THE FEMININE FRONT

By Rosalie Williams

The Raleigh Chapter of Links, Inc., entertained the newly established chapter of Durham Links at a bridge luncheon last Saturday at 2 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Willie O'Leary Kay on New Bern Ave. Thirty-seven Links regaled themselves in the latest fashions and assembled for the gala party.

The home was beautifully decorated with palms and fall flowers. The dining room table centerpiece was white rose buds, chrysanthemums and fern.

Upon entering each Link was given a souvenir tally booklet covered in green satin with the Links' symbol of a white rose and chain on the cover. In addition to the uniquely attractive souvenir tally booklets, souvenir matches were distributed. These matches were covered in green taffeta and had the word Links written on the cover in silver metallic.

LUNCHEON MENU

Following cocktails, caterer Bill Reid served an attractive and delicious menu befitting the occasion. This included poulette of chicken, amandine, leaf spinach, Florentine Parisienne potatoes, vegetable aspic salad, hot rolls, butter, coffee, maraschino cherry cream, petit-fours, and creme de menthe.

UNIQUE PRIZES

Nine tables formed to play bridge after the meal. Prizes for high scores were pretty cocktail aprons of green taffeta and silk organza. Applied on one side of each apron was a full blown rose in white satin, the club's symbol. The name "Links" was embroidered in ice crystal beads on the aprons. The aprons as well as the other original souvenirs were real conversation pieces which bespoke the ingenuity and know-how of Raleigh Links.

PRIZE WINNERS

Within the Durham group first prize for high score was won by Mrs. Fannie Robinson and second by Dr. Helen Edmonds. Among the special out-of-town guests, first prize was won by Mrs. Eunice Robbins of Petersburg, Virginia, and second by Mrs. Irma Todd of Winston-Salem. Mrs. Gertrude Harris and Mrs. Nan Inboden were winners of first and second prizes, respectively, from the Raleigh group.

SILVER BRACELETS

Mrs. Nan Inboden, president of the Raleigh Chapter of Links presented to each of the Durham members a sterling silver bracelet. These bracelets were intricately fashioned with silver Links and a silver charm with "Link" inscribed on it.

Durham Links present were Mesdames Barbara Cook, Otella Stewart, Lola Riddick, Fannie Robinson, Mollie Lee, Hazel Rivera, Selena Wheeler, Ophelia Grandy, Julia Dawson, Mae Spaulding, Constance Watts, Dessa Turner, and Dr. Helen Edmonds.

Special out-of-town guests included Mrs. Thalia Davis Thomas, Assistant Director of the National Association of Women's Clubs, Washington, D. C.; Attorney Cora Brown, former Michigan State Senator, currently Special Associate General Counsel of the United States Postal Department, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Bessie Hines, Wilson; Mrs. Irma Todd, Winston-Salem; Mrs. Eunice Robbins, Petersburg; Mrs. Vivian Sansom, Durham; and Mrs. Ann Wright, Durham.

Raleigh Links present were Mesdames Maude Bass, Thelma Clark, Elizabeth Constant, Marguerite Cook, Julia Delany, Ernestine Hamlin, Gertrude Harris, Gila Harris, Nan Inboden, Willie Kay,

Atlanta U. Gets Grant For Science

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP.) — Atlanta University received a grant of $239,500 from the National Science Foundation for the 1955-1960 academic year. Grants totalling more than eight and a half million dollars have been made to 33 colleges and universities in support of institutes designed to help high school science and mathematics teachers improve their subject matter knowledge.

This is the third grant made by the Foundation to Atlanta University, the other two having been in support of summer institutes in 1957 and 1958.

Suitcase Stuff

By "Skink" Browning

There are nine high schools in Robeson Co. Only one plays football. Artesia High School in Columbus County—eight miles south of Whiteville has the largest high school department in the county. The school has more extra-curricular activities than most nearby city units. Principal Legrande Summeret has a strong feeling for football, but all boys are bus riders and there is practically no community, but he is not giving up the idea. He is a former high school and college star and a top-ranked student.

Whiteville youngsters at the local high school do not look forward to weekend football games. The school is larger than a number of institutions that sponsor the sport and so is the town. Boys wonder around after school hours seeking whatever recreation they can afford. The three major sports are more important now to colored youth than ever before. The highest salaried group in the Negro race is the professional athlete and it seems that local high schools should not cut the chances of the student whose aspirations are football and should furnish avenues to success for students whose financial achievement may develop from opportunities afforded them during their high school career.

Reasons for no basketball in most high schools is placed on the inadequacy of the community and usually that argument is sold to the faculty and citizens by the principal. The superintendent doesn't care. The white schools are playing. In most cases the principal has a reasonable argument; but you'll have to check his record from high school through college to understand his position.

First, you can't ignore the fact that it is difficult to support a football program, therefore, it takes a well-rounded personality to head the program. It is seldom that nature provides one individual with enough positive human traits to solo the setup. So personalities are pooled in order to get a standard operating machine.

The principal heads the group. He must have the required characteristics which involves selecting the right man for the right job. If the principal happens to be a bluffer the whole program is sunk from the beginning. One experienced man in the group can quickly tell whether his opening discourse is based on reality or on defense. In most schools, men who lay no claim to having experience in promoting successful football programs, delegate that authority to a head coach or the most experienced "right arm," without "dribbling in" after the pattern is set. Periodical conferences with the principal are absolutely necessary and a "double check accounting system" is a "must". A number of school football operations have hit the rocks because the money was dumped into the lap of one member of the setup—he countered with a receipt and then paid the bills at his discretion.

An overall report at the close of the year, of money collected and paid out, is a cover up, which is an old trick that is usually practiced by "would-be slickers" or a novice who thinks he is blinding his associates. Football is played from week to week and a collective check-up should follow the game or shortly thereafter. Only poor operators go in the hole, same in and same out, and do nothing about it until the close of the year, then announce the indebtedness and a yearly self-arranged report.

The head man must have an interest in the program and work as hard as others to insure its success. He should be as interested as the coach in the welfare of the team, food, equipment, travel, discipline, scholarship and encouragement. His presence at most home attractions is important—and not as a guest. To be home sleep when games are played at night, or to refuse to come out in foul weather is sometimes due to lack of interest or laziness. The organization has responsibilities at every game and the head man is always in charge, unless he has a strong experienced delegate (To be continued next week).

The new building at Bladen Central Hl Sch. in Elizabethtown is a "solid sander". The cafeteria is a showplace. Everything you don't see in other school lunch refectories is there—built-in ice water fountains, television by remote control, spacious lounge room with every convenience and transparent skylights.

In the Artesia High School lunchroom, they've got salad greens cooked with country ham—and you can see the ham.

GARDEN TIME

Our students in horticulture built a float for the "Homecoming Parade" at State College last Saturday. The float of the trailer was covered with a green raffia mat, representing a football field, augmented with goal posts and a giant football completely covered with hardy red and white chrysanthemum blossoms. Fringing the two sides of the trailer were cardboard strips covered with chrysanthemums and spelling out the words, "Welcome Grads."

In back, we spelled out "Horticulture" in red and white. In all we used about 20,000 blossoms, most of which were wired to floral picks in order that they might be held securely in place. This was quite a task which was finished about 4 a. m. Saturday. The trailer was pulled by a red and white convertible adorned with two pretty coeds in evening gowns. The float placed third in the Campus Organizations Division.

I am writing about this because it was such a splendid group effort on the part of student members of our Horticultural Club. Approximately 20 boys and girls worked from 5 p. m. Friday until after 4 a. m. Saturday to accomplish the task.

If you want to undertake something of this nature for high school or college festivities next fall, why not begin preparation now? Your local florist and nurseryman, vocational agriculturist, county agent and local garden clubs will be glad to offer suggestions concerning suitable flowers that can be produced outside as a school project. Right now I can think of nothing better than hardy chrysanthemums about which I have already written.

A number of requests have been received for information concerning variety lists of tree fruits, small fruits and grapes for the home and farmstead. I will write about this next week.

"Worry is like a rocking chair—gives you something to do, but doesn't get you anywhere."
