Legislative Committee Restores Sums To ASTC

Raleigh, May 17—In a carefully rehearsed, lightning-fast review of proposed state spending on capital improvements, the joint appropriations subcommittee yesterday gave its blessing to substantial additional investments in state projects located in Northwest North Carolina.

In the budget submitted to the General Assembly by Gov. Terry Sanford, a request for $72,000 with which to build a nursery school at Appalachian State Teachers College was denied. Yesterday the joint subcommittee restored this item to the budget.

The governor's budget also recommended that $568,500 be appropriated to build a health and physical education building at Appalachian. It was recommended that this building be 50 per cent self-liquidating and that another $568,500 be raised by student fees.

ASTC Building

Yesterday the joint subcommittee approved an additional $284,250 for the physical education and health building at Appalachian and ruled that the building should be only 25 per cent self-liquidating.

The other recommendations for capital improvements at Appalachian made in the governor's budget were not changed.

Fire Care One Aspect Of Local Cleanup Drive

Fire prevention is one of the most important aspects of the Clean-Up, Paint-Up and Fix-Up campaign in Boone.

By removing fire hazards now, each homeowner can protect loved ones as well as his most important possession, the home.

Local fire officials offer this check list for fire safety:

Furnace and heating systems should be checked carefully.

Electric wiring should be tested to see whether it can carry the heavy loads of today's living. Fuses that blow out frequently, flickering lights and appliances that run at less than top efficiency are signals of inadequate wiring.

Special attention should be given to old clothing, rags, newspapers and furniture that are stored in attics, basements and garages.

Oily rags and paint stained clothes should be disposed of or should be stored only in airtight metal containers. Oily mops should be hung up to permit air to circulate about them. Leaves and grass cuttings should be kept away from foundations.

Shingles should be checked to see whether they have dried out.

Cords for lamps and other appliances should be checked to be sure the insulation is intact.

Regular fire drills should be held so that everyone knows what to do if a fire breaks out and how to use an alternate means of escape. The one sure way to successfully fight a fire is before it starts, so take advantage of the current campaign and clean up now.
