Is Given Certificate

(From Baptist Seminary Extension Bulletin.)
Rev. Victor Trivette of Concord, N. C. received the Certificate in Pastoral Training on March 31. Mr. Trivette was an outstanding student. He began his work in the Seminary Extension Department on January 4, 1957 and worked faithfully and diligently until the series was finished.
Recently The Biblical Recorder, the Baptist paper of North Carolina, carried the picture of Brother Trivette, his church, and their new parsonage. He is a very busy pastor but not too busy to study. He has done outstanding work in his parsonage.

Clement Says World Avoids All-Out War

Banner Elk — "Nuclear arms have reached such destructive proportions and are so nearly equally balanced between the leaders of the world as to have been eliminated as a practical recourse in cold or hot war, Gov. Frank Clement of Tennessee told 103 members of the graduating class of Lees-McRae College here Monday.
"The world avoids all-out war fare on the shaky premise that opposed leadership will remain responsible enough not to jeopardize the destruction of the whole world by resorting to unlimited nuclear weapons," he said.
"A warfare that would be almost as destructive for the attacker as the attacked is not a practical instrument of diplomacy or of international action," Clement said.
For this reason, Gov. Clement said, Russia has resorted to the "cold war."
"In this, and, indeed, in any warfare short of the warfare of annihilation, the productive capacity, the industrial capacity of the opposed countries and groups becomes the basic determinant as to who is likely to succeed," he said.

Memorial Services

Washington News

Washington, D. C.—The crisis in France is one no one can accurately judge, but it could be the most significant of the post-war period. As this is written it is still not solved.
By the time you read this General Charles de Gaulle might or might not have gained new support in his "willingness" to take over the country. But this event—if it develops—does not necessarily mean that the United States and Great Britain have found new strength.
For while de Gaulle was an ally in wartime, and while he is a champion of strong France, ready to use all force to retain Algeria, he is a tempestuous leader and prone to twist the Lion's tail and even snub his nose at the United States.
More than one observer fears his ascent to power might mean tension between Britain and the U. S. on the one hand and France on the other. De Gaulle threatens to play ball with Communism, if necessary, to achieve his ends, and he is accused of "dreams" of a France and an empire that is no longer a reality.
Yet France is almost a void in the free world today, torn by numerous parties and too many factions and extreme emotionalism. This lack of stability has brought the country close to national disaster. There are those who say that if ever France needed a strong man, this is the time of greatest need.
Yet it is difficult for citizens of successful democracies to admit that democracy has failed in France. Rather, it may well be that it is the people of France who have failed. And even if that be true, this is poor consolation to those who had hoped that the post-war era would unite a strong France with other major western powers.
The crisis in France today demonstrates that this was a forlorn hope.

Pressure is building up in the Senate—after years of political demagoguery and propaganda—to change rule 22 of the U. S. Senate. The average American has now been convinced that this rule is a horrible travesty on the democratic process of the U. S. legislative branch.
The average person has now been convinced that this rule enables Southerners, or others, to thwart the wishes of the preponderant majority, in the overworked field of civil rights speech-making.
Rule 22 is the protector of the minority. The very minority pressure groups now working to have it junked stand to suffer most in the long run—if the rule is junked or if majority closure is voted. Here is the case for rule 22, unemotionally put forward by its supporters:
First, it takes 64 Senators to shut off debate. The South has only about eighteen, who would filibuster under the most extreme circumstances. There are 98 Senators. The South's eighteen could all oppose closure, and filibuster, and 64 of the remaining 78 Senators (14 could be absent or fishing) could invoke closure.
In 1949 the rules were changed to eliminate the foolproof filibuster, which was possible on a motion to bring up a bill—as apart from debate on a bill itself. So, if a good majority wants to shut off debate, it can be done today.
In our past history a determined minority has often changed the nation's mind when wise legislation was about to be steamrolled through Congress. With a simple two-thirds of those voting, or 49 Senators, enabled to shut off debate, the great, traditional

Graduates Should Look The Part

College graduates will soon be starting out to look for that first important real job. It is very important for them to look the part. A well scrubbed face and a hopeful heart is not enough.
Aside from an ability to do the job, neatness is the key to all job interviews. This may not come as easily as one would think to a former student, after four years of wearing mostly sweaters, skirts and sneakers.
Most wardrobes will need a complete revamping. A tidy head, the polished pump, clean gloves and the handbag that does not bulge, all these are an important part of that first impression. Under the heading of good grooming the job seeker will do well to renew the gloss on her leather pumps and handbag. It is a good idea to carry an extra pair of white gloves for the hand-box appearance.
If you are a job applicant, try free speech of the Senate will be a thing of the past.
What has made the U. S. Senate a showplace of functioning democracy, where freedom of speech was almost sacred, and where a minority could stave off ramrod movements unless two-thirds of the full membership voted to hush their arguments, will have vanished forever.

A Milestone...
The diploma, symbol of work accomplished, is one of the graduate's most cherished possessions. It signifies a milestone in life—an end, but also a beginning!
With commencement comes thoughts of life still to be lived. Knowledge alone is not enough; degrees are not enough. There must be something more.
Through the Church comes a knowledge of life lived for others, of nearness to God, of strength and power which carries one beyond the needs of the present, which makes the individual adequate for tasks too great for human strength.
In the Church you will feel a nearness to God you never felt before, and the more fully you enter into the life of the Church, the stronger you will become.
Why not have a commencement of your own now—a commencement of life in the Church?

THE CHURCH FOR ALL
ALL FOR THE CHURCH
The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.
