Serviceman's Son Nixed In School Bid

GOLDSBORO—M. Sgt. Fred Archer, a Negro stationed at nearby Seymour Johnson AFB, lost his bid Monday to have his 8-year-old son assigned to the all-white Meadow Lane School.

The action of the Wayne County Board of Education in assigning the boy to a Negro school, however, paved the way for Archer to seek reassignment of his son to a white school under North Carolina's Pupil Assignment Law.

Board members told Archer that he could not request reassignment to a white school until after his son had been assigned to a Negro school. This

President Eisenhower, Gov. J. Lindsay Almond and other leaders expressed gratification that there were no flareups or violent crowds Monday when 21 Negroes entered seven previously white schools in Norfolk and Arlington.

The day passed without an incident reported. It could well have been a near normal school day except for the quiet crowds of curious spectators and the swarm of reporters and photographers who gathered at the schools to record the historic event.
