Lodge Says He Is Not Seeking J. Ernest Wilkins' Job

WASHINGTON — (AP) — George Lodge, director of public information at the Department of Labor, denied that he had any plans for taking over the job now occupied by J. Ernest Wilkins as assistant secretary of labor.

Reports that the White House had asked Wilkins to resign so that his position could be filled by Lodge drew the comment from the information chief that he is only trying to do the best job he can at his present post.

He said he didn't know how such rumors got started but he thought it very unfortunate. He expressed great admiration for Wilkins saying that he had been closely associated with him for several years.

Accurate records are essential to top-flight dairy production. By 1975 it is estimated that 10 to 12 million tons of fertilizer will be used annually. This would be an increase of 75 to 100 per cent over today.
