Six Bennett Students Off To Mt. Holyoke College

GREENSBORO — Six Bennett College students will leave this weekend for South Hadley, Mass., where for two weeks they will be enrolled as exchange students at Mt. Holyoke College.

They are: Misses LaVonne Barbour, of Annapolis, Md.; Demetric Carstarphen, Oak Hill, Ala.; and Anita Duckett, Roanoke, Va. — all seniors, and three juniors—Misses Gloria E. Brown, Bronx, New York; Jacqueline Herbin, Greensboro; and Laura F. Sawyer, Salisbury.

Bennett Tests Will Cover 11 Prep Centers

GREENSBORO—Bennett College will administer cooperative group examinations for high school juniors in eleven centers during February and March.

The examinations will be given again this year under the auspices of the United Negro College Fund in 265 centers throughout the country and more than 5,000 candidates are expected to take the tests.

The tests, which are available to those students seeking scholarships and admissions to any of the fund's colleges, will be scored and interpreted by the Educational Testing Service of Princeton University.

The following are the dates and places and times for the examinations which Bennett will administer:

February 23 — Hillside High School, Durham, 9:30 a. m.; 24—William Penn High School, High Point, 9 a. m.; 25 — Atkins High School, Winston-Salem, 9 a. m.; 26 —Carver High School, Winston-Salem, 9 a. m.; 27—Dudley High School, Greensboro, 9 a. m.; 27—Howard High School, Georgetown, S. C., 1 p. m.; March 2—Langston High School, Danville, Va., 9 a. m.; 3 — Dunbar High School, Lynchburg, Va., 10 a. m.; and 4—Addison High School, Roanoke, Va., 10 a. m.

Representatives of Bennett will also supervise the examinations to be given in Los Angeles and San Francisco on dates to be announced.

Bishop Gomez Presses Fight For FEPC Bill

CLEVELAND, Ohio—(AP)— Bishop Joseph Gomez, of this city, presiding prelate of the Fourth Episcopal district, A.M.E. Church, was a principal speaker Wednesday at the State Capitol in Columbus, before the Senate hearing on the Administration - backed Fair Employment Practice bill.

Bishop Gomez praised Gov. Michael V. DiSalle for giving his sanction to the measure in his message to the joint session of the Ohio Legislature during which the Governor stated: "There is no valid reason to wait any longer. This is an area in which we should have action now."

Echoing Gov. DiSalle's position, Bishop Gomez stated: "I'm confident that this session of the Legislature will allow Ohio to take its place among those states that have accepted the fact that the protection of civil rights is a fundamental part of our ever-present drive to protect and extend human rights under the Constitution."

Registration will begin on Tuesday morning, January 27, at 9:30 a. m. in Page Auditorium.

HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN OF ENGLAND meets West Indian Student: Her Majesty the Queen is shown about to sign the Visitors' Book in the Vice Chancellor's Room at the University of Bristol which she recently visited. Looking on is George Odium of St. Lucia, British Guiana, president of Bristol's Student Union and Miss Marjorie Lord, Lady President of the Union. Her Majesty the Queen and Prince Philip (far right) toured the University and the Queen opened the new Engineering and Science building and named it Queen's Building. On his return to the West Indies, Odium intends to teach or enter public affairs.

It is not too late to make a resolution for the new year. I can't think of a better one than resolving to do a better job of insect and disease control in 1959. Here are some pests we can control at this season of the year.

Bag worm on Juniper—examine your plants, remove and destroy the bags. Sprays and dusts are not effective at this season.

Red Cedar "apple"—this is an alternate host disease which spends the winter stage on the red cedar and the summer stage on the apple. Destroying the brown "apples" now will destroy the source of infection and protect your apple trees and those of your neighbors. This is especially important in commercial apple growing areas.

White Peach Scale—a number of specimens of privet hedges have been brought in showing heavy infestations of this troublesome insect. It also attacks the peach (thus the name) and is difficult to control. On privet, spray with 3 per cent dormant oil. Make two applications two weeks apart. Do not use oil when the mean temperature is below 50 degrees F.

Cottony-Cushion Scale—This is a sucking insect and is especially bad on pittosporum and gardenia (Cape Jasmine). Spray with 2 per cent dormant oil for best results. Observe same precautions as for as temperature is concerned.

Canellula Leaf Scale—Spray with 2 per cent white-oil emulsion. This season (dormant or resting) is the best time to control this insect. Observe temperature precautions.

For scale insects on ash, oak and maple use 3 per cent dormant oil spray at the rate of 3 gallons of oil to 100 gallons of water. Observe temperature precautions.

Moles destroy few plants or bulbs by feeding on them; however, they raise unsightly ridges and may uproot plants while searching for food, mostly animal matter. Trapping is best for small areas. Larger areas can be cleared by removing the small animal life on which they feed. Chlordane applied at the rate of one-fourth pound to 1,000 square feet is usually effective.

The life expectancy of an American is now more than 70 years, compared to 48 years a century ago.
