HOSPITAL REPORTS

Physicians at St. Anne's Hospital and the hospital's administrator said Bullock received proper attention. W. Gordon Poole, administrator, declared that licensed physicians did all that appeared necessary in treating the man's wound. Poole said that the hospital's house physician who treated Bullock the first two times advised him to return if he felt any pain or thought he needed further treatment.

Poole said he had conferred with the house physician, Dr. S. E. E. E. and attending physician, Dr. C. L. Hunt, about the case. "The treatment given the first time appeared to be all that was indicated by the nature of the wound," Mr. Poole stated.

The administrator said that both the attending and house physicians are "very capable and well equipped to handle cases of this nature."

Dr. Hunt said that he was called in by the house physician, but the patient was dead when he reached the hospital. That was the first time that he had seen him, Dr. Hunt reported.

HARRISON PLAYERS TO ENTERTAIN WITH "OUTWARD BOUND" JAN. 16

PETERSBURY — The Richard B. Harrison Players of the Norfolk Division of Virginia State College will entertain the college community with their presentation of "Outward Bound" on Friday, January 16, 1959. The performance will be staged in the auditorium of Virginia Hall at Virginia State College, Petersburg, at 8:00 p. m.

When the play was presented at the Norfolk Division in November, it was warmly received. This drama offers an unusual challenge to both actors and director. The Harrison Players have accepted this challenge and therefore, we may expect a fine evening of theatre.

"Outward Bound" examines one of the most universal subjects known to man's existence — life after death. It deals with a group of oddly assorted characters aboard an ocean liner bound toward some unknown destination. The arresting action which follows is depicted with a temperance and humor uncommon for a play embracing such solemn subject matter.

A wonderful interpretation is expected from the very capable Harrison Players under the aegis of Stanley Wilson, who possesses a wealth of preparation and experience in the theatre arts and who has achieved distinction in directing college theatre.

The production will initiate a guest exchange between the two divisions of the college.

The Theatre Guild, under the direction of Felicia D. Anderson, considers "Outward Bound" quite and appropriate play to begin the New Year and one in keeping with the aim that the Guild is emphasizing this year — to offer a pleasing variety of worthy dramatic presentations and thereby achieve its goal: "The best in amateur theatre."

Girl Tells Of A Rare Blood Ill

CHICAGO — A twenty-one year old girl tells of a rare blood disease which she has had since she was about one out of every 100,000 human beings, in the January issue of Ebony Magazine.

In a by-lined article, "The Living On Borrowed Time," Marjorie A. Walker of Huntington, West Virginia, tells of the rare and chronic blood disease which has necessitated over 200 blood transfusions as the only treatment for the disease.

Miss Walker was born with sickle cell anemia, which doctors said she inherited, defect of red blood cells, and must be hospitalized at least five times a year.

Between crises, Miss Walker lives a normal life as a coed at Marshall College in Huntington, where she is studying to be a speech therapist.

She is secretary of the Marshall International Relations Club, and has a part-time job as a student assistant in the Political Science Department.

Miss Walker, who won a scholarship to Marshall as the result of a prize-winning essay on "What Americanism Means To Me," hopes that a cure or a better treatment will be found for the disease. Medical specialists say few victims of sickle cell anemia live beyond thirty years of age.

Daughter of a Baptist minister, Miss Walker teaches Sunday school, and with faith and a prayer, she says, she is concerned not about herself, but others.

Jesse Jones Sausage Company Stages Annual Yuletide Fete

The employees of Jesse Jones Sausage Company were treated to their annual Christmas party at the plant, located near Garner, last Saturday morning at 9:30. The event was sponsored by the company's management.

Earl T. Jones, business manager, told The CAROLINIAN that all of the employees donated money amounting to $296 dollars for Raleigh's two YM-CAs to be used as membership for as many young men.

The affair was opened with prayer by Melvin Davis, a long-time worker at the plant.

Santa Claus, in the person of J. Garland Jones, vice-president, was on hand to greet the employees, their wives or husbands and children.

The company gave $10 a year in excess of four years of employment to those persons who warranted it. Of the 15 original workers of Jesse Jones when it opened in 1937, 11 are still on the payroll. Silver dollars were presented.

A bonus of 3 per cent of the annual salary was given to each employee.

The children present were each a Santa Claus stocking.

The idea of an annual Yuletide party was conceived by the Jones brothers.
