Let's say, that the new building at Dunbar Hi School in East Spencer is about the prettiest thing in the state and leave it there. to view the new school buildings going up around the state is like watching "time" in progress. The one built yesterday "is more the beautiful, than the one built the day before.

Frequently, the school program is far behind these modern giant size edifices due to the sudden surprise in which they came. Some have rooms to spare, just the opposite of not having spare room as was the case a few months ago. A kid once could get lost in the crowd, due to the jammed-packed jungle herding that once plagued Negro public schools in the state. Now, a student or grown up will get lost in the building if someone familiar with the massive plant doesn't serve as a constant guide. One modern school plant has four lavatories on one floor. Not too recent the same school sported only two and they were out-of-doors on the hillside behind some tall Carolina pine trees.

Now the principal has a private super deluxe affair in his modern maintainence hangar about 7.30 tiled suite of offices and the Sears and Roebuck catalogue has been replaced with the finest cushioned tissue that money can buy. One principal who had never smoked, bought himself a box of Tampa scene from axe wounds.
