

James M. Wilson Dies In Tenn.

James Millard Wilson, 80, died at the home of a daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Collins, Blaine, Tenn., on March 7, after a brief illness. Funeral services were conducted from Zionville Baptist Church, Zionville, March 9, and interment made in church cemetery.

Music was by the Acuff Quartet of Blaine, Tenn., and choir of Zionville church.

Pallbearers were nephews of Mr. Wilson.

Surviving are the wife, Mrs. Minnie Younce Wilson, with whom he lived for 58 years; one son, Loyd Wilson, San Bernardino, Calif.; two daughters, Mrs. Russell Hinman, Sheridan, Wyo., and Mrs. Collins, Blaine, Tenn.; five grandchildren, Devo Musgrave, Sheridan, Wyo.; Mrs. Vernon Rogers, Denver, Colo.; Ralph Horney and Keith Collins in Korea; and Kenneth Collins, Blaine, Tenn. Mrs. Musgrave and Mrs. Rogers were reared by Mr. Wilson.

Also surviving are one sister, Mrs. Rebecca Wilson, and one brother, W. D. Wilson, both of Trade, Tenn., together with a host of nephews and nieces.

Mr. Wilson was a member of Zionville church for more than 50 years and served on the Deacon board until he moved to California where he resided for several years until last fall when he came to live with his daughter and son-in-law in Blaine, Tenn. McCarty Funeral Home of Knoxville, Tenn., was in charge of arrangements.

Sparta Man To Organize Y. D. C.

Sparta, March 17—E. A. Darr, Jr., of Sparta, today was named Young Democratic Clubs organizer for the Ninth North Carolina Congressional District.

Horace R. Kornegay of Greensboro, State YDC President, announced the appointment.

Alluding to what he described as "always a tough fight with the Republicans in the Ninth District," Kornegay expressed satisfaction that "a man of Mr. Darr's ability and personality has consented to help us present an even stronger front for the Democrats in 1954." The State YDC leader added that "the able Ninth District Democratic Congressman, Hugh Alexander of Kannapolis, is still a Young Democrat, not only at heart but in his unswerving effort to serve all the people of the district."

United States wheat prices in recent weeks have continued the advance that began in October, 1953.

Colleagues To Hear Of WMSC

First Lieutenant June E. Handschy, Third Army Women's Medical Specialist Corps (WMSC) representative, will visit Appalachian State Teachers College on March 28 to acquaint college women with the opportunities available as members of the Army WMSC, it was announced today by Sgt. Scoon, local Army and Air Force recruiter.

Lt. Handschy, a member of the WMSC since 1953, will be armed with all of the latest and factual information pertaining to an Army career. During her long and varied service, the Portsmouth, Va. native has served in California, Oklahoma, Virginia and in the South Pacific during World War II. A graduate of American College of Physical Education, the lieutenant also attended the University of Illinois and holds a certificate of physical therapy from the University of Wisconsin.

During her visit here, she will speak to college women on the fields of science, physical education, foods and nutrition as careers in the Army. The lieutenant is also interested in speaking to interested high school girls to provide them with information on Army medical fields so that they may choose their college courses accordingly.

To qualify for a commission in the WMSC Reserve, an applicant must be a U. S. citizen, between the ages of 21-45, no dependents under 18 years, and be physically and professionally qualified. She must also have a Bachelor's degree from an approved college or university.

Further information on Lt. Handschy visit can be obtained by contacting Sgt. Sloan, at the local recruiting station, which is located within the Postoffice Building.

Dem Set Date County Meetings

Democratic Executive Committee of North Carolina met in Raleigh last week and set May 8th as the date for precinct meetings throughout the state.

The county conventions will be held on May 15 and the state convention on May 20.

Wasteland Is Farm Problem

What does a farmer do with an unusually large area of wasteland? The question may receive a partial answer, at least, in a practice being carried out on the farm of C. B. Hatch of Dudley.

Hatch has 275 acres of wasteland, according to Steven E. Lewis, assistant Wayne County farm agent for the State College Extension Service. "By wasteland," says Steven, "I mean land that was stripped of its timber and no provisions left for a seed source with the exception of a few hardwoods."

The entire 275 acres doesn't have a single pine bearing seed and hasn't had for the past 35 years, according to the assistant county agent Hatch tackled the problem of bringing the 275 acres back into productivity by making "spot plantings" of pine. He finds clearings that will support seedlings and plants loblolly pines.

At the transition zone between the high ground and swamp he has distributed the soil and planted a band of loblollies around the entire swamp. Some hardwoods are being logged out of the swamp and as the ground is torn up and clearings created, Hatch spot plants a few seedlings. But he is careful to place the seedlings in an area that is not likely to be flooded.

Says Steven: "The idea is something worth following up. If it proves successful Mr. Hatch has accomplished something very worthwhile. I am of the opinion that it will come out all right. He has based it on good sound reasoning."

Commercial slaughter of the important species of livestock in North Carolina during January 1954 amounted to 21.5 million pounds liveweight, the second highest slaughter since 1947 when records began.

W. F. Harris Is Taken By Death

Mr. W. F. Harris, 74, retired farmer, died at his home in the Purlear section of Wilkes county last Tuesday, following a long period of illness.

A stepson, Mr. W. E. Rush of Boone and Mrs. Rush attended funeral services held at Mt. Pleasant Baptist Church Friday. Rev. Mr. Colvard and Rev. Mr. West conducted the rites and burial was in the church cemetery.

Besides the widow, and Mr. W. E. Rush other survivors are two sons and a daughter: Theodore Rush of the home; Arthur Rush, California; Mrs. Evelyn Griffith of Waco, Texas.

General News Brevities

Face in education is called too slow for security. President Eisenhower signed without comment a bill to raise pensions for members of Congress and their employes.

Arthur Godfrey is grounded six months for "reckless" flying. Child care is urged as a study for high schools.

Adlai Stevenson says he is sure Army has not "coddled" Reds. The J. C. Penney chain sets a sales record in 1954.
