L'ENVOI
By Martha Harkell Clark, in "The Home Read" (Apologies to Kipling)

When for the last article I wrote,
And the rush-hair twisted and needed, and the green grass grew, and the birds,
And the youngest maid whom has died
We shall see again, faith, we have we're to Lie down for a moon or two,
With upon a shell alcove each
To set me to work anew.

And these who were dead shall be lively;
They shall sit in a rounded chain,
Each weary and sore-tired. Marley,
So numbered poor, with us,
They shall have but misery to raw
From
With never a moment's rest,
And feet shall grow dear from aching
And never be free again.

With never a thought to missing
Any moment's rest in blithe,
When one must work for money
Or care for the housewife fair,
But each to go and ever
In a separate star alone,
May do the things she has longed to
In time that is all her own.

HOHENLINDEN
By Thomas Campbell

On Linden, when the sun was low,
All bloodless lay the unbroken snow
And dark as winter was the low
Of Iser, rolling rapidly.

But Linden saw another sight,
When the drum beat, at dead of night
Commanding fires of death to light
The darkness of her scenery.

By torch and trumpet fast arrayed,
Each horseman drew his battle-blade
And furious every charged neighed
To join the dreadful revelry.

Then shook the hills with thunder riven;
Then rushed the steed, to battle driven;
And louder than the bolts of heaven
Far flashed the red artillery.

But redder yet that light shall glow
On Linden's hills of stained snow;
And gloomier yet the torrent flow
Of Iser, rolling rapidly.

'Tis morn; but scarce you level sun
Can pierce the war-clouds, rolling dun.
Where furious Frank and Fiery Hun
Shout in their sulphurous canopy.

The combat deepens. On ye Brave
Who rush to glory, or the grave!
Wave, Munich! all thy banners wave,
And charge with all thy chivalry!

Few, few shall part, where many meet!
The snow shall be their winding sheet.
And every turf beneath their feet
Shall be a soldier's sepulchre.

Regardless of weather conditions, a more determined fight will be made on the ball weevil in Cumberland County than ever before, reports the farm agent.

Mrs. R. F. Collins, of the Holly Springs community in Wake County sold $741.72 worth of homemade jelly, hams and other food products
during the past winter.

NOTICE OF EXECUTION SALE

of North Carolina, County of Watauga, in the Superior Court
