

New Chevrolet Models Are Ready For Showing

The W. R. Chevrolet Company is all ready for the premiere showings of 1936 model Chevrolets, it has been learned, and next Saturday the public will have the first opportunity of glimpsing the new motor cars.

Reports indicate that the Chevrolet has made more outstanding improvements in the new vehicles than in any year in its history.

REV. FLETCHER FILLS THE PULPIT AT FOREST GROVE

Rev. Phillip Fletcher from Cove Creek Baptist Church, delivered a striking sermon at Forest Grove Church Sunday night. Rev. Fletcher used as his subject "The Stairway From Earth to Heaven."

Mr. Frank L. Roark of this community has recently left for the CCC camps.

Mrs. George Hartley and children Joan and Billie, of Perkinville, spent a few days with friends and relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. John Henson took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Mack Johnson Sunday.

Mr. Willie Eller accompanied his brother, Donley Eller, on his return to Welch, W. Va., for employment there.

There were a number of people of this community that chose to attend the sad occasion and take the farewell look at a real friend, Mr. Jethro Wilson, who passed away at his home last Saturday night.

The visitors in the community for the past week were: Mr. and Mrs. Lonso Isaacs of Mabel, Mr. Clay Eggers and family and Mr. Blane Isaacs of Mountain City, Tenn., Mr. S. C. Eggers of Boone, Mr. A. G. Storie and son, Carl O. Storie, of Lynn, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Bumgarner of Vilas, and Mr. Millard Eller of Sherwood.

Over $68,000 in rental checks were distributed to tobacco growers of Robeson county last week in the final payment of rentals in the adjustment program for this season.

SEPTEMBER REPORT HEALTH DEPARTMENT

Report of activities of the District Health Department other than those listed on the usual monthly report blank for September, 1935.

The personnel aided in working up twelve WPA and PWA projects in regard to sanitation in the district.

The Health Department sponsored a Health Booth at Cove Creek fair in Watauga county.

The Health Department aided the Local Relief Organization in an eye clinic for indigent cases. Fifty-five children and adults received benefit of said clinic.

Personnel of Health Department rendered consolation services to physicians on fifteen patients.

School health program was outlined and copies sent to superintendents of schools and various school principals in the three counties explaining services to be rendered by Health Department and asking their cooperation in return.

More Profit Now Poultry Industry

With higher egg prices and more efficient management of their flocks, North Carolina poultrymen have been making bigger profits in 1935 than in the past several years.

This is giving a healthy impetus to the poultry industry, said C. J. Maupin, extension poultry specialist at State College.

But he warned of the danger that over-zealous poultrymen, in an effort to produce the greatest possible number of eggs, may lower the quality of their flocks by keeping culls with the other birds.

Although feed prices have been going up, he added, the better managed flocks have attained a state of efficiency great enough, in some cases, to more than off-set the higher cost of feed.

In 109 demonstrations over the state during the month of September, for example, according to records just completed at the college poultry department, the average return above feed costs was 14 cents for each bird.

September is an off month in egg production, Maupin pointed out, yet the flock averages were more than 10 eggs per bird, or a little above standard reduction for the month.

The averages include all birds in the flocks, both these which are laying well and those which have either stopped laying or almost stopped, Maupin brought out.

The average sale price of eggs during the month was 33 cents a dozen, or 3.4 cents higher than the same month a year ago and 8 cents higher than in September, 1933.

"DO WE NEED SORROW?"

There is something in man which needs sorrow—a humbling and purifying work as regards his spiritual recreation, which can not go on without its ministry. How many deeds would ever spring to life but for its loosening and detaching agency, breaking up the hard stony soil of nature.

And to the believer, what is affliction but God's hand upon his head to bless him—his father's hand, recognized through that heavy pressure? Think how Christianity exalts, almost enthrones sorrow. Suffering is a very solitary thing. Great suffering brings upon the heart a sense of intense loneliness and it needs all that God can be to the stricken one.

It might seem almost impossible that anything more than the peace of God could be promised. And then we have that strange benediction "Blessed are they that mourn," but to those who have learned its meaning, it is no longer strange. There are blessings, rich, deep and satisfying, which we can never know until we mourn.

We would never see the stars if the sun continued to shine through all the twenty-four hours. It would be a loss to any one if he were to pass through all his human life and never once behold the night's sky with its brilliant orbs. We can then say: Blessed is the hour when the sun goes down and it grows dark; for then we see the glory of Heaven's stars. When Christ brings His cross before us it is a pledge to us that the deepest suffering may be the condition of the highest blessings; the sign, not of God's displeasure, but of His widest and most compassionate love.

And then we have that great admonition of St. Paul, when he wrote "Blessed be the God and the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies, and God of all comfort; Who comforteth us all in our affliction that we may be able to comfort those who are afflicted through the comfort wherewith we ourselves are comforted of God. Christ prayed that the cup might pass His lips, but the cup did not pass; but God sent His angels to strengthen and comfort Him in that sad hour.

BEAUTY SHOPS FLOURISHED NEARLY 2,000 YEARS AGO

New York.—The first unit of a museum designed to illustrate that there is nothing new under the sun was opened at New York University recently with working models, maps, charts and photographs to show that mass production and machine guns, rugged individualism and crop control, beauty shops and sweatshops are at least 2,000 years old.

Administered by the American Classical League for high school and college students when completed, the museum will present a well-rounded picture of the commonplace of antiquity.

Models of Roman shops and farms, relief maps, a miniature aqueduct and social drawings that resemble the work of a Fifth Avenue photographer was included in the present exhibition. All were made by relief workers under the direction of Prof. J. Kraemer Jr., head of the classic department at Washington Square College.

In opening the museum, Dr. Floyd A. Spencer, secretary of the American Classical League, explained that a parallel in antiquity can be found for almost every twentieth century idea.

"Mass production and advertised brands names, the twin gods of present-day industrialism, were prevalent in the time of Augustus, who ruled from 30 B. C. to 14 A. D.," Professor Spencer said.

"We have in the museum a three-dimensional model of a pottery shop that may well have been a corner in the famous factory of a lamp manufacturer named Fortis, whose methods and name resembled our own Henry Ford."

Among the museum exhibits are similar models of wholesale bakeries, ancient Roman war machines and carriage factories where the specialization closely approached that found in modern automobile factories.

Ideas current in ancient times are not so easily illustrated, but a large model of Cato's farm shows how that agriculturalist practiced what he preached about diversification of crops.

The ancients had also tried their hand at government price fixing, without success, according to Professor Spencer.
