Class Day Exercise Feature Of 1942 Finals At School

Pageant One of Best Entertainments In Edenton

FINE COSTUMES

Youngsters Take Parts More Like Group of Professionals

What was no doubt one of the best entertainments ever presented in Edenton school took place Thursday night when Class Day exercises were held. The exercises, in the form of a patriotic pageant, "Freedom For-ever," was directed by Miss Lucille Clark, senior class adviser, who was assisted by a few others. The pageant portrayed the various phases of the development of America, and the whole affair reflected distinct credit upon Miss Clark and her assistants and those taking part, who carried out their parts in each instance more like professional actors than a group of school children.

Aside from the extremely timely theme of the pageant, the costumes were very appropriate and beautifully designed, which also added no little to the success of the entertainment.

Miss Cora Edward Bond, salutatorian of the class, presented a very well delivered and appropriate address at the opening of the pageant, which included scenes from the days of the Pilgrims up to the present when the nation is again at war to preserve its freedom.

Adding to the success of the entertainment was music by the high school orchestra, directed by C. L. McCullers. Music was rendered prior to the staging of the pageant and throughout music appropriate for the various scenes added to the significance of the entertainment as a whole.

Those taking part on the program were as follows:
