Demonstrations, Hatred Said To Have Caused Bennett Action

By EULA N. GREENWOOD THE REASONS... inside the Mansion here one night last spring, there was revelry and wholesome merriment as Gov. Terry Sanford, official host, moved quietly among the guests. It was an evening like a thousand others to which the old house on Blount Street and its occupants have become accustomed. But this evening was to stand out from all the others. One of the guests heard the shuffle of feet out on the driveway. It grew louder. One or two other visitors at the Mansion that evening recall how they heard suddenly the distant sound of music, "like a radio in another room."

three months each four years. Now it is an every-day—and sometime Sunday proposition.

WATCH IT!... Now that school has started, be sure to watch out for children on the highways and streets—especially for those who are driving cars!

TWO BIG BOOTHS... While the Republicans begin laying plans for a campaign to raise a million dollars in North Carolina, the Democrats are completing final plans for another display at the State Fair here.

Competing with the Democratic booth will be one just as handsome extolling the virtues of I. Beverly Lake.

TICKETS... A new eating place in Raleigh has opened in the first block of South Salisbury Street.

It is different from the usual run in that you must purchase a membership before being permitted to dine there. Then, after you are once in as a member of the club, membership cards are refunded in various ways. Seems to be catching on right smartly.

Now this, and such as this, composed the principal reasons for Bert Bennett, the Governor's loyal sidekick at Winston-Salem, deciding not to run for Governor next year. Until all the demonstrations began, creating bitter hatred all over the State, Bennett was planning to run for Governor.

However, it should be noted that Bert Bennett was never enthusiastic about being Governor. He had no burning ambition such as possessed Terry Sanford through the years. Nevertheless, it was a foregone conclusion among the young Democratic leaders that he was to be The Man.

But, even as he decided to step down, it was not primarily because of his fear of losing the nomination. There was general feeling he had the power to get this. The thing that worried most was that the little informal polls here and there—a general pulse feeling—showed shocking anti-Kennedy feeling in all sections of North Carolina. And, few, if any, states are closer to the national administration than this one. Also to be considered were the personal ties with President Kennedy and Robert Kennedy.

The tremendous vote the Republicans got with what had been regarded as a so-so candidate in 1960—in the Governor's fight that year—also rankled. The decision-makers in the party feared to go into the fall of 1964 with an out-and-out liberal candidate like Bennett.

And, friends say, that Bennett's deep love for his family—the six children, his home in Winston-Salem, etc.—were a determining factor in his pulling out of the race. The Mansion, more like a goldfish bowl all the time, is hardly a place to bring up children. Bennett's youngest would be less than two years old by moving time. Mrs. Sanford has had all the time necessary for public appearances. But Mrs. Bennett has three knee-babies—a long hop from kids able to go to school. The Bennetts would have to employ on steady time three or four baby-sitters. It all seemed just—too much.

So, after finding an ideal man who would seek the post, Bert Bennett calmly moved out of the picture the public will see. But, even as he moves into the background, Bennett remains the No. 2 man in the Democratic Party in North Carolina. Whatever the Party is today—and it still has, must have to win, slivers of steel—Bert Bennett must be given the credit for this strength. You don't have to go back many years to recall the easy days, when the Democratic Party office operated full-blown about

Senior Citizens Hold Meeting

The September meeting of the Boone Senior Citizens' Club was held Friday at 2 p.m. at the home of Mrs. L. L. Bingham at 110 Hardin Street. Mrs. Bingham was assisted by Mrs. Pearl Bingham and Mrs. E. L. Ray in the serving of delightful and unusual refreshments.

The program was given by Mrs. Homer Brown and consisted of the showing of colored slides of flowers, gardens and other views. After the program and the serving of refreshments, the guests were taken through Mrs. Bingham's extensive and beautiful flower garden which she explained were the principal features of her hobby.

The following guests were present: Mrs. Pearl Bingham, Mr. and Mrs. Neal Blair, Mrs. Homer Brown, Mrs. Bessie Cooke, Mrs. Elsie Cook, Mrs. Blanche Council, Mrs. W. A. Deaton, Mrs. Ed G. Farthing, Mr. and Mrs. Zeb Farthing, Mr. and Mrs. Guy H. Goodman, Mrs. J. L. Goodnight, Mrs. Maggie Greene, Mrs. C. G. Hodges, Miss Cora Pearl Jeffcoat, Dr. and Mrs. A. P. Kephart, Mrs. L. D. Love, Mrs. Pearl Luttrell, Mrs. E. L. Ray, Mrs. Belle Winkler, and Mrs. Walter Winkler.

EXPLOSION?... The fact that the Presidential election in 1960 was so close that a few precincts in Chicago could have turned the victory to Nixon gives importance to a rumor a friend of ours picked up in the Windy City this past weekend.

The story going the rounds in Chicago is that the U. S. Chamber of Commerce is gathering affidavits, taped statements, written testimony, etc., on so-called "wholesale election fraud" which occurred in Chicago on Election Day—and night—in November of 1960.

Of course, since the U. S. Chamber is said to be back of the explosion—supposed to break late this winter—one must assume it is directed at the Democratic Party. The reports have it that this bit of dynamite, if it comes off, will "make the basketball and football scandals look like child's play."

Or is it all merely wishful thinking? Only time will tell. And, what can be done about it at this late date... in Chicago... even if every word is true?

Popular Clown To Boost Dixie Classic Fair Locally

Lonesome Lee, the popular sad-face clown, will visit this area Saturday for the Dixie Classic Fair. Neil Bolton, Fair manager, has also announced that Lonesome Lee will distribute to everyone he sees printed reminders of the Fair's showing in Winston-Salem, October 8-12. "Each of these reminders bears a number and is your opportunity to participate in our drawing for free admission," he explained. "Be sure to check your numbers by the list that will be displayed at the ticket window at the front entrance to the Coliseum."

Visits To 11-County Area In the weeks before the Fair opens, Lonesome Lee will tour all the counties of Northwest North Carolina, distributing these reminders of the Fair's dates and entertaining young and old alike. On September 28 he will be in Sparta, West Jefferson, Boone, and other points in Ashe, Watauga, and Alleghany counties. On September 14 he visited Walnut Cove, King, Pilot Mountain, Dobson, Elkin, and other places in Forsyth, Stokes and Surry counties.

He appeared in Yadkin and Wilkes counties, including the Yadkinville parade and the special "doings" in the Wilkesboro on September 21. His future schedule will take him to Davie, Alexander, and Caldwell counties on October 5, including events planned in Mocksville, Stony Point, Taylorsville and Lenoir. Lonesome Lee is widely known and greatly loved throughout the northwest area. He has earned a loyal following through his many personal appearances and participation in many business and civic endeavors.

Know The Weather

By E. H. SIMS

What is "football weather?" Do people really feel better in the fall, when football is played?

There is such a thing as football weather, not because of football but because of the time of the year football is played in the United States.

This sport comes when high pressure systems begin to push down from the north with greater regularity, bringing with them cold, dry air. It is the beginning of the trend toward winter, and there is less rain in the fall than in summer.

Since high pressure usually makes people feel good (low pressure sometimes has a depressing effect), this—combined with cooler weather, and repulsing invigoration—combines to produce an energetic feeling, or that "football weather" in the fall when appetite and energy seem to return after a hot summer.
