Bank Official Chairs Rights Organization

WASHINGTON — The Commission on Civil Rights has appointed a Rhode Island Advisory Committee and named a Negro bank official as its chairman. The announcement was made recently by Commission chairman John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State University.

Nivale Beauvien, who will head the five-member Rhode Island Advisory Committee, is an assistant manager of the Industrial National Bank of Providence, in charge of its Six Corners branch in East Providence.

He is not the first Negro to serve as chairman of a State Advisory Committee, however. Harry A. Cole, Baltimore lawyer and a member of the Maryland State Senate, was elected chairman by the other members of the Maryland Advisory Committee at its organization meeting in Baltimore on November 5.

Most of the State advisory committees appointed so far have included one or two Negro members. Some of these have been elected vice chairman or secretary, but Mr. Beauvien is the first of his race to be appointed chairman by the Commission.

Dr. Hannah said the Commission expects to have advisory committees organized in every state before the end of the year. These groups are asked to study problems of discrimination and denials of civil rights by reason of color, race, religion or national origin, within their respective states.

Although the U. S. Commission in its studies is concentrating on voting, housing and education, state committees may choose whatever fields of civil rights they desire. They are expected to report their

Catholic Bishops Reaffirm Teaching Mission Of Church

WASHINGTON — The Catholic Bishops of the United States in an annual statement released here recently reaffirmed the teaching mission of the Catholic Church.

The right needs to be asserted, they said, because of a growing tendency to relegate "things of the spirit . . . to the realm of pure fantasy."

"Materialism and secularism . . . have made heavy inroads on the official and popular thinking of men and nations," the prelates declared.

The statement was signed by 12 episcopal members of the Administrative Board of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, the bishops coordinating agency. It was approved by the entire hierarchy, who met for three days in closed sessions at the Catholic University of America here.

The meeting ended Friday.

In attendance were most of the 220 U. S. archbishops and bishops, including the two cardinals, Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York and James Cardinal McIntyre of Los Angeles. They represented the 33 archdioceses and dioceses of the United States.

In the 1830-word statement, entitled "The Teaching Mission of the Catholic Church," the bishops maintained that the Church's teaching authority encompasses "the total content of the deposit of faith revealed by Jesus Christ" as well as "those moral principles which flow from the natural law and the positive law of God."

Secularists and materialists, the prelates continued, "have seized upon the democratic principle of popular suffrage and have distorted its meaning into a denial of all rights save those which derive from majority opinion."

"To the contrary, our American founders, throwing off the bonds of tyrannic oppression, asserted as a right for themselves and their posterity, life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

Liberty for the Church, the bishops continued, "must be broad enough to encompass her unfettered competence to proclaim the truth of her mission."

They said "it is an enduring tribute to the wisdom of the men who founded American freedom that they placed no hindrance in the way of the Church as teacher."

The Rhode Island committee will hold its first meeting in East Providence on November 17.

Mr. Beauvien was born in Lancaster, Pa., but his parents moved to Rhode Island when he was six years old. He attended public school in Providence and the University of Rhode Island.

A science major with ambitions of being a chemist, Mr. Beauvien interrupted his college education in his junior year to enter military service. He spent three years from 1942 to 1945 in the European Theatre with an Air Force operations unit, reaching the grade of sergeant.

He entered the banking business following a stint with the finance section of the Veterans Administration. His first job was as a loan interviewer. While employed by the bank he took courses in banking at Boston University.

He is married to the former Hester Williams of Providence. They have two sons, 10 and 11 years of age.
