Dr. Crittenden Lauds Quality Of Decorations

Dr. Christopher Crittenden, director of the State of North Carolina Department of Archives and History, was a recent visitor to the Appalachian State Teachers College campus and to the Carolina Charter Tercentenary Celebration in Boone.

In a letter to Dr. D. J. Whitener, dean of ASTC, Dr. Crittenden said, "I wish particularly to commend the very fine exhibits you had in many of the store windows. During the course of more than a quarter of a century, I have attended many historical celebrations, but your exhibits were the best I have yet seen."

"I was greatly impressed by the fact that they were well planned, with each exhibit devoted to a particular topic (such as education, clothing, bed quilts, lighting, glass and china, and a number of others). So many exhibits of the kind consist of mere hodgepodge of relics, but your displays were so good that they might well have been done by professional experts."

During Mr. Crittenden's visit to Boone he was guest at the Summer sessions faculty picnic and guest speaker at the festivities at Cook's Gap concerning the unveiling of a marker where Daniel Boone Crossed the Blue Ridge.

Approximately 100 individuals participated in the Tercentenary Decoration Committee project which was sponsored by the Boone Worthwhile Women's Club. Mrs. Ralph Buchanan served as chairman of the committee. Others serving on the committee were Mrs. Lee Reynolds, Mrs. James B. Winkler, Mrs. A. E. South, Mrs. Dempsey Wilcox, and Mrs. Homer Brown.

70 Million Are Working In America

Washington. — The government reported Friday that U. S. employment totalled more than 70 million for the first time in history last month—but unemployment rose 800,000 because of the influx of teen-age and college student job seekers.

Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz said the new employment mark of 70.3 million workers, "on the face of it, seems like a good record." But he noted the fact that the June jobless figure of 4.8 million was 1.8 million more than for the same month 15 years ago.

Taking that into account, Wirtz commented: "We realize that the record is not good enough."

The hardest part about parking a Corvair is finding a nickel

That may be a slight overstatement, but such jauntiness comes easily when you're a Corvair owner.

And you can usually back it up—as easily as you can back up a Corvair. You'll find yourself doing that occasionally, if only to adjust the brakes—they're self-adjusting. That's all there is to it, and that's a good example of how delightfully easy Corvair is to own, drive and maintain.

But since we began by talking about driving, let's stick with that awhile. A large factor in the fun of driving a Corvair is the location of its engine in the rear. Why the rear? It gives Corvair extra traction on any road surface. It provides a nearly flat floor for more useable interior space. Best of all, it produces steering so light, so responsive, you wonder why no other American-made car thought of it.

Corvair's engine is also air cooled, we might add, which means there's no antifreeze or water for you to add. Ever.

All that pleasure from something so practical almost makes you think Corvair is unique among American cars. Which isn't surprising, because it is!
