J. ELIHU LUTHER, LAST CIVIL WAR VET, DIES AT 102

Watauga's Last Surviving Follower of Lee, Succumbs Last Thursday; Funeral Services Conducted Saturday at Gap Creek Church

Jesse Elihu Luther, Confederate veteran, Watauga county's last surviving soldier of the Civil War, and one of the state's most aged citizens, died at the home at Deep Gap last Thursday at the age of 102 years.

Funeral services were conducted Saturday afternoon from the Gap Creek Baptist Church, by Rev. Mr. Stevens of Todd, who was assisted in the rites by Rev. E. C. Hodges of Hendrix. Interment was in the Gap Creek cemetery, Reins-Sturdivant being in charge of the arrangements.

Surviving are a son and two daughters: John E. Luther, Deep Gap; Mrs. Ida Welch, Mount Zion, and Mrs. Cora Moretz, Fleetwood. There are 25 grandchildren, 84 great grandchildren and 19 great-great grandchildren.

Native of Randolph County
Mr. Luther was born in Randolph county September 10, 1843, the son of William and Mary Loflin Luther, and the family moved to Wilkesboro when he was 12 years old. He served in the Confederate army during the Civil War period, having been enlisted in Wilkesboro May 10, 1862, and assigned to Colonel Barber's regiment. Later he served in A. P. Hill's division, Lane's brigade, with General Stonewall Jackson commanding. He participated in a number of campaigns, including the Battle of the Wilderness, Spotsylvania Court House, Chancellorsville, and the Second Battle of Manassas. He suffered three wounds, two inflicted in skirmishes, and one in the fighting at Spotsylvania Court House.

Taken Prisoner
Mr. Luther was taken prisoner while serving on picket duty at Chafin's farm in Virginia, after he had been surrounded by 25 Union soldiers, who were concealed at this point. He was taken to the Federal prison at Camp Lookout on the Chesapeake Bay in Maryland, where he was confined for a period of eight months. When he was paroled from prison and returned home it was at the time Stoneman, a Yankee officer, came through this section of North Carolina, and he was arrested and carried before Stoneman. When it was revealed that Mr. Luther had been given a furlough to return home, he was released.

Mr. Luther, who had lived at Deep Gap for 73 years, had served as postmaster at that place for near 25 years, and had served in this capacity at a salary of $24.00 per year. During his last tenure however, in 1934, he received $800. Prior to his first postmastership, he carried the mail from Wilkesboro to Boone via horseback, was a carpenter and mason by trade, and a successful farmer. He served as deputy sheriff in Watauga for four years, and was a justice of the peace for thirty or more years. He was a member of the Calvary Methodist Church at Fleetwood.

Mr. Luther has been honored by friends in Watauga and Wilkes county on his last birthday anniversary, and last year when he celebrated his 102nd anniversary large crowds gathered in his honor. On one of these occasions he was asked to what he attributed his long life, and answered in these words:
"Well, I have never done any drinking or smoking; I've worked hard and have always tried to keep regular hours; I've spent a lot of time out of doors, breathing deeply of this grand mountain air, and I've tried not to worry."

ERNEST CLINE IS VICTIM ROBBERS

Hickory Taxi Man Robbed Near Vilas; Officers Fail to Locate Assailants

Ernest Cline, Hickory taxicab operator, was held up and robbed by two unidentified highwaymen near Vilas Monday evening, and State highway patrolmen are making every effort to locate the four occupants of a New York automobile who perpetrated the holdup.

According to C. M. Jones, local state patrolman, the taxi driver was en route to Hickory from Elizabethton, Tenn., when he noticed the Buick automobile, carrying New York State license plates. The vehicle had been passed by Cline a time or two, and would subsequently pass. The strange conduct of the driver of the Buick led Cline to believe that the occupants of the car, being from outside the State, were not sure of being on the right road, so he readily stopped near Vilas to offer his assistance when one of the women flagged him.

He was immediately covered by a sub-machine gun in the hands of one of the men, while the other deliberately aimed what appeared to be a 30-30 carbine. Cline surrendered about $20 in currency and checks, in addition to personal effects, and was allowed to proceed.

Officer Jones immediately secured the short-wave broadcast of the information about the robbery, but thus far State police have been unable to apprehend the highwaymen.

The committee recommendations, embraced in the report to the house on the 1947 interior department appropriation bill slated for consideration beginning tomorrow, will, if adopted, substantially cut an allocation to the Blue Ridge parkway which Rep. Peace Came To Europe Year Ago

Reims, France, May 7. — Peace came to Europe a year ago today in the "little red schoolhouse" at the outskirts of this cathedral city where Gen. Eisenhower maintained supreme headquarters.

The clock pointed to 2:41 a. m. a year ago when dejection Col. Gen. Alfred Jodl, chief of staff of the German army, scrawled his signature to the surrender after nearly six years of the most savage war in history.

The little red school house, whence the decisive military strokes from the west were directed, is preserved just as it was last year. The surrender occurred in the famous "war room" of supreme headquarters, allied expeditionary forces, with the maps, charts and battle orders on the walls surrounding the table and the 13 chairs where the capitulation was discussed and sealed.

The room now is a French national monument and shrine and a symbol of peace.

The anniversary was almost unnoticed in Reims.

German prisoners of war, 24,000 of them, work in the huge American stockpiles around the surrender city. There is still much work to be done in closing out the vast quartermaster depots.
