 Visiting ministers gave challenging and helpful messages to the deacons and to the church. The Rev. W. E. Pope brought the charge to the deacons; the Rev. Raymond Hendrix brought the charge to the church; and the Rev. J. Boyce Brooks brought the ordination sermon. After the laying on of hands by the ordained ministers and deacons, the church members shook hands with all the deacons promising them their support and prayers.

Health and Beauty

CIGARETTES
 "Well, I was in hopes that Susie would not take up the habit of cigarette smoking," said a distressed mother. "Of course I didn't mind the boys smoking, as I know they would anyway, but I don't like to see a girl smoke. It just doesn't look well and for that reason, I don't want my girl to smoke."
 The mother's reason was a very poor one, and naturally, had no influence on her daughter, because Susie thought that smoking was smart and fashionable. The real reason for not smoking is found not in looks, but in the harm that the cigarette does to the smokers, whether they be male or female.
 We are told by scientists that burning of the tobacco, with its glycerin content, makes a combination with the paper that forms a poison known as acrolein. This chemical is very toxic and has a special affinity for the nerves. It acts as a dope.
 At first, it exerts a sedative or quieting effect upon the system and then the cigarette user begins to crave the fags. As the habit fastens itself upon the victim, his nerves show irritation, and he finds himself quite nervous, and in the clutches of a habit that is apparently as difficult to break as that of opium.

 The acrolein is not the only poison that the cigarette contains. The nicotine of the tobacco is really such a virulent poison that it is used as an insect exterminator. Even the smoke of cigars and cigarettes, if blown upon lice-infested plants, will destroy the pests.
 There are also other injurious agencies in cigarette smoke. For example, ammonia and the deadly carbon monoxide. Besides such substances and heat cause much local irritation to the nose, throat and eyes.
 Confirmed smokers are more generally underweight, and subject to colds and other respiratory troubles than the non-smokers.
 One of the most pitiable creatures, known as the Skeleton Man, was seen by the writer some years ago. He was earning a livelihood by exhibiting himself in a little sideshow. He was practically destitute of flesh and looked more like a mummy than a human being. He said that his plight was due to the incessant smoking of cigarettes.
 The habit of cigarette-smoking has never yet served a useful purpose, but it has done much harm.

About Your Home

One of the most interesting things about growing camellias is starting new plants from seeds. A seed never comes true to the flower from which it drops. This is because the bees, which transmit the pollen, may have picked it up from any plant.
 You will obtain the best results from seed planting if you will plant the seeds as soon as they are ripe. This will be around the 15th of August in most sections. Place the seed in the sun for a few days before planting. The pods will open and should be planted immediately in a mixture of peat and a small amount of rich, black dirt. Keep them damp and exposed to half day sun.
 The seeds will germinate in six to ten weeks. In one year, will be about six inches tall. At this time the plants can be removed to plant beds. Before planting, cut the root septum back nearly to the seed.
 Be sure to feed the plants. Use your favorite camellia fertilizer and continue to give

SUSPECT SLEEPS THROUGH ARREST

South Bend, Ind.—A burglary suspect, sprawled on a display lawn chair inside a drug store and surrounded by liquor bottles, slept through his arrest.
 Police said Karl Harris, 40, snored peacefully as they handcuffed him to the chair and then began checking the store for missing items.
 Harris, clad in a bathrobe, had an assortment of liquor bottles and cigarettes beside him. Two of the bottles were opened.
 Officers said Harris admitted he broke the glass in a door to enter the store.
