CAN YOU IMAGINE!

CAN YOU IMAGINE... the surprise of a news service man in Washington who when he met a boyhood friend he had not seen for years advised him to try BISMA-REX if he ever had stomach trouble and found that the friend worked for the producers of BISMA-REX and had read hundreds of similar praises. f, mfwyp mfwyp pu pu puu

EXPLANATION... Bisma-Rex is an antacid treatment that's different from the many other ineffective treatments you have tried. It acts four ways to give you a new kind of relief from acid indigestion, heartburn and other acid stomach agonies. Bisma-Rex neutralizes acid, relieves stomach of gas, soothes the irritated stomach membranes and aids digestion of foods that are most likely to ferment. Bisma-Rex is sold only at Rexall Drug Stores. POPE PIUS SEES UNIVERSAL PEACE

Head of Catholic Church Envisions a "Rainbow of Peace Casting Rays Across the World."

ROME.—Pope Pius, referring to the Italo-Ethiopian conflict, delivered a plea for peace before 20,000 former service men at St. Paul's Basilica on Sunday and announced "from our latest information, we seem to see forming on the horizon a rainbow of peace casting its rays across the world."
The Pontiff left his summer retreat at Castel Gandolfo early in the morning to celebrate a mass for an international convention of former service men which opened with the ceremony at St. Paul's.
The Pope's announcement on the possibility of peace said in full:
"It is with considerable joy that, if we have well understood our latest information, we seem to see on the horizon a rainbow of peace which seems to diffuse its rays over the world.
"This is peace made of justice, charity, honor, dignity and respect for all rights.
"It is peace which announces happiness for everybody. Peace is the primary condition for all prosperity, and therefore we shall always pray for peace."

Story of the Constitution

VIII. RIGHTS OF THE STATES
The hardest job the framers of the Constitution had to do was to draw the sharp line between the powers granted by the States to the new Federal Government and those which the States retained for themselves.
The conflict between the new spirit of nationalism and the old spirit of independence of the States was acute.
"The task," wrote James Madison in his notes on the Constitutional Convention, "was to draw a line of demarcation which would give the general Government every power requisite for general purposes, and leave to the States every power which might be more beneficially administered by them." On that principle of entrusting all matters of common interest to the Federal Government and reserving the very large field of purely local interest to the States, the Constitution was finally drafted.
It is a very short and simple part of the document, Article IV. It provides only, in substance, that the citizens of any State shall be recognized as citizens by all the other States, and that the public acts of each State shall be given full faith and credit in every other State.
There was no delegation of power from the central Government to the States. The process was the other way about, the States delegating limited powers to the central government. In return, the central Government guaranteed to every State a republican form of government, protection against invasion and, at the request of the State authorities, against domestic violence.
The Federal Government, thus, has no right or power to send Federal troops into any State, even in case of violent rioting or insurrection, unless first invited to do so by the Legislature or the Governor of the State.
We are so familiar with the process of extradition of fugitives from justice that it is difficult today to realize how easy it was, before the Federal Constitution was adopted, for a criminal to escape the consequences of his crime by simply crossing the line between one state and another.
One of the most important provisions of the Constitution is that it requires each State, in case of a person charged with any crime who has fled from justice, to deliver the accused on demand of the executive authority of the State from which he fled.
Likewise, the principle that trials of criminals not only shall be by jury but shall be held in the State where the crime has been committed, is so generally understood that the impor-

JOHNSTON NAMED ASHE CHAIRMAN

Incumbent Unanimously Elected to Succeed Self as Head of Democratic Executive Committee.

JEFFERSON, N. C.—Ira T. Johnston was unanimously re-elected as chairman of the Democratic executive committee of Ashe County here Saturday. The Democrats in convention voted unanimously to return Mr. Johnston.
This "special session," coming in an off year, was brought about by a special act of the last legislature which was passed as a local bill introduced by Ashe's representative, Tam Bowie. No one could give a reason for Mr. Bowie's desire for a special election, other than his assumed opposition to the present chairman.
Mr. Bowie was not on the convention floor Saturday, leaving the field open to Johnston and his friends. Older Democrats remarked that it was the first time they could remember Mr. Bowie being absent at a party convention.

ACID POISONING CAN BE TREATED SUCCESSFULLY

College Station, Raleigh.—Cyanide or prussic acid poisoning in cattle or sheep can be treated successfully if the necessary steps are taken in time, according to Dr. C. D. Grinnells, associate professor of animal husbandry at State College.
The prescribed treatment, as developed in the veterinary research laboratories, is intravenous injections of sodium nitrate or sodium thiosulphate. Practicing veterinarians can administer it.
The symptoms of cyanide poisoning are an increased rate of breathing and a rapid heart beat, followed by prostration.
Dr. Grinnells also urged farmers to watch their sheep closely for evidence of parasites. Parasites do not always produce symptoms which are visible to untrained observers, and therefore may do considerable damage before being discovered. Occasionally a number of sudden deaths in the flock may be traced to stomach worms.
A close watch on those heifers which are to freshen this fall is also advisable, Dr. Grinnells pointed out. Milk production causes a heavy drain on their bodies, and they should be given good care and feed so they will continue to grow during the period of the first lactation.
Often the body reserves of heifers which have not been given the proper attention are sufficient only for milk production and the animals do not attain their proper body development. Dr. Grinnells stated.

tance of that provision of the Constitution is not immediately obvious to the present-day mind. But there was a time when States assumed the right to try and condemn men for crimes committed in other States, or even beyond the seas.
The Federal Congress had authority under the Constitution, from the beginning, to admit new States, but not to create them out of the territory of other States. In the one instance in which a new State was set up out of part of an old State, the nation was engaged in a civil war. Virginia had seceded from the Union, but when its people in the region between the Shenandoah and the Ohio asked to have the new State of West Virginia recognized, the Federal Congress granted that request.
Some of the States were not satisfied with the protection of their rights appointed under the original Constitution, and refused to ratify the new national set-up unless it were amended to meet their objections and calm their fears of Federal domination.

Important Notice to Delinquent Taxpayers!

We regret to have to again call attention to the fact that there is a considerable number of persons who are behind in their tax payments since 1927 and up to 1932. We have done our very best to give the people every consideration; we know money has been hard to get, but conditions are now much improved and we earnestly bed you to manage in some way to pay off these taxes and avoid paying costs in the Superior Court.

We have reached the very limit, the Laws of North Carolina require us to either bring these suits or pay the taxes ourselves, which of course you do not expect us to do. We are your servants and as such must obey the law, and it is for that reason we most earnestly request and beg you to get busy and avoid the extra cost.

The suits are in the nature of TAX FORECLOSURE SUITS, and MUST be started by October 1st, 1935.
