Raleigh's eight National Greek-letter organizations should benefit mutually this year as a result of the reactivation of the Raleigh Pan Hellenic Council. Under the presidency of W. A. Rainbow, the Council has been re-organized and has begun work for this year. First proposed activity of the Council is an all Greek Social Hour at which time Greeks will gather for fellowship and for discussion of possible jointly sponsored activities during the year. This Social Hour is still in the planning stage, but should take place within a few weeks.

TWELVE MELTS MET
The Twelve Melts Pinnocle Club met last week at the home of Mrs. Ethel Lytle in its first meeting of the year. The full membership was present. This included Mesdames Ethel Lytle, Roberta Lightner, Janet Marchena, Alberta Livingston, Gila Harris, Gertrude Harris, Catherine Winters, Ernestine Hamlin, Flo Turner, Victoria Moore, Rosalie Williams and Marguerite Cook. Prizes for top scores in pinnocle were won by Mesdames Marchena, Turner and Williams.

RHYTHM KIDS COMING
The well-known Rhythm Kids of the State School for the Blind and Deaf will be presented by the PTA of the J. W. Ligon School Monday evening, November 10 at 8 p. m. Everywhere the Rhythm Kids appear, they are enthusiastically received as great audience-pleasers. Not only, then, will patrons be well entertained Monday night, they will gain satisfaction from knowing they are helping the Ligon PTA in its one money raising effort of the year.

Speaking of money-raising efforts, the Ligon School PTA can venture out into projects this year which heretofore were impossible because of the huge debt connected with the school's electronic organ. The payment of that debt had concerned the group for about five years. It is finally paid and for the first time attention can be focused elsewhere.

Not only is the organ paid for, the athletic department has been heard thanking Raleigh patrons on every hand for their support of the athletic program to the extent that for the first time in many years this column would like to chime in with its bit of thanks also.

BOOK REVIEW
Approximately twenty-five persons were on hand last Sunday afternoon to hear Mrs. Julia Delany review "The Windup Women" by Anya Seton. Mrs. Delany was introduced by Mrs. Marguerite Cook and gave a resume of the book. Following her presenta-

Marian Anderson, UN Delegate, Guest Speaker At A Luncheon

WASHINGTON (AP)—Peoples of the new countries are proud of their freedom and the United Nations can help make them stay free, declared Miss Marian Anderson, United States delegate to the U.N.

Miss Anderson was guest of honor at a luncheon sponsored by the Capital Arena Association for the United Nations at the Shoreham hotel Thursday in observance of United Nations Week.

"UNITED IN THEIR HOPES"
The new U. S. delegate pointed out that her experience has taught her that peoples of the world are united in their hopes and aspirations. They all want a better life for their children, equal respect for themselves and peace in the world.

Admitting that the role of diplomat is entirely new to her, the famous singer said it was something she had never dreamed of. It seemed so far beyond her. But it is her greatest desire to do something worthwhile while in the service of the United Nations and she will give all she has to it.

Giving a progress report of her work in this new position, Miss Anderson observed that whatever concerns the people of the U. S., no matter how large or how small the country they represent, definitely concerns us. People, no matter what country they come from, are as charming as they can be, she added. This makes one wonder why such feeling can't be permanent. But continued the U.N. delegate, we must remember that each delegate is trying to do for his country what we are trying to do with ours.

500 HEAR HER ADDRESS

Approximately 500 people of many nationalities crowded the main ballroom to attend Miss Anderson's address. Included was a group of foreign students representing several different countries including Africa and the West Indies. There were also four Guatemalan Market women in their traditional costumes who are on a tour of the United States under the International Educational Exchange Program of the Department of State.

Olive Hill School Holds Big Parade

MORGANTON — Between 4,000 and 5,000 parade lovers lined the streets of Morganton recently to watch the colorful Olive Hill High School Seventh Annual Community Parade. The Parade was led by J. V. Morris, Principal of the Olive Hill School; John H. Carson, Chairman of the Homecoming Committee; Chambers of Commerce Officials, Morganton's Mayor, H. L. Riddle, and the Morganton Fire Department.

Bands from the Stephens - Lee High School, Asheville; Lincoln Heights High School, Wilkesboro; Freedman High School, Lenoir; Ridgeview High School, Hickory; and the high stepping Olive Hill Band of Morganton, furnished the music.

The parade, Burke County's largest, started its journey from Olive Hill High School and worked its way through the heart of Morganton. The gigantic parade with its beautiful floats, covered a distance of one and one-half miles. The annual event, which is a must see in this area of the state, preceded the Olive Hill-Hickory football game. Hickory won the classic by a score of 22-0.

Priests And Laymen Must Show Interest In Problems Of Negro

WASHINGTON — Priests and laymen desiring to convert Negroes to Catholicism must first show an interest in their personal problems, the first National Conference on Convert Work was told here.

Father Patrick C. Mulloy, leading convert-worker among Negroes in the St. Louis archdiocese, told some 100 priest experts on convert work that "we cannot be interested only in the soul of the Negro and ignore his body."

The three-day conference was sponsored by the Paulist Fathers and held at St. Paul's College here, the society's major seminary. Its primary purpose was to pool the information of America's leading convert workers and thus further the apostolate to American non-Catholics.

Among the participants were Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle of Washington, Auxiliary Bishops John M. McNamara and Philip M. Hannan of Washington, and Father William A. Mitchell, C.S.P., the Paulists' Superior General.

The importance of convert work among Negroes was stressed at one of the conference's seminars as result of a request by Archbishop O'Boyle. In a luncheon address at the conference he stressed "the need for intensifying the apostolate to the Negro people of our country." He cited the large numbers of Negro converts in the Church at present; but added that "we have only begun to work."

"The Negro knows," the Archbishop said, "that in the Catholic Church he has a true and interested friend whose concern is for the temporal and spiritual welfare of our Negro brethren."

Father Mulloy told the ensuing seminar on "Approaches to the Conversion of the Negro" that in working with Negroes "it is a mistake to look immediately for converts."

"It is necessary first to show an interest in the personal problems of the Negro," he stated, "as foreign missionaries do with lepers and the sick. In our country we must show interest in the Negro's problems of housing, unemployment and racial discrimination. Then they will get to know that they have a true friend in the priest. Conversions will follow."

Miss Ruby Dunston Winner In St. Monica's Essay Contest

Below is the first place winner of an essay contest conducted by St. Monica's Church in observance of Catholic Youth Week Oct. 26-Nov. 1. Miss Ruby Dunston is a senior in Cathedral Latin High School and resides in Method. YOUTH, SPACE, AND SANCTITY BY RUBY DUNSTON

Today, more than ever, the world is faced with many difficulties and to combat them is required many skills. Many adults have decreased in playing their major roles and youth must step up to take the stand.

Those of us among the youth of the world face at present the rising problems of civilization, education, and modernization. As most of us take our high step most of us are eager and ready to accept the responsibility of the future.

Yes, we are ready to send forth a challenging hand but—are we capable? Do we have the ability? Can we, the promise of tomorrow, live up to and fulfill what is expected of us?

The world was recently and abruptly awakened to a startling realization when Sputnik came into existence. In the days of tomorrow we youth will have to take a position in helping to seek for betterment towards this extraordinary plight. The tremendous responsibility of improving and enlarging progress towards outer space begins now talented students, including those in elementary schools, diligently pursuing various scientific courses.

To conquer the outer limits of space is a lofty challenge for youth. Yet youth know that there is more to life than reaching for the moon. The wonders of space, in all their glory, cry out to a Supreme Being who is God with whom all men wish to be united. Union with God is had, not by scientific knowledge, but by something called sanctity or holiness.

Holiness comes by leading a life of prayer, using God's graces, and keeping His Commandments which are possible for all youth. Even with all the latest scientific discoveries we may never reach the most distant star, the youth of today, can be confident that with sanctity we have heaven in the grasp of our hands.

Etchings, Bingo, a very popular game elsewhere has become a political, social and religious issue throughout communities in many states, says Life magazine. It meets the need of thousands of people who have the urge to gamble in the "little leagues." One opponent of bingo resignedly says, "I suppose that gambling is really inherent in everybody's general makeup. No doubt, if the time ever came when there were only two human beings left on earth, one would say to the other, 'I'll bet I'll live longer than you will!' And the winner, at the moment he wins, probably will shout Bingo!"

LITTLE LEROY SWANN, of Semora, N. C., the seven-year-old second grader of Mrs. Louise Swann, is the champion in his community at the game "odd man win." Mrs. Swann states that too often married men with children to support come to her house demanding that she force Leroy to give them their money back, because he cheated in the game.

The CAPITOL CITY JAZZ CORP. is owned by a colored Raleigh syndicate. The big shows and deluxe theatrical productions that recently appeared at the local city auditorium were handled exclusively by the Corp. management.

ELLIS CORBETT, director of publicity for A&T COLLEGE, reminded this "column" that it would be under fire if the A&T homecoming side attractions flopped financially. SUITCASE STUFF mentioned the sadness of the Hopping A&T homecoming event that once paired the mammoth top attraction that is promoted by the WINSTON-SALEM TEACHERS COLLEGE ALUMNI every year. For some reason the A&T "bryan bust" started an all out affair last weekend that still has fans around the state trying to get the revived A&T homecoming festival. ILLINOIS JACQUETS' band was booked for the homecoming dance. CORBETT says that the financial return "better be good or SUITCASE STUFF will be begging its bread."

TEACHERS COLLEGE in Winston-Salem will stage its mammoth homecoming event this weekend—the greatest college outdoor show in the east.

DILLARD HIGH SCHOOL IN GOLDSBORO HAS A LARGE WELL-KNITTED ALUMNI ASSO. Altho not highly publicized as one or two other strong high school associations it stands as a beacon light to other secondary school and college groups that have less to nothing for a makeshift setup.

THE PROGRESSIVE 1200, a strong fabulous organization that has as members a savvy and active group of talented young men of Raleigh chartered a deluxe Trailway, 52-passenger Liner, to transport the club and friends to the Capital Classic in Washington, D. C. last weekend. The club equipped the bus with an assortment of sandwiches and drinks to quench the thirst and lary the hunger of the guests. Twelve of the members and two guests showed up for the trip, but the bus rolled anyway. A suite of rooms in Washington's Dunbar Hotel were labeled "reserved" for the group a month ago and a pre-arranged social outing that would equal the festivities sponsored for the GOLDEN GODDESS OF THE BODICE, followed the occasion to one of the top social sponsorships of the pre-winter season. James Collins is president; Eldredge Black, secy, and William Lee, treas.

Miss FRANCES WINTERS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Winters of Raleigh, will reign as queen of the coming DEBUTANTE'S Ball and cousin MERCEDES WINTERS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Winters will be seen assistant. Mercedes is a student at Palmer Memorial Institute, Seaboard, N. C. Frances is a student at the CATHOLIC CATHEDRAL LATIN HIGH SCHOOL in Raleigh.

SCIPIO, man about town in Raleigh, was seen arm in arm with a very, very beautiful little thing at the LaVern Baker dance recently. TOO pretty to be a first cousin.

Two popular social matrons in High Point don't invite each other to their parties. Striving for popularity, they envy each other.

Prin. of the high school in Fairmont is Mr. Peterson, formerly of the high school in Thomasville. He has done a good job for the community with more to come. Former Prin. "Slim" McMullen, is on the staff and pushing over good projects. Missing for years, Suitcase Stuff found them, working hard as usual.

GREENSBORO — "The question in the South today should be not whether we shall have social change but how," Dr. Warren H. Ashby, professor of philosophy at Woman's College, told the Bennett College vespers audience Sunday.

In all of the present ferment in the South, Dr. Ashby stated that what is happening in the personal, inner depths of the lives of the people is of primary importance. "It is likely that from the spirit of a diseased world," he said, "our lives have become disordered, and that we have lost our balance. But with the spirit which is from God, we might understand the gifts bestowed on us by God."
