 Your hair doesn't care a whit whether you wear a hat or not. You will keep your hair or grow bald just as your forebears decreased. Shaving doesn't make hair grow faster. With death, hair does not continue to grow, even though many a gruesome tale is based on that theme.
 Was it really an apple that Eve ate in the Garden of Eden, thus suffering summary ejection? We will never know; the Bible does not specify what kind of fruit it was.
 The misconceptions about the words and acts of famous men could, and do, fill volumes. Abraham Lincoln, for example, never said, "You can fool some of the people, etc." Nor did he seek to learn what brand of whisky General Grant drank, so that he (Lincoln) could send the same to all his generals. Lincoln is credited with hundreds of statements he never made.
 Charles Dudley Warner, a well known American writer of the 19th century, remarked that "everybody talks about the weather, but nobody does anything about it." But many persons insist Mark Twain originated it.
 It makes a beautiful story—how Queen Isabella pawned her jewels to finance Columbus' first trip to the new world. Only hitch is, she didn't. Nor did Brits Ross design our national flag. A musical patriot, Francis Hopkinson, has the better claim.
 Hendrik Hudson's first name actually was Henry, he was an Englishman, not a Dutchman, and he didn't discover the Hudson River—an Italian, Verrazano, preceded him by 75 years.
 Let's get the Boston Tea Party straight: The liberty boys were enraged, not because the price was raised but because it was lowered, thus cutting their smuggling profits. Paul Revere, thanks to the poet Longfellow, gets eternal praise for warning the Boston area of British maneuvers. Sam Prescott and Sol Brown, however, completed the mission while Paul was getting himself pinched by the redcoats.
 Some caustic politicians complain that the recent fracas was "the first war we didn't win." It so happens that we didn't come close to winning the War of 1812—we didn't gain a single point for which we fought.
 Let's correct some covered wagon ideas, too. Trekkers along the Oregon trail walked or rode horseback for years before the covered wagons set out from St. Louis.
 What a thrilling incident that was, old Barbara Frietchie's defending Stonewall Jackson with:

"Shoot if you must this old gray head, but spare your country's flag." It really should have happened, even though it didn't.
 An inquisitive college professor years ago concluded that even intelligent people know too many things that aren't so. He polled a sizable number of bright New Yorkers and found that they believed:
 —It is practically fatal to eat ice cream immediately after eating lobster.
 —All redheaded people have quick tempers.
 —Long slim fingers indicate an artistic personality.
 —Marriages of cousins result in defective children.
 —A high forehead indicates a superior brain.
 —Lightning never strikes twice in the same place.
 —One hour's sleep before midnight is worth two after midnight.
 —A square jaw means a strong will.
 —An expectant mother can determine the character of her child by concentrating on a subject.
 There is no truth to any of those statements, but they will continue to be believed after they are disproved a thousand times. Some people like to hug a delusion more than anything else.

Obituary
SUSIE BELVA HAGAMAN TRIVETTE
 Susie Belva Hagaman Trivette, of Reese, N. C., age 55 years, passed away at her home Sunday evening, January 20, 1957. She was the daughter of the late Daniel Webster Hagaman and Mary Harmon Hagaman, of Beech Creek, N. C.
 Funeral services were conducted at 2 p. m., January 20, at Zion Hill Church, by Elder Carl Wilson, Elder Fred Hagaman and Dr. Wiley Smith of Boone, N. C. Burial was in the Zion Hill cemetery.
 She professed in Christ at the age of 12 and united with Zion Hill Baptist Church where she remained a member until her death.
 On June 15, 1925, she married A. E. Trivette and to this union were born two sons and one daughter, Mary Faye Tester of Reese, N. C., Max of Reese and Ned Trivette of Boone, N. C. There are three grandchildren, Larry and Mary Ruth Trivette of Reese and Betsy Sue Tester of Reese, N. C.
 She loved her children very dearly. The little grandchildren were precious to her and it would have grieved her sorely if she had known she was going to leave us all behind so suddenly. However, she would have realized it would be better to depart and be with the Lord.
 We miss her, and what a change the world can make in this one minute, and it's sad to know we will never meet our loved ones again in this world for they can not come back to us, but we can go to meet them on the Other Side, of the rolling Jordan, where there will be no sad farewells, nor parting.
 The beautiful flowering words and many, many nice words spoken proved she had made a host of friends during her pilgrimage in this world.
