The necessary production of glycerine for use in explosives.

The goal of each family is between one and two pounds of waste cooking fats per month, or 17 pounds per year, which should yield well over half a billion pounds per year. Any housewife who saves 17 pounds during the year has salvaged enough to make more than a pound and a half of glycerine. This amount of glycerine will provide sufficient power, when used in a propellant gun powder, to fire 85 anti-tank shells at our enemies. Seventeen pounds of waste kitchen fats will also produce nearly ten pounds of dynamite.

and after the matter was discussed pro and con, it was decided to transfer enough electric and water profits to meet the appropriation.

It was the general opinion of the Councilmen that the two items should come under regular school expenses and that the cost should be included in the school budget. Mr. Holmes assured the Councilmen that had it been known that the law had been changed regarding the intangible tax, the request would not have been made and that an effort will be made hereafter to include these items in the school budget.
