home Economics Department and Rev. Cleo M. Mealy, director of Religious Activities both of A&T College.

Among the matters receiving special attention in roundtable discussions by the young visitors were: Improving human relations; increasing personal values; recognizing the value of education; finding career opportunities in home economics and becoming better citizens.

Lula Mae Goolsby, Mocksville, N. C., the retiring national president delivered the main address at the banquet in Murphy Hall on Thursday evening. Other social affairs included a reception given by President and Mrs. Gibbs; an outdoor Smorgasbord and vesper service at the Greensboro Country Park; "Rainbow Round the World," a program which included representation by delegates from each of the states and a dance.

New officers elected to guide the organization during the coming year included: Martha Harris, McAlester, Okla., president; Betty Jean Betts, Charleston, Mo., Janice Grinnage, Middletown, Del., and Bettie Jones, Oxford, Miss., all vice presidents; Olivia Ann Gifford, Dublin, Ga., secretary and Jerine Mercer, Fredericksburg, Va., treasurer. The vice presidents on the back row are: Bettie Jones, Oxford, Miss.; Betty Jean Betts, Charleston, Mo., and Janice Grinnage, Middletown, Delaware.

The convention was conducted under the supervision of Miss Lois Oliver, Washington, D. C., national adviser, Mrs. Marie Moffitt, Mrs. Lucy F. James, both of Durham and Mrs. Evans, shared responsibilities as members of the host committee.

Woman Seeks Judgeship Of Probate Court

DETROIT (AP) — Politics in the past few years have flung wide the gates and let several Negroes into good positions here, such as U. S. congressmen, state senators and representatives, judges and lesser jobs.

Now, for the first time in the history of the Motor City, a Negro woman is coming out to run for judge of the probate court. She is Mrs. Jessie Slaton, a practicing attorney.

Judges in all courts in the city and county are elected at large on nonpartisan tickets for a six-year term. Mrs. Slaton will have to defeat one of three incumbents.
