GOOD BREAKFAST GOOD FOR YOU—Food specialists tell us that breakfast cereals may be served in many ways. They can be mixed and matched in numberless combinations. For example, crisp cereal may be sprinkled into cooked cereal; ready-to-eat cereals may be combined for contrast in flavor, color, texture, a "steamed cereal bowl" or a preference tray of both hot and ready-to-eat cereals may be set out so that each family member or guest may choose his favorite or make his favorite blend.

The sugar may be granulated or powdered, light or dark brown, or it may be in liquid form as maple or corn syrup or molasses. And for variety, the sugar or syrup may be combined with the milk used on the cereal, ready for pouring. The milk used on breakfast cereals may be plain, of course, or it may be varied in flavor and form. It could be milk flavored with chocolate or butterscotch sauce or maple syrup or crushed fruit or preserves may be blended with the milk to use on hot or ready-to-eat cereals. Don't say no to the idea until you have tried it.

In addition to the suggestions above, mention must be made of the part played by fresh, frozen, dried, or preserved fruits in enhancing the eye appeal and taste appeal of breakfast cereals. Fresh whole fruits and berries may be used as topping, or layered in the cereal. And dried fruits may be cooked right with the hot cereals, or in their stewed form, may be used as toppings on either hot or ready-to-eat cereals.

But regardless of the way or ways in which tasteful servings of cereal, milk, and sugar are prepared, the nutrient contribution of the dish to the day's nutrition requirements is of great importance. Let's start the day off by eating breakfast, and by all means—cereals—they are good and good for us.

Rare Camera Donated To Morgan State

BALTIMORE, Md.—A prized relic of Admiral Peary's celebrated discovery of the North Pole has become the gift of Morgan State College.

The camera used by Matthew A. Henson, Peary's companion on that historic day of April 6, 1909 when the Stars and Stripes flew on top of the pole, has been given to the college.

Mrs. Matthew Henson, widow of the late explorer, presented the camera as a memorial to her husband, a native of Charles County, Maryland. Herbert M. Finley, retired Baltimore teacher and Arctic correspondent, made the presentation on behalf of Mrs. Henson, with Dr. Carl Murphy, Chairman of the Morgan Board of Trustees, accepting.

A second enlargement shows a sled constructed by Henson for the party's return from the North Pole and the third shows Peary's group on its way back from the Pole after the discovery which won America the international prize of four centuries.

The gifts will keep alive for Morgan students the memory of the explorer of whom Peary once said, "He is a better dog driver and can handle a sled better than any man living, except some of the best Eskimo hunters themselves."

Henson's career as an adventurous explorer started when, as a youth he came from Washington, D. C. where his family had moved shortly after his birth in August, 1866, to Baltimore and shipped out as a cabin boy on an ocean steamship bound for China.

His widow is now living in New York where Henson made his home during the latter part of his life.

The Arctic memorabilia will become a part of the college's growing gift collection which is housed in the Morris A. Soper Library.

N. C. Highway Patrol Cited BY A Bureau

For its part in relaying storm warnings and assisting with emergency communications during Hurricane Helene, the North Carolina State Highway Patrol was recently cited by the United States Weather Bureau.

A "public service" award, prepared in Washington and signed by the chief of the Weather Bureau, was presented to patrol commander James R. Smith by Raleigh weatherman Chick Carney.

Carney remarked during the brief presentation ceremonies Helene was by far the most devastating natural disturbance to ever strike anywhere with no loss of life. He commended the highway patrol for its hour by hour cooperation during the storm's course.

Patrol headquarters assigned a state trooper to the Raleigh-Durham weather station as a study emergency while Hurricane Helene lashed at coastal areas on her way northward. Other patrol cars cruised constantly in the area warning residents of the danger.

The weather bureau award will be displayed in patrol headquarters in Raleigh. Copies will later be sent to troop headquarters in Greenville, Fayetteville, Greensboro, Salisbury and Asheville, Col. Smith said.

Draft Board Warns Wake Delinquents

The registrants listed below are delinquent with the Wake County Selective Service Board No. 93. These delinquents have failed to comply with Selective Service Regulations. A statement is being published in the newspapers and announced over the radio calling attention to the fact that delinquency subjects a registrant to immediate induction and urging these delinquents to communicate with this board immediately in an effort to remove the cause of delinquency.

Members of the registrants' families and others acquainted with them are requested to render assistance in locating these delinquents. These delinquents are urged to immediately contact this board.

If they do not do so, the Selective Service Board will be compelled to order them for induction in the forthcoming call.

A Father's Devotion, Sacrifice In Vain; Son Confesses Killing

NEW YORK (AP) — An 18-year-old Negro college student this week confessed to killing his father and stuffing his body in a trunk.

Young Hicks, a student at Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, confessed several hours after he was picked up in Van Courtland park with a gun, apparently the murder weapon, in his possession.

WANTED TO QUIT SCHOOL — A freshman at the college Hicks said he killed his father because the father had refused to let him quit school and had recommended him for cutting classes. The confession substituted a statement from Leslie Couillard, 17, a friend of Hicks, who admitted he helped Hicks stuff the body into the trunk. Couillard is being held as a material witness.

The senior Hicks was a radio operator on American Export Lines. Bernard Smith, secretary-treasurer of the American Radio Association, a friend of the dead man said "His one interest in life was that son. He took everything he had to keep the son in school. He sacrificed the pleasures of life ashore for the vast loneliness of the sea as a radio officer in order to earn enough money to give his son the college education that had been denied him."
