

Adam Powell Charges "Deliberate Mutilation" Of Write-In Liberal Party Votes For Him

NEW YORK, N. Y. — (ANP) — Representative Adam C. Powell Jr., who has both the Republican and Democratic nomination for Congress in the 16th Congressional district, has charged that election inspectors "deliberately mutilated ballots and failed to complete the count of Liberal Party ballots" in the 21st election district.

Powell contended that there had been a "conspiracy to violate the election law" by the inspectors' refusal to count write-in Liberal Party votes.

He called upon State Attorney General Lofkowitz and New York County District Attorney Hogan to investigate the matter immediately.

City Councilman Earl Brown, who is the Liberal Party candidate against Powell in the November election, was thoroughly tounded by Powell in the primaries by a plurality of 10,000 votes for the Democratic nomination.

Should evidence be unearthed of a vote "plot" against Powell in the matter of Liberal Party votes, it could make a close race between the two men for the Liberal Party nomination also.

POINT OF ORDER

QUESTION: What should a member do when another person raises a point of order during the proceedings of a meeting?—B. H. M.

ANSWER: According to parliamentary law, the motion point of order may interrupt the speaker. Therefore, when a point of order is raised, the member on the floor should take his seat.

The motion "point of order" is designed to correct errors when they are made. And hence they should be raised immediately when the mistake is made.

Suppose that a motion is being discussed and it is discovered that the motion did not get a second. The person who discovered the error may say: "Mr. Chairman, I rise to a point of order." Then the presiding officer says:

"State your point." Following which the member (standing) replies answers:

"My point is that the motion did not get a second."

Next the chairman says, "Your point is well taken. Is there a second to the motion?"

After the motion gets a second, then debate takes place upon it.

According to Substitution, Amending the motion by substitution means that the proposer suggests a change in the wording by striking one word or phrase and inserting in its place another word or phrase. It is anticipated that the proposed change in wording will make the proposal more agreeable to the members.

For example, suppose the following main motion is before the house: "Mister chairman, I move that we assess each member $5 for the annual banquet and dance." When it comes time for discussion of the motion, it might be evident that the members think this assessment is too high. Consequently, the members won't let the motion come to a vote.

It might occur to another member that a much smaller assessment would be more agreeable to the members. Hence, he might rise and say:

Committee On Housing Hits Ghettos

NEW YORK CITY (ANP)—The New York State Committee on Discrimination in Housing this week declared war on the "ghetto pattern in housing being imposed on most cities and their suburbs."

The committee called upon the State Republican Platform Committee to include a plank to support extension of anti-bias legislation to the area of private housing.

In part Joseph M. Robinson, chairman of the legal division of the committee stated: "Residential segregation has increased actually in the last 10 years."

"Discrimination in housing threatens to undo many of the very real gains achieved in recent years under New York's broad code of anti-discrimination legislation, a code that has served as model for the entire nation."

"Discrimination in housing aggravates intergroup tension, increasing the danger that it will erupt into violence."

He warned further that once a community had been sold to its residents on the assurance that it was for "whites only" or "Christians only" bitter, diehard resistance was likely to be offered to any minority-group family seeking to escape the twin pressures of the housing shortage and restrictive real estate practices.

"Mr. Chairman, I move that we amend the motion by striking out the 'seventy-five dollars' and putting in its place the word 'thirty-five dollars.'"

It is very likely that the group will favor this amendment and vote its passage. Hence, when it comes time to vote on the main motion as amended, it should carry without any difficulty.
