

AME Church Plans A New Training School For Clerics

CHICAGO — (ANP) — To provide standard seminary training for clergymen who have not had the opportunity for formal college, an in-service training institution was opened this week.

ALL WELCOME
The Institute — The Chicago Ministers Institute — sponsored by the annual conference of the AME Church in cooperation with Payne Theological Seminary, Wilberforce, Ohio, is open to all ministers regardless of religious affiliation.

The Rev. S. S. Morris, dean of the institute which is quartered in Coppin AME Community Center, said the institution is designed mainly for clergymen who serve smaller churches.

"We have quite a few young men in our denomination who have not had the opportunity for formal college seminary work," he said.

"Mademoiselle" Mag Chooses Three Students

GREENSBORO — Announcement that three Bennett College students have been named to the college board of Mademoiselle magazine, New York fashion publication, has just been received here.

They are: Misses Anne Faison, senior, home economics major, of Dudley, N. C.; Gladys Henningway, junior, clothing major, of Georgetown, S. C.; and Linda Brown, sophomore, French major, Akron, Ohio.

Selection of the trio was based upon their having successfully performed the first of three editorial assignments made by the magazine. Successful completion of the remaining two will make them eligible for consideration for one of the 20 guest editorships which the publication will assign in the spring.

Guest editors will spend the month of June in New York City helping with the preparation of the annual fall college edition. In addition to housing and meals, they will be paid a salary for the period and will be guests at a number of social and cultural affairs to be arranged in their honor.

The Sweater Line For '59 Is Revealed

Sweaters today are so versatile, so well-styled, they can be worn on any occasion from a picnic to a party, and all stops in between.

Interesting new sweater materials include for blends and textured nylon. Looped, nubby and deep, rich plush, both pull-over and jacket styles are popular for sportswear, while for dressier occasions there are angora-like orlons, printed in colorful floral patterns on white backgrounds.

Many sweaters feature such high-fashion details as big brass buttons, tie collars, ribbed insets and dickered-appliqued trims. While sweater-and-dress ensembles in which the print in the dress is repeated in the collar, cardigan) rate high again for spring and summer, the BIG silhouette NEWS is the short, loose sweater that tapers perfectly with the high-rising skirts.

With such variety to choose from, it's no wonder that we're all "sweater girls". As sweaters show up more and more frequently in our clothes budgets, it will pay us to heed the advice of the makers of Mum, who say, "Care for your sweater—better."

FIRST-AID FOR SWEATERS PROGRAM

KEEP SWEATERS SOFT Rinse them well after washing. Add a softener to "hard" water. A special soap which may be used in cold water will help prevent shrinkage—keep fibers soft and pliable.

PRESERVE SHAPELINESS After washing, lay sweater flat on a towel and re-shape to size. When dry, fold carefully and slip into a plastic bag. Store flat in box or bureau drawer.

PREVENT STRETCHED NECK LINES Sew two rows of round elastic inside necks of pullovers.

MAINTAIN "SWEETNESS" Air sweaters well after each wearing. Use the Mum deodorant which is designed to stop perspiration.

ODOR This is of particular importance. Not only do sweaters tend to make you perspire MORE, but they seem to absorb and retain odors longer than most other types of clothing.

FIX SNAGS caused by necklaces, bobbie pins, bracelets. Stretch sweater gently if the pulled thread fails to slip back in place, draw it to wrong side and knot.

REPAIR BROKEN BEAD TRIMMING on decorated sweaters. Catch thread on wrong side. Resew last bead for extra security.

SAFEGUARD FIBERS. Do not allow sweaters to become heavily soiled, but wash them frequently so that only gentle handling is necessary. Do not twist or rub. Wearing dress shields in sweaters will help protect them from perspiration damage.

A daily music hour is scheduled in the library from 12:30 to 1:30 p. m. Held in the Herron Browning Room, a comfortable lounge room on the second floor, the listening sessions have met with a favorable response from students and faculty.

Because the library does not have a record collection, the grant will enable the library to establish a core collection of records, and thus expand the services offered by the library.

The ACRL, a division of the American Library Association, at a recent meeting in Atlanta, awarded sub-grants to 75 colleges from funds received by the United States Steel Foundation Inc. The C. B. S. Foundation, Inc. and Nationwide Insurance. Application for the grants was received from nearly 300 institutions with requests totaling more than $160,000.

"JUST LIKE HOME" — Miss Barbara Buris, New Rochelle, N. Y., a senior in Sociology at A&T College, says following a "quick" snowstorm which hit Greensboro last Friday morning. The brief flurry left just as quickly as it came and a brilliant sun shined day followed. She commented that the weather in Greensboro this winter has been like that of her hometown—plenty of snow and low temperatures.

Wheeler Resigns Presidency As

4-H Club Foundation Of NC Stages Its Annual Meeting

GREENSBORO — A Durham businessman who had led the 4-H Club Foundation of North Carolina, Inc. since its organization in 1950, stepped down last week.

H. H. Wheeler, president of the Mechanics and Farmers Bank of Durham, announced his decision to retire from the presidency of the 4-H Club group at the annual meeting held on Wednesday at A&T College. He stated that pressing business matters plus a desire to give others an opportunity to serve in this noble effort were his reasons for his withdrawing from the office.

In his final report Wheeler stated that the Foundation had raised $14,843.86 during the eight years of its operation. Most of the funds have been spent in the construction of the modern John W. Mitchell 4-H Club Camp, located at Swansboro in Onslow County.

The board of directors elected immediately J. W. Jeffries, district agent for the A&T College Extension Service, to fill the vacancy. He will assume the office following his retirement on February 23.

Other new officers elected at the meeting included: W. J. Kennedy, Jr., recently retired president of the North Carolina Mutual Life Insurance, Durham, who was elevated to first vice-president; and Mrs. Emma Johnson, Gaysburg, second vice-president.

School Principal Quits Under Fire

PHILADELPHIA (ANP) — The principal of an elementary school which has been the center of a controversy for three weeks following an alleged attack on a seven-year-old Negro girl, has announced her resignation, effective Jan. 31.

The principal, Miss A. Reaga Mullen, has been pressed by two community parent groups charging her with "indifference and alleged incompetence."

The attack on the child by an unidentified man last October 23 was the cause of considerable public indignation. Concerning this incident parents of the child accused the principal of "a general lack of interest and disbelief."

The NAACP, through its executive committee, presented to Dr. Allen H. Welter, superintendent of schools, a nine-point bill of particulars.

In the bill there were listed nine alleged incompetencies charged to the principal. The last article on the list, the cause of most of the public indignation, was her handling of the alleged lavatory attack by an unidentified man.

Parents of the child accused the principal of indifference. On the other hand, the Board of Education praised Miss Mullen highly for her work in the public school system, and said that her professional record is excellent.

Harry Golden To Address UNCF 13th Annual Alumni Conference

NEW YORK — Harry Golden, author of the current best-seller, "Only in America," and editor of The Carolina Israelite, will be the Saturday evening banquet speaker at the 13th annual United Negro College Fund Alumni Conference. The two-day meeting will be held Feb. 7 and 8, at Bennett College, Greensboro.

Mr. Golden's humorous, satirical comments on the American scene have been widely read. His unique publication, printed in Charlotte, lists some of the nation's most distinguished men as subscribers.

UNCF graduates from many sections of the country will attend the meetings. The delegates are volunteer workers, and alumni directors and students from UNCF colleges, all of whom will participate in the annual college fund appeal.

Workshop meetings will be held to discuss methods and means of increasing alumni support for the 33 member colleges. Harold R. Harding, assistant director of the American Alumni Council, will serve as workshop moderator during the Greensboro sessions.

Dr. Willia B. Flayer, president of the host college, Bennett, will deliver the welcoming speech. Morehouse College President Benjamin E. Mays, newly elected president of the fund, and W. H. Trent, Jr., its executive director, are also listed as speakers.

"Trenton Six-er" Nabbed In Robbery

NEWARK, N. J. (ANP) — John MacKenzie, one of the defendants in the famed "Trenton Six" murder case of 1948, was arrested last week for robbery.

According to the police, MacKenzie and an accomplice are alleged to have taken a half-gallon of wine and an undetermined amount of money from Anthony Sapp, Jr., 46, bungled it in such fashion that it was hard to believe that he had planned it.

Hood threatened to blow up the bank unless the official handed him over the money. The official told him to wait, and then turned in an alarm.

After he was arrested, Hood told police that he was unemployed and burdened with debts and hoped to get the money to wipe out his financial worries.

The "Trenton Six" case became famous throughout New Jersey and the nation when MacKenzie and five other Negroes were accused of killing a white second-hand furniture dealer during a holdup attempt.

Convicted with the others, he sentenced to die in the electric chair, he subsequently won an appeal for a new trial, and was later cleared of the murder charge by the jury that convicted two of the six.

By his own confession, wife was denied by the other five defendants at each trial, MacKenzie placed himself about 125 feet from the murdered man's store as a lookout while the crime took place.
