Medical Association Survey Shows Most People Want To Select Medic

CHICAGO — (AP) — More than three-fourths of the population of the United States want to choose their own doctor. In addition they want to assume all or part of the responsibility for paying their doctor bills. These were among the findings in a survey conducted among a sampling of the adult general population by Opinion Research Corporation, Princeton, N. J., for the American Medical Association. The purpose of the study was to explore attitudes about the choice of physicians.

The study also showed that 80 per cent of the population believe the right to see the same doctor regularly is of vital importance. Eighty-nine per cent believe that medical care in this country has improved over the past 20 years. Half of those persons ascribe the improvement to more and better research and advances in medical science.

Seventy-six per cent of the people said they wanted to choose their own physician; 48 per cent saw no difference in whether they or someone else chooses their physician; 2 per cent preferred to have someone else choose; and 3 per cent had no opinion.

In answer to further questioning, 92 per cent of those surveyed felt that free choice would give them more confidence in the doctor; 24 per cent thought doctors would take a more personal interest in them; and 79 per cent believed they would have less trouble getting the doctor to make a home call.

Concerning the right to see the same physician all the time, 88 per cent felt this right to be very important. Of the 12 per cent who did not feel such continuity to be of vital importance, 8 per cent saw no difference in whether or not they saw the same doctor every time, and 4 per cent gave other comments.

In answering still another set of questions, 92 per cent felt such continuity would give them more confidence in the doctor; 92 per cent thought doctors would take a more personal interest in them; and 84 per cent believed they would have less trouble getting a doctor to make a house call.

When queried about the main advance of a regular doctor, those interviewed gave a variety of reasons. Sixty-two per cent cited the physician's knowledge of their medical history. They said, "He knows your system inside and out from dealing with you regularly; he knows what you've had."

E. Gill Is Speaker At CP & L Plant Rites

LUMBERTON—State Treasurer Edwin Gill paid tribute here Friday to a lifelong friend and fellow attorney, W. H. Weatherspoon, during ceremonies in which Carolina Power & Light Company honored a major generating plant in honor of its veteran general counsel.

Gill described Weatherspoon as a man who "exemplifies the now somewhat old-fashioned virtues of thrift and of living within one's means, and of endeavoring to blaze one's own trail without waiting for a subsidy or a handout."

He traced Weatherspoon's steady rise to high positions of service in the legal profession, in the electric industry, and in religion and education in North Carolina. Gill recalled the days when the two practiced law in Lenoir County, and described Weatherspoon's leadership even as a young attorney there.

Weatherspoon began his law practice in Gill's hometown of Lenoir County in 1907, after working his way through Wake Forest Law School. He represented Scotland County in three sessions of the State Legislature and was co-chairman of the Lenoir County Exchange. He joined CP&L in Raleigh in 1929, rose to vice president in 1931, and to general counsel and to the board of directors in 1935. He has been an active Baptist for 50 years, and has served as trustee of Meredith College for 40 years.

PLAQUE UNVEILED

Climax of the day's program was the unveiling of a bronze plaque naming this the "W. H. Weatherspoon Steam Electric Generating Plant." The plaque was unveiled by Weatherspoon's grand nephew, William Hardy Weatherspoon of Durham. A brother, Dr. J. E. Weatherspoon of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary at

Faubus Cries Out Against Bombings In Dixie States

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Orval Faubus said last week "there must be no room in our hearts for the sort of prejudice which has been the cause of bombing incidents in other states."

"We must do everything humanly possible to see that no such incidents occur in Arkansas and the governor who blocked the opening of four Little Rock high schools to prevent integration.

Faubus made the statement following an anonymous bomb threat against religious institutions in the state. He added: "If a bombing incident does occur within this state, I will use all powers at my command to bring the culprits to justice."

One of Little Rock's synagogues have been threatened with bombings and a Hot Springs school got a second bomb threat last Monday.

Writer Says Negroes "Don't Cry No More"

CHICAGO — The moral climate in which Negroes created blues music in answer to suffering has passed, and although integration has its problems, "they don't cry no more," according to an editorial in the current issue of Ebony Magazine.

According to one of the last of the shouting blues singers, Big Bill Broonzy, who died recently: "Back in my day people didn't know nothing else to do but cry. They couldn't say about things that hurt 'em. But now they talks and gets lawyers. They don't cry no more."

Today's Negro, says Ebony, is too busy getting an apartment in the project to sing. He is too intent upon qualifying for a job in the plant to be blue.

Talking, which Broonzy said Negroes couldn't do in his day, is getting this generation far more through legal means than did silent suffering in days gone by.

The old blues have died and an era has ended, says Ebony, and Negroes no longer weep.
