Cooke and Gail Hayes of Parkway rattled the rattlers.

Shubert's "The Bee," Farnon's "Peanut Polka," and Strauss's "Clear Track," concluded the program.

Mrs. Edmisten and Mr. Angell expressed appreciation to those who helped make the matinee a success. They especially named the orchestra, Francis Cooke, chairman of Public Programs at the college, college officials for making facilities available, United Fund officials and contributors, and teachers who worked with the students in preparing them so they might get the most possible benefit from the music.

Strawberry Is Most Versatile Of Small Fruits

By M. E. GARDNER
Sometimes the strawberry is spoken of as the universal small fruit. There is some merit in this statement: It has so many uses, it can be grown in all sections of the state and, with reasonable care, it's not too difficult to produce. If you have a home garden planting two things should be done now: Fertilize and mulch the plants. Top dress the plants with an 8-8-8 fertilizer at the rate of about three quarts for each 100 feet of row. On very light soils you might need four quarts and on heavier soils two quarts may be sufficient per 100 feet of row. Apply when the plants are dry, spread uniformly and brush the fertilizer from the leaves with a brush broom or a piece of burlap sack. Mulching is a must if you expect to have clean berries. In addition, it protects from freezing, conserves moisture, prevents companion and is an aid in weed control. Pine straw has been used for many years and perhaps is the cleanest and most obtained. Grain straw, especially wheat, is also good if free of grain seed. Apply the mulch before growth starts. Apply over the plants, lightly, and heavier in the middles between rows. Be sure that the mulch is thick enough so that, when it settles, the berries will rest on it until mature. You must be on guard against spider mites and aphids. Examine the plants often and carefully. If you discover either of these pests, dust with 5 per cent Malathion dust. This is one of the safer insecticides and may be used to within three days of harvesting the berries.

sons who would have been counted in other areas. Under the new system, all areas use the same criteria in determining that anyone who uses park facilities for anything is a park visitor. The change applied to the Blue Ridge Parkway.

The change was also made in the Great Smoky Mountains National Park in North Carolina and Tennessee with the result the 1960 visits numbered 4,528,600, as compared with only 3,162,300 in 1959.
