A group of sportsmen relating their experiences at the home of "Skeets" Long in Hillsboro last week, listened with open ears to James "Beef" Washington as he told of being caught unearmed by a bear in the wild woods bordering Houston, Texas. He and the bear locked up in a do-or-die struggle in which he wound up victorious.

Earl "Skink" Washington grabbed a deer by his leg and threw it out of joint.

PATTERSON TAKES OVER IN ALABAMA

The new governor took the oath of office after a three and a half hour parade in chilly but clear weather. Thousands of spectators lined the long parade route leading up to the reviewing stand on the steps of the State Capitol but few Negroes were seen.

Patterson, who will not take office officially until 12:01 a. m. Tuesday to climax his swift climb from political obscurity in only four years, devoted much of his inaugural speech to the integration issue.

The former Alabama general attacked the "unconstitutional usurpation" of states rights and vowed "unyielding opposition" to further efforts to break down racial barriers in Alabama.

"I will work in every way possible with the other states, particularly the southern states, to form a common front, so that we can better protect ourselves from the unlawful actions of the federal government," he said.

Patterson said that white and Negro children "should have equal school facilities, but they must be segregated. . . (and) I dedicate every capacity to preserving segregation in the schools."

"There can be no compromise in this fight. There is no such thing as a 'little integration.' The determined and ruthless purpose of the race agitators and such organizations as the NAACP is to bring about as fast as possible an amalgamation of our society. . . If we compromise or surrender our rights in this fight, they will be gone forever, never to be regained or restored."

Detective Lt. W. G. Maddrey said Benningfield admitted the slaying, claiming he was asleep in the front room of the house when he was awakened by Mungro fighting with his sister.

Benningfield said he picked up a butcher knife and went into the room where the fight was taking place. The defendant advanced on him and was stabbed in the chest. Mungro was rushed to Raleigh Funeral Home for an ambulance.

Mungro was dead when the ambulance arrived, however, Maddrey reported.

The detective said Mungro had no weapon of any sort on his person when the police arrived on the scene.

Benningfield signed a statement for officers, saying that her brother warned Mungro to stop slapping her. The knife was not found, police said.

Judge Albert Doubt set Benningfield's bond at $5,000.

Mungro, who was employed by R. L. Martin Concrete Company, is survived by his wife, mother, and several brothers and sisters.

Funeral services will be held in Maiden, his home town, Sunday.

Battleboro

BATTLEBORO—The Vocational Agriculture Department has held an initial meeting designed to acquaint and interest farm families in the construction and improvement of mail boxes and posts in the area. The department is cooperating with the United States Post Office, Battleboro, Mrs. Clyde Benson, postmistress.

She states that many patrons have requested a mailbox clean-up program in the fall or winter season of the year when crops have been harvested and more money is available.

The postmistress pointed out that each family should have an individual mail box properly labeled, and a permanent post and good box will protect the mail against wind, snow, rain and people meddling. Some of the other points emphasized by Mrs. Benson were the use of a movable base to facilitate highway department workers, use of wood or concrete post, seek advice of carrier as to best location for box, and to have members of family to use ink when addressing all mail.

James L. Bullock, president of the young Farmers Class and others present said that they would use their influence to help spread the idea of a beautiful countryside with improved mail boxes and stands.
