Small Number License Tags Carry Little Prestige Now

By EULA N. GREENWOOD

RED FLAG? ... As the car from Raleigh eased up to the residence in the small Western North Carolina town, the driver said: "I would have given credit for more sense than that. Look at that tag on his car. It's just like waving a red flag in a bull's face."

The man from the State capital was on a visit to a friend of his who held a nice State job in Raleigh, but kept his residence in the small community and was home each weekend. The job-holder had given in to that old urge to be ... or at least to appear ... Important. His license number was, as we recall, 57. A far throw from No. 1, of course, but small enough to cause finger-pointing and to create envy, jealousy and the charge of "biggity".

COURT ... This was more than ten years ago; and since that time the small-number license plate has ceased to carry any meaning ... except right at the top and for members of the State Supreme Court whose license plates run J-1, J-2, and down the line.

Now members of the Legislature ... if they want them ... can get license plates that have the same number as the seat they occupied in the 1963 Legislature. Not only that, but these plates glow in the dark! One of the things that led to W. Kerr Scott's becoming Governor and U. S. Senator was that he would not be pulled in to such high-faluting business. In a day when everybody and his brother around Raleigh insisted on getting his special low number, Agriculture Commissioner Scott said nothing doing ... would have no part of it.

BUFFALO ... We predict here that a goodly percentage of the legislators will not wear the fancy plates and, further, that within two years ... four at the outside ... Rep. Carl Bailey's idea which seemed so good at the time introduced will have gone the way of the buffalo and the do-do bird.

RALEIGH MUST ... Although the Legislature has left Raleigh for a spell, interest in the six-and-a-half-million-dollar Legislative Building continues keen.

The word we get is that upwards of 15,000 have visited and gone over the place on a single day since adjournment of the General Assembly. It is The Place to see for people coming to Raleigh. They come in droves—all ages, all sexes, and all colors.

We would estimate that probably a half-million people—mostly school children, of course—have visited the Legislative Building ... or State House, if you prefer ... since it opened for business last winter.

REST ROOM ... Thousands and millions of words went into the writing of new laws by the 1963 Legislature. Now it is up to the legal scholars to interpret just exactly what they mean. It will be found in some instances ... if the past is any criterion ... that a law says one thing, but means something else. Words just don't mean the same thing to everybody.

For example, we heard recently of this minister who had driven quite a few miles into the country from Hickory to supply for this small church. He found only one person there—the bell-ringer, janitor, and general handyman.

"Do you have a men's rest room", the minister asked. The janitor said no, but said he could fix him one in "just a minute."

To the minister, this sounded like pretty fast plumbing.

but he followed the janitor through the auditorium and into one of the classrooms in the education annex.

"Now you set right down. You just rest right in here. Won't be anybody coming in to disturb you for a good thirty minutes."

ESTATE ... We noticed the other day that Edward Tremont Burr, who died last October, left an estate valued at $383,000.

In the room at the time, playing the piano, was Mrs. Crittenden. Crescendo now—and great shades of Rachmaninoff!
