Outstanding Happenings of Week Gathered from Everywhere Condensed for the Busy Reader

London, Oct. 24.—The royal family has been plunged into mourning by the sudden death of the queen's brother, the Marquis of Cambridge, which occurred after an abdominal operation.

Fire of undetermined origin Monday morning destroyed the Baskerville Stores in the downtown business district of Winston-Salem. The blaze was under control shortly after 7 o'clock after having inflicted losses of approximately $50,000.

A party of seven sponsored by St. Louis organized to have congress present Col. Charles A. Lindbergh with a congressional medal for his New York to Paris flight and provide him a medal of $1,000 for his flight as a decorated army officer.

Baltimore, Oct. 24.—S. H. Lewis Warfield, president of the Seaboard Air Line railway, died here tonight following an operation for double hernia and a blood clot in the heart. Mr. Warfield had entered the hospital under the name of Foster, therefore few of his friends knew of his illness.

United States engineers this week have begun surveying preliminary to the recommendation of the war department as being for outlet of water in the Lake Pequot from Wisconsin to the sea. It will be desirable to the same time when use could be made of the deeper channel and what the savings would be in freight rates.

Washington, Oct. 24.—The presidential candidacy of Senator Norris of Nebraska was brought to the foreground today by a group of western Republican independent leaders, which succeeded at a conference in discussion details of farm relief legislation. Senator Borah of Idaho reiterated his support of the Nebraskan.

Asheville, Oct. 23.—Members of a sheep posse early this morning raided a remote section of the mountains of Henderson county, arrested Fred Anderson, outlawed member of the "Black Legion" clan. Anderson was brought to Asheville under heavy guard. He has been living the life of a hunted animal since he fled from a party of officers in Anderson Cove several weeks ago, killing a deputy sheriff in addition to being charged with assault with intent to kill, he will face charges of violating the prohibition law.

Former Premier Lloyd George, in a disarming speech in London Monday, predicted the most terrible war in the world's history unless the nations make up their minds to keep justice and protection from established time and not from force. The salvation of the world lies in the broadening and liberation of the powers of the League of Nations, he said, the only thing which could assure permanent peace and added that the strength of the allied nations is more formidable than in 1914, the only weakness being in the ranks of the defeated armies.

Senator Simon D. Fess of Ohio, was arrested at the White House last Thursday that President Coolidge had taken him severely to task for publicly and repeatedly declaring that Mr. Coolidge would be renominated next year by the Republican national convention. The Ohio senator said the president was displeased with his statement, because he feared that the country would gain the impression that he was talking to Mr. Coolidge. "From my conversation with the president," Senator Fess asserted, "I must admit that I come away with the impression that the president will not consent to be drafted."

Raleigh, Oct. 22.—The state had a cash balance of $19,030,471.48 in its treasury on September 30, Governor McLean reported yesterday. The cash balance on August 31 was $17,561,778.92. While there was a shrinkage in the amount of cash belonging to the state, the total current and funded debt was decreased, the report shows. On August 31, the current and funded debt amounted to $162,455,600; on September 30 one month later, it stood at $162,444,600. Receipts this fiscal year to date in the general fund total $5,674,637.74, while the warrant disbursements for the first three months of the current fiscal year aggregated $3,080,096.88. The balance this fiscal year to September 30 totaled $1,999,123.81.

Washington, Oct. 21.—Every address made by cabinet member, general, admiral or other official henceforth must be carefully weighed and considered before delivery, it was learned here today. This form of censorship has been imposed, it became known, as a result of the recent controversy between General Summerall and the White House which led to his peremptory recall from a western speaking trip in which he was exposing discreditable housing quarters of American soldiers. The temper of the White House was revealed in the scolding which was administered to Senator Fess of Ohio, when he called there yesterday and was taken to task for assuming to speak for the president in connection with the 1928 nomination. Hereafter there must be reflection upon the administration or congress and most specifically no propaganda for the procurement of appropriations at the next session of congress.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 23.—Success of the Republican party at the next general election is threatened, and the agricultural program will be jeopardized, Governor Adam McMillan of Nebraska declared in a public statement today, unless what he described as the proposed plan of Senator Borah to gain control of the western delegates at the 1928 national convention is challenged. Governor McMillan, declaring he is an advocate of farm legislation and a believer in the economic soundness of the McNary-Haugen bill, sees the success of the farm program placed in jeopardy by "the widely propagated move of Senator Borah." This will happen out, however, Governor McMillan says, because it is entirely out of harmony with prevailing farm sentiment in the west. His repeated attempt to control delegates from the western states in the 1928 convention likewise will fail. "Not only the western and southern farmers, but farm-minded men in all walks of life, want a national administration that is sympathetic with agriculture, inflexible on its programs, and courageous enough to lead the development of a new national policy aimed to promote farm stability and prosperity. Agriculture states are in a better position to secure this now than they have been at any time in the past 50 years. To accept seriously the program which Senator Borah seems to be heading, would mean throwing the chance away," thinks Governor McMillan.

25,000 DISABLED SOLDIERS CARED FOR BY RED CROSS

In the army, navy, and marine corps camps and in the government hospitals where lie 25,000 disabled veterans of the World War, the American Red Cross has assisted an average of nearly 24,000 persons each month during its last fiscal year.

The organization's annual report, from which these figures were taken, show a diversity of service conducted during that period for members of the nation's defense forces and for the great army of disabled veterans in hospitals.

The national organization maintains special services in the hospitals, where in many cases trained medical social workers are provided to help the veterans solve their personal problems and also to assist medical authorities in procuring social histories and other data essential to the correct treatment of certain cases. This information is procured through local Red Cross chapters, of which there are 3,500 in the country.

Without the entertainment provided by the Red Cross, the long days in the hospitals, where many veterans will remain the rest of their lives, would even be more dreary and monotonous. During the last year, the organization provided more than 25,000 entertainment and recreational programs. Medical authorities state that this phase of the Red Cross program is almost essential to the welfare of the patients.

Not only at the hospitals and camps but also at the various offices of the veterans' bureau, this Red Cross service is extended. Liaison officers, maintained at these offices, act as the personal representatives of chapters to assist them in straightening out difficult compensation and disability claims, and to settle special problems in connection with procuring hospital treatment for veterans.

For the men in the service, the organization maintains a "field service" at the camps and training stations. These field workers provide recreation for the men in hospitals, and assist them with their family and other problems. They also give officials close co-operation in procuring accurate and dependable information about home conditions of men applying for special privileges or needing special attention. An average of 8,709 men in the service were assisted each month during last year. The service is similar to that which the organization carried on during the World War for American soldiers, sailors and marines.

"Yes, Willard Mack is right, Luckies are best," says Paul Berlenbach

Willard Mack, Noted Author, Producer and Actor, writes:

"We people of the theatre are, as a rule, extremists. This is the reflex action from overworked nerves. When a man smokes forty cigarettes a day, as I do, he must be sure of his brand. I smoke Lucky Strikes because I have found they are soothing to the nerves and at the same time they cause no throat irritation. My voice is always in perfect condition and I am never troubled by any coughing which might be annoying to me in my work as an actor."

You, too, will find that LUCKY STRIKES give the greatest pleasure—Mild and Mellow, the finest cigarettes you ever smoked. Made of the choicest tobaccos, properly aged and blended with great skill, and there is an extra process—"IT'S TOASTED"—no harshness, not a bit of bite.

"It's toasted"

No Throat Irritation—No Cough.
