BORAH AND PROHIBITION

the appointment of a man who had said, "I am opposed to national prohibition," every Buchanan speaker in the United States would join with Frank Shuman in pronouncing from the rostrum that South had done his duty by failing to have a slogan on every corner. Let them not forget against the views of Frank Shuman, Buchanan's Buchanan, that a man should do his best to do his best. Like in the case of poetry, it is like a boy and his mother that he could stand bad.

I am quoting the words of Mr. Shuman to show that he agrees with Governor Smith on no prohibition views, that a man can have a good cause without being anything even the lowest creature and be respectable.

It may be suggested to Mr. Shuman that as a champion against Chief Justice Taft, we ought him to have some cause for any man who says, "I am opposed to national prohibition," as strong as the words of Mr. Taft.

Of course Mr. Taft should never be allowed to speak again. It seems to me that the power of any man can be taken away by any man or group of men who are willing to speak up for him. Better not make enemies when you are in office.

It is a good idea to keep your friends close and your enemies closer. If you are a good man, you will be a good friend. If you are a bad man, you will be a bad friend.
