Howard Rand, Well-Known Tailor, To Be Funeralized At Raleigh

Howard Rand, longtime familiar figure on Hargett Street, as a tailor, died Monday morning, at his home, 1000 Mark Street. Even though he was known to have been ailing for sometime, his death was not expected by his many friends.

He was born in Wake County and attend the county schools. He operated a tailor shop, on Hargett St. and around the city for approximately 30 years. He was also credited with having trained many persons in the art of tailoring.

Funeral arrangements were not complete at this writing. It was disclosed that final words would be said at Payetteville Street Baptist Church, of which he was a member and served as an usher. The Rev. M. F. Booker was slated to say the

Dean Brown's Protest Heard At Conference

SALISBURY — Dean Frank Brown of Hood Theological Semi-nary, Livingstone College, ledged a protest at a meeting of the World Council of Churches, held in Montreal, Canada, recently.

The protest was made at a session of the Faith and Order Commission and pointed out the inequities in the program, as related to Negro participation. He pointed out that there were only four persons of color, representing from five to eight million Negro Christians.

Dean Brown was not too sure that the absence of Negroes was due to the fact that they had not been invited. He was sure of the fact that they had not been placed on the program nor given any spot of leadership.

He had the following to say, "This is a body representing the Christian world, in conflict with itself, in a world in serious trouble. True ecumenicity is that which is lived and practiced, the koinonia; sharing, participation, fellowship, community, teaching and by example. It was recommended that a study be made of the situation and that the present policies and practices of the Faith and Order Commission relative to organization and planbut only after Evans shot ning to be carefully gone into, with first, Matthews disclosed. an eye toward implementing the order handed down to local churches.
