Outstanding Happenings of Week Gathered from Everywhere Con- sidered for the Busy Reader

Miami, Fla., Nov. 7.—The Miami Herald today says that Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan, announces her candidacy for congress from this district. The announcement was made from Madison City, Iowa, where the daughter of the commoner then was in the course of a lecture tour. Representative W. J. Sears, encountered, generally is expected to make the race again. He defeated Mrs. Owen last year by a small margin.

Washington, Nov. 4.—Formal complaint charging Harry F. Sinclair and one of his agents, Henry Mason Day, with conspiracy to tamper with the jury which was hearing the criminal oil conspiracy charge against Sinclair and Albert B. Fall was issued today by United States Commissioner Turnage. A warrant against Sinclair also was sworn out, but subsequently District Attorney Gordon said this action had been a mistake and that the warrant had been revoked. It developed, however, that the warrant simply was held in abeyance pending final action by the grand jury which is investigating activities of detectives of the Burns agency in shadowing members of the trial jury.

Clarksdale, Miss., Nov. 4.—Bishop Warren A. Chandler, of Atlanta, presiding officer of the North Mississippi conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in session here, tonight further explained a reference to the Ku Klux Klan he made at this morning's session. In asking the question in the assembly: "How many belong to the Ku Klux Klan?" Bishop Chandler asserted, tonight that he did not have in view a "probe" of the Klan, but desired rather to urge the members of the organization to "help protect their own church schools so they can become as good as the Catholics." "If you don't do this," the bishop added, "then the next best thing you can do is take off those night gowns and go about facing the world as naked as Adam and Eve."

New England, with a death list of at least 150, was dragging itself out Monday from the wreckage left by the floods of the last few days. The water was receding except in Connecticut. Snow and freezing weather caused considerable suffering in many sections. There was a food shortage in some Vermont communities and efforts were being made to relieve this with supplies sent by airplanes. A plane landed food and medical supplies in Montpelier. Much attention is being devoted to the prevention of disease in the flooded areas. Basements were being cleared of mud and water-soaked rubbish, residents were warned to boil their drinking water and premises were being disinfected. Railroad service has been practically restored. The affected area comprises largely the New England mill district, which, due to lack of power, was idle today.

Sparta, Tenn., Nov. 5.—Entries in the log kept by Captain Hawthorne C. Gray, army aeronaut, of Scott Field, Belleville, Ill., today bore mute evidence of his third, and fatal attempt, to ascend in a free balloon to a height never before attained by man. Slipping slightly forward in the basket of the balloon, with an oxygen mask over his face, Captain Gray was found dead in the tree tops of a mountain wilderness near Sparta early today, after his descent there yesterday afternoon. Army officers and others who gave him instruments a cursory examination, said they believed that only death's battle for the captain's life, 43,000 to 44,000 feet above earth, had cheated him of the honor. He sought. How the intrepid balloonist stood in the basket of the balloon yesterday afternoon and heard the well wishes of radio stations at St. Louis and Cincinnati, was told in the log. The trip began at 2:23 p. m. from Scott Field.

Paris, Nov. 8.—Ten years ago today the first American soldiers killed in action in France fell under enemy fire. Three men of the sixteenth infantry met death that night when a raiding party of Germans was sent over into the front line trenches at Artois in Lorraine, about 10 miles east of Lunenburg, two weeks from the day the first American troops entered the line for the first time. The sector had been quiet since the beginning of the war and was used by the French chiefly as a rest sector. One battalion from each infantry regiment of the First division was sent into the line to get its baptism of fire on October 30, 1917. The second battalion of each of these regiments went into the line on the night of November 8. As they were making their relief, always a ticklish time, a German bombardment began. Under cover of a heavy barrage, a German raiding party seeking prisoners entered the sector occupied by company F of the Sixteenth infantry. Corporal James Gresham and Privates Merle D. Hay and Thomas Enright of this company were killed during the raid.

Bishop Mouzon and 18th Amendment

Methodist Divine Says Government
Never Intended Enforcement of the Law

The government at Washington never intended to enforce the 18th amendment to the constitution, declared Bishop Mouzon in an address to the Western North Carolina Conference in Asheville last Friday. "Some of the politicians are dry for policy's sake, and not because of conviction," continued the bishop, who was addressing the conference on the subject of "Christ's Ability to Confront the Scribes and Pharisees."

Taking as his text "The Common People Heard Him Gladly," Bishop Mouzon developed the idea of the intellectual authority of Jesus over other teachers of His day. He cited many of the questions that were put to Jesus, and His ability to answer them. He said that one trouble with most ministers was that they were too formal and entered into too many fields that they knew nothing about. He admonished the brethren to keep the church and politics separated, but not religion and politics. He asked the question: "What would conditions have been after the war had we been infested with wide open saloons?" and remarked that "we are hardly able to enforce the prohibition amendment and that the government at Washington never intended to enforce it."

About Your Health

THINGS YOU SHOULD KNOW
By John Joseph Gaines, M. D.

ONE CRITICISM

A Jersey technician recently took me to task, concerning one of my articles on the colon bacillus; he stated in part that my sketch was "both harmful and misleading" and that it was out of place in a newspaper. His contention was, if I read him correctly, that the "bug" is a harmless one, its presence being determined simply to find out if other, more dangerous bacteria are present, or if fecal matter was polluting suspected specimens of drinking water. My statement was to the effect that the bacillus is harmless if in the human colon, but a very ugly customer if it gains access to the blood stream.

I have myself seen a gangrenous gall-bladder, wherein this germ appeared to be the infecting agent.

I have, myself, seen certain forms of arthritis, cured by vaccines prepared from strains of the bacillus communis coli.

I have found the colon bacillus infecting the human bladder in chronic cases, and have seen them recover with vaccines and local treatment; one case of thirty years standing. In all the above cases, there was a history of ulcerated hemorrhoids.

I cannot believe that my note of warning was "misleading" or "dangerous."

Let me mention a few eminent authorities who agree with me: Sanarelli, Willard Stone, Achard, Ben-suade, Gwyn, Schottmuller, Buxton, Schorer, Hauser, Rossing, Rolleston.

We wish to give notice that the law makes it compulsory for the sheriff to turn in to the board of commissioners all unpaid taxes on the first Monday in May, who will order levies made and the sheriff will proceed to levy and advertise property for delinquent taxes so as to settle by the first Monday in July. It is very desirable that all taxpayers get their taxes paid as early as possible.

L. M. FARTHING, Sheriff.

When you "take your relations" on week-end vacations there are many other parts of your car to be as carefully inspected BEFORE STARTING as the gasoline tank.

Your batter for example is but one of the many things that may stall you in the least desired and expected place.

Insure yourself against such a case by having us go over your car at regular intervals.

Ohlmacher. There are dozens of them; I cannot understand how a scientist of today could look upon an inhabitant of an appendiceal abscess as harmless!

I therefore repeat: If you have a rectal ulcer, or a diseased rectum, have your physician take care of the condition; the colon bacillus is a dangerous enemy, if in your blood. To deny this is to betray lack of thoughtfulness.

Father: How is it, young man, that I find you kissing my daughter? How is it, young man? Lizard! Great! Great!

"This is where you get stuck," warned the M. D., as he injected the serum.

Camel

Made for one purpose
—to promote pleasure

Camel is attuned to the mood of the smoker who seeks pleasures rather than panaceas. Offered as a cheer not as a cure.

If all cigarettes were as good as Camel you wouldn't hear anything about special treatments to make cigarettes good for the throat. Nothing takes the place of choice tobaccos.
