PRESIDENT FACES WEST. THE DINOSAUR PARTY STUDYING MUMMIES MEN WILL DIG

President Coolidge will spend his vacation in the west, in response to many invitations. He should drive a big automobile from Kansas City to Seattle down to San Diego, fishing here and there. He would see millions of Americans that like him.

The biggest wars are soon forgotten. Over a direct cable from the United States to Germany, opened last week President Coolidge wired President Hindenburg his hope that "this additional means of communication will promote mutual understanding and good will between the two countries." And President Hindenburg replied most politely, Germany rid of an expensive fleet, expensive standing army and expensive Kaiser, intends to business and grows ahead more rapidly than any other country in Europe.

Mrs. Henry Fairfield Osborn entertained friends at the Museum of Natural History in honor of the tyrannosaurus, in Dinosaur Hall.

That monster is 17 feet long from his beak to the end of his tail, 18 feet high at the hips, 21 feet around the waist, with bones that weigh more than two tons.

He was a powerful animal, but couldn't last because he didn't have a brain big in proportion to the size of his body.

Civilization has developed a more powerful creature, which is the two-legged billionaire, able to control and command the work of 200,000,000 men for one day.

That billionaires will soon be numerous and the interesting question concerning him will be, "What about his brain?" Will it be big enough to keep him safe?

The learned Dr. Sack, of Heidelberg University, studying thousands of Egyptian mummies, finds that high living killed off rich Egyptians as it kills off rich Americans now.

Foolish eating, lack of exercise, especially lack of deep breathing, have through the centuries been keeping the soot off the boiling pot of civilization.

Mummies of the fifty dynasty show signs of tuberculosis, affecting the spine, and gout, swelling the joints.

Where money is, men will dig. It was proved in Italy before architects had learned how to make great domes like that on St. Peter's hold themselves up as they rose in the air. One dome was built and filled with earth to support it, as it rose, until the sides met at the top. Putting in the earth would be much less expensive than taking it out. So they mixed the earth beneath the dome with small coins of a total value much less than the cost of removing the earth. When the dome was finished the population was told it could bear away the coin-bearing dirt. The great dome stood empty.

This country last year imported more than $80,000,000 worth of precious stones, $5,000,000 more than the year before. And those purchases were made without the assistance of the extinct race of bar-tenders to each of whom a large diamond was as necessary as a white apron.

M. Millet, French socialist, would tear down the honey bee's reputation built up by Marterink, Lubbock and many others, back to Aristotle.

The bee is a dull, mechanical creature, says Millet; it does not know that it pollinates flowers and blossoms, does not even know which flowers have honey, thinks only of getting sugar.

You can say the same of our human honey bees of industry. They build up civilization, make wealth, culture and culture possible, but they don't know it, or don't care. They are busy "only looking for sugar."

But like the bee, they are doing the work for which the Lord created them, and that's sufficient.

CAN CONTROL CUTWORMS BY POISONED BAIT

Home gardeners are studying the seed catalogues, clearing up the garden spot and with commendable energy are planning now to supply the family with a constant supply of fresh succulent vegetables as a result of their labors.

"Meanwhile," says C. H. Brannan, extension entomologist at State College, Raleigh, "the ever present cutworm is waiting, somewhat hungrily, for the first of the succulent shoots to appear from the ground. Then he goes, will get busy. He wants only the finest of the plants—those that are strong and growing well because in these will he get the food supply that he needs for his voracious appetite."

"The cutworms often do tremendous damage, by feeding on the young plants. The worms cut off the plants at or near the surface of the ground. Few farms or gardens have escaped serious damage by these pests. But they can be controlled. By using the following formula, the worms may be wiped out in a short time: Wheat shorts or wheat bran, five ounces; Paris green, 1-1/2 ounces; clean molasses, half pint and water one gallon."

Mr. Brannan states that the shorts or bran should be mixed with the Paris green while dry and then this is wetted with a mixture of the water and molasses until damp enough that it will fall in small lumps about the size of oat grains when sown about the plants.

This poisoned mash is scattered on the ground around each plant about the same time that they are set in the open ground. If the plants are not to be eaten, a small application of the mash made at intervals should be applied.

It is best to scatter the poisoned mash in the evening and the gardener must remember to keep his hands away from the poisoned places.

WESTERN NORTH CAROLINA IS FORGING AHEAD

Raleigh special of March 26. To Twin City Sentinel: Western North Carolina is entering into its greatest period of development, so believes R. C. Ellis, Spruce Pine business man, who accompanied former State Senator J. E. Burchison of the same city to Raleigh yesterday to make a formal offer of Mr. Burchison's game preserve in Mitchell county to the state before the first meeting of the new board of conservation and development.

Mr. Ellis believes that the newly enacted Sutton game law will bring about one of the most beneficial steps yet taken for the mountain section. "We have in our section," he continued, "thousands of acres of land which are primarily suited for hunting grounds, which form a great attraction for visitors."

"In the past our game has not had sufficient protection, but the new law should supply the needs in that direction. The advent of good roads through the mountains is drawing thousands of self-visitors and nothing will hold them better than good hunting facilities."

"Last year thousands of visitors were attracted to Senator Burchison's deer preserve and with the advertising that it will get under state supervision many more will come. The stock of deer in this preserve will provide a nucleus from which other preserves may be started."

"Good roads have also given a great boost to the production of minerals in our section, which has become one of the leaders in the country in supplying mica, feldspar and other mineral products."

Miss Flo's Corner

A Question Box for Ladies. By MISS

LOOKING INTO THE MIND OF A MAN

Dear Miss Flo: Do you think it is good policy for a wife to let her husband see how much she loves him, and how necessary he is to her happiness, or is it better for her to appear indifferent?

When a man knows for a certainty that a woman's heart is his, is he likely to undervalue it?

I have only been married a short time, and I am anxious to keep my husband's love. Please advise me—C. A.

A man's attitude toward love undergoes a radical change on his wedding day.

We all know that before marriage the more difficult a woman is to win the more that man promises her and the more a woman is to win the more the man pursues her, and the more a woman throws herself at a man the more ardently he dodges her.

During the period of courtship the thing that is of more importance to him than anything else in the world is the state of mind of the girl he loves. It's a wonderful, sentimental adventure and he follows all her moods. When she is coy and difficult it arouses all his sporting inclinations, and when he succeeds in taking her away from his rivals, and she finally surrenders to him, he is thrilled with a sense of being a conqueror, irresistible hero.

But marriage is a different story altogether. A man expects the capture to end the chase, and he doesn't want to have it run on the balance of his life. He expects marriage to finish all doubts, fears, heart aches and speculations about the woman he loves, so that he will be free to give his undivided attention to his work.

For that reason, the tactics that won a woman a husband will not serve to hold him, and the wife who tries to prove her husband's interest to her by her indifference is more apt to land in the divorce court than to strengthen her position in the man's heart.

For men do not want to keep wondering about their wives. They want to be sure of them. The man who is married to a woman who keeps him in constant doubt of her affection and keeps him on the verge of a nervous breakdown with jealousies and doubts, and suspicious does not think he has drawn much of a prize in the matrimonial gamble. On the contrary, he is likely to think that he has been taken in, and he isn't at all above having been so badly mistaken in his judgment.

The wise woman never hesitates to let her husband know how much she loves him, how necessary he is to her happiness, because her love makes the strongest claim she can possibly have upon him. Many a man who has made an unsuitable marriage with a woman with whom he had no real companionship, and many a man who has outgrown the woman he married in his youth, is kept faithful to her by the knowledge of her devotion to him, for few husbands are heartless enough to hurt a wife who worships him, or leave the woman whose whole life is bound up in him.

Nor is there any allure of mind or person that appeals to a man so much as just the certainty of a wife's love and the knowledge that if all the world turned against him, she would still remain loyal and true.
