Washington News

Washington, D. C.—The death of Senator Estes Kefauver in Washington removes from the Senate scene one of the great individualists of the upper legislative body but does not alter the present Senate outlook.

Kefauver was, in his years, not too popular among his fellow Senators, but at his death they paid him tribute. He was a political maverick; he wouldn't play the party machine way because he couldn't gain the backing of the party machine.

Thus, he irked party men, as he went to the people with his campaign in 1952 and 1956. He had become famous as a Senate investigator of crime, and whatever his detractors say of him, it is a fact that his investigations resulted in the imprisonment of top New York and Chicago criminals.

The people liked him, in spite of the party bosses' dislike, and it was a big and bitter blow to Kefauver when party bosses passed him over in 1952 and selected John Sparkman of Alabama to run as the Vice Presidential nominee of the Democratic Party. Kefauver was more popular than Sparkman.

But in 1956 Kefauver got his chance, when he nosed out Senator John Kennedy for the second spot on his party's ticket, after again losing his bid for the top nomination. To the end of his Senate career he was independent. His last accomplishment in the Senate was having his drug control bill passed—which might never have been accepted except for the publicity and scare caused by deformed babies.

Kefauver had been pushing for such a bill long before the deformed babies sensation and had been seeking lower prices for drugs and medicines, too, which he thought was possible and justified.

The opinion in the Senate now seems to be that the test-ban treaty with Russia will be approved by an overwhelming vote. The best guess is that the treaty will get at least 85 votes and maybe a few more.

FLYING STONE KILLS LAD — Hillsdale, N. J.—A 9-year-old received a fatal blow on his head while waiting for a ball game to begin.

The victim, Leslie D. Katz, was warming up for the game when he screamed and collapsed. None of the boys saw what happened. It was believed that a sharp stone was hurled by a nearby rotary lawn mower operating 100 feet away.
