from Greensboro and editor of the Rhododendron, made the announcement of the dedication to the study body and presented the first copies of the yearbook to the Welborns.—Penley photo.

Retiring Bell Manager Is Honored At Party

A retirement party honoring Herman M. Inabinet, who has served as Southern Bell manager in Lenoir for the past 14 years, was held at the Lenoir Country Club Tuesday night.

Inabinet is a veteran of 43 years telephone service. He joined Southern Bell as a commercial clerk in Wilmington in 1920. Since that time he has served in various capacities in Columbia and Charleston, S. C., and in Charlotte and Greensboro.

Inabinet came to Lenoir 14 years ago when the telephone company was located on North Church Street. In 1952 the company converted to the dial telephone and moved to its present location.

Active in Lenoir community affairs, Inabinet is a member of the Chamber of Commerce, the Rotary Club, the Lenoir Merchants Association, and the Lenoir Country Club.

Upon Inabinet's retirement, which was effective today, he and Mrs. Inabinet will continue to reside at their present address, 409 Mountain View Drive. The Inabinefs are planning several fishing trips to Florida, and he is looking forward to having more time for golf and woodworking.

At the party honoring his retirement, Inabinet was presented a "money tree" by his many friends at the telephone company.

Out-of-town guests included J. M. Wasson, vice president and general manager of Southern Bell in North Carolina; L. J. Maddox, general personnel manager for the firm; H. Y. Alexander, general commercial manager; and E. R. Rawson, district manager, Asheville.

COMMENTS ON HAIRCUT

Tampa—While in Florida for the Easter holidays, little John F. Kennedy, Jr., claimed much attention and comment over his haircut, or was it the need of a haircut?

The White House said the First Lady favors her son's long style. Others thought differently. One barber said if he was a boy he should have had a boy's haircut. Some thought it terribly old-fashioned, and others merely said he looked like he needed a haircut.

Jack Norris is opening a housing development on Howard's Knob, overlooking Boone. A roadbed had been cut up the steep incline and blacktopping was begun Saturday.

Estel Wagner and Cecil Miller's 21-room motel on the Blowing Rock Road, which has been under construction for a number of weeks now, is expected to be open for business later this spring. Like the Harris-Sturdivant apartments, the new motel will be of brick and will be two stories high.

Nearby, Carl Fidler is building a motel which, too, will be completed in time for the tourist trade.

Facilities for new attractions at the Antique Auto Museum at Blowing Rock are being completed. In addition to the regular antique car section, the owner of the museum is opening an area for the showing of old farm tractors.

Coy Billings of Sugar Grove is building another chicken house. The large structure will be used primarily for baby chicks, one source reports.

The Black Bear Inn has added five rooms to its facilities. An addition has also been made to the Oakwood Motel in Boone.

The Perkinsville Baptist

Church has been expanded and the new Methodist Student Center's interior walls and ceilings were being prepared for plastering last week. (According to the Mountain Ear, published by the Boone Methodist Church, about $50,000 has been expended on this structure.)

A new bank is being established in the building which formerly housed the Boone Trail Restaurant. Bob Jones has begun work on two new houses in the Snaggy Mountain development.

Phil Templeton is building a new drive-in restaurant on the Blowing Rock Road. About two or three new houses are under construction in the housing development between Blowing Rock and Foscoe.

The new shoe plant will be built opposite IRC on Greenway Drive in the Winkler's Creek section. Stanley Harris told the Democrat last week that plans for the new structure are incomplete at the present time but that an architectural drawing is expected by May 1 and that soon thereafter bids will be let and construction might possibly be underway by June 1.

Mrs. Williams Rites Tuesday

C., and Mrs. Vaughn Reese of Zionville, N. C.; two sisters, Mrs. Charles Swift of Santa Rosa, Tex., and Mrs. Donnelly Hagaman of Reese, N. C., 11 grandchildren and 5 great-grandchildren.

The tender, patient care in all respects, provided for Mrs. Williams by her devoted husband and affectionate children, was superb.

This writer, with her many friends, is gratified by this fine spirit of love and loyalty shown to a lovely wife, a gracious mother, and a good neighbor, whose consecrated life was a beautiful example for everyone to strive to emulate. She was from one of Watauga's best families and her contribution of the best things in life, will continue to live and grow with all who love goodness.

These anonymous lines express our joy for the whole life of Mrs. Williams:

I wonder if enough of us, As we hurry along our way Pay tribute to so great a woman An invalid night and day.

Her wasted frame and feeble hands

Need I say her words were hushed

But her faint smile and hopeful eye

Told me that God was just.

Those kind dark eyes through which she spoke

Were the only reflection of her soul

But only a woman of common clay

Would respect from her withheld.

And now that she has made her round

A lesson she has taught God never picks the weak to show,

How patience must be wrought.

So long, good mother! We understand

You did your job and did it well

Our fervent hope most sure we know,

In peace you now must dwell.

Mrs. Knight Funeral Held

Mrs. Nancy Elmina Knight, 86, 343 Winslow Street Fayetteville, died Monday afternoon at her residence after an extended illness.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 11:00 a. m. from Rump Memorial Presbyterian Church, Blowing Rock. Rev. Blake Brinkerhoff will officiate.

Burial will be in the Reform Church cemetery, Blowing Rock.

Mrs. Knight was a native of Blowing Rock but for several years had made her home with her daughter, Mrs. George Herring, Fayetteville. She was a member of the Comfort Presbyterian Church, Fayetteville.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Herring of the home; one son, Fred L. Austin, Charlotte, one stepson, Frank Knight, Hudson; three grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Boone And Blowing Rock In Clean, Green Contest

Cove; Surry—Dobson, Elkin, Mt. Airy, and Pilot Mountain; Watauga—Blowing Rock and Boone; Wilkes—the Wilkes-boros, Moravian Falls, and Ronda; Yadkin—Yadkinville, East Bend, Jonesville, and Arlington.

Mrs. Stallings observed that points will be counted off (by the evaluators) for in-town junk yards, remnants of old buildings, garbage cans left on main street after 9 a. m., dead or de-horned trees, briars and unmowed areas, ungrassed or bare banks, unsightly back doors to business firms, and zoning (trailer courts and types of business).

Concluding her remarks with the positive side, Mrs. Stallings gave the points the evaluators would give credit for: overall cleanliness, screening of unsightly places, landscaping, preservation of old trees and/or other landmarks, flower pots in public places, and the architecture of the buildings.

Mrs. Stallings said that she, Mrs. Reynolds, and Pease will be acting as consultants; they will assist persons in planning landscaping at other beautification procedures.

Tells Students Of Peace Corps

"People of all ages, I have noticed, labor long hours in the Washington offices of the Peace Corps; whether young or old, they all have one thing in common—an enthusiastic drive to make the Peace Corps everywhere a real success," Dr. Gibson said.

Miss Johnston's visit to Boone was especially concerned with the Peace Corps' immediate need for skilled teachers in home economics, nutrition, dietetics and the work of 4-H Clubs and home demonstration agents.
