Open To Negroes: CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

ARMY NEEDS TEACHERS
More than 1,300 teachers are needed for the coming school year in Army-operated schools overseas, according to E. L. Joyner, civilian recruiting director at Fort Bragg. The biggest need is for primary grades teachers who have experience.

This hundred of one-year posts are available in Germany, France, Italy, Japan and Okinawa. Salaries range from $1,980 to $5,265 a year, with transportation and housing provided in most areas. Director Joyner is in charge of recruiting teachers from the two Carolinas.

MINISTERS NEEDED
Dr. Clifford P. Morehouse, editor of the Episcopal Church Annual, states that the Episcopal Church will soon face a shortage of clergy unless more young divinity students are trained. There exists at the moment an acute shortage of qualified clergy to work among Negro parishes. A number of larger churches have found it necessary to operate without a curate (assistant rector). The situation appears more acute as the church membership grows.

Through the United States there are 331 Negro parishes, and last year it was reliably reported that there was the pitifully low number of 35 Negro students in eleven theological seminaries. The majority of them are not scheduled to finish school in time to take up the slack caused by retirement and death.

Meanwhile, there are more than 70,000 Negro church men, women and children looking to the seminaries for future religious guidance. In 1942 there were 198 Episcopal priests, and in 1957 there were only 35 men studying for the ministry.

There must be a number of young men who are interested in becoming Episcopal clergymen. If so, why not investigate the opportunities open to you.

A & T College Credit Union Lists Growth
GREENSBORO — The credit union at A & T College has made outstanding progress during its 20 years of operation.

This was borne out in a report issued this week by B. W. Harris, treasurer of the Educational Workers Federal Credit Union at the college. The organization had just mailed to its members the annual year-end dividend checks, totaling more than $1,500, a six per cent slice of the profits.

The year-end report also shows that the year-end deposit total of $37,238.88 as compared with $43 at the end of its first year of operation in 1938. The membership has grown from a charter group of 20 in 1938 to 294 during last year.

Harris states that the organization has loaned nearly a quarter million dollars during the twenty year operation.

BAND ECHOES

BY JOSEPH L. EDWARDS
This year the instrumental music department will again conduct a music aptitude test for the pupils of the fourth grade. The results of last year's tests revealed many a pupil that would have been overlooked otherwise. To the pupils that score high on the tests interest blanks are given to be taken home and signed if there is a desire to join the band class. There is no obligation assumed when the interest blank is signed. It is merely a statement that a parent is interested in having a child take music.

In all cases the classroom teacher has final say concerning the entry of a child into the program. This is a policy because the classroom teacher is familiar with the child's progress in regular lessons and is in a position to know whether a child can afford to miss a given subject at the time that the band class is supposed to meet.

The tests cover four general areas, they are: tonal memory, rhythm, pitch, and volume. The testing material is on a record and the children have a special answer sheet. No previous knowledge is necessary for those being tested. The test is a measure of natural talent. The results are not considered final by no means as expert.

We have a plant disease clinic at State College which renders a real service to the people. In an average year, over 2,000 specimens are received for diagnosis and recommended controls. Unfortunately, many of the specimens arrive in such poor condition that positive diagnosis is difficult. Observe these instructions for collecting, packing and mailing:
Send a representative sample. When it is necessary to send an entire plant, dig it out so that the root system will not be damaged. In many cases, the trouble may be in the root system but expressed in the top growth.
Fleshy fruits and vegetables should be collected in the first stages of disease infection rather than advanced stages. Cankers from shrubs and trees should also be collected in the first stages of infection. Branches and twigs that have been dead for several months are useless for disease identification. All samples should be sent in fresh and showing as many stages of the disease as possible.
Wrap plants in moistened paper and cover with waxed paper or aluminum foil—don't over-crowd or crush. Vegetable and fruit specimens should be wrapped separately in waxed paper as moisture may hasten decay in transit. Pack in a rigid container to prevent crushing. Identify package both inside and out—inside label should not come in contact with moisture.
Address package to Plant Disease Clinic, Box 5397, State College Station, Raleigh. Time your mailing so that package will arrive Monday through Friday, rather than over the weekend.
If you live near Raleigh, your specimens may be delivered directly to the clinic, Department of Plant Pathology, Gardner Hall, State College.
This is a good time to send in soil samples for analysis. The longer you delay the later you will be receiving a report. Get a carton from your county agricultural agent or agriculture teacher. Full instructions are printed on the carton. Follow them carefully. Be sure with a soil sample.

DOUBLE TROUBLE
ALL-ELECTRIC MEDALLION WAY!
How to wash and dry clothes when the weather's rough poses double trouble for a busy homemaker. But not when she selects the all-electric Medallion Home standard to help whisk away this problem.
If trouble doubles on your winter washdays, trim it down with the automatic magic of an electric washer and electric dryer. Let them swirl, spin and fluff your clothes to a whistle-clean finish while you find better things to do.
And, where space is limited, you'll find the happy combination of an electric washer-dryer an equally pleasant solution.
When washday double trouble disappears, you've taken another step up to all-electric Medallion Living. So make the Medallion Home standards your guide to gracious, modern living in your present home or in your plans for the future.
