

Edenton Aces Go Gameless Friday

Plymouth Cancelled and Other Efforts Go For Naught

Edenton High School's football team was forced to have a rest last Friday, which was brought about by Plymouth cancelling the scheduled game at the eleventh hour. After the game was cancelled, a desperate effort was made to secure another team, and though six contacts were made, no game materialized. After Plymouth decided to cancel, a game was scheduled with Mantes, but later word was received that after a canvass of the greater part of the island only one car could be secured to bring the team to Edenton. Aloskie and Weldon were then contacted, but both of these outfits had games scheduled for the same date. An effort was then made to schedule a game with Columbia and Windsor and in both instances it was learned that the boys were not in proper shape, so that it was finally decided, after a call to Kinston failed to get through, to give up the idea of trying to arrange a last-minute game.

WATCH ADDRESS OF ARMY MAIL

Improper and insufficient addresses on both letters and parcels are resulting in serious delays or non-delivery of thousands of pieces of mail intended for soldiers overseas. The Army Postal Service of the War Department reveals.

A survey conducted within the last few days at Ports of Embarkation on both coasts disclosed that approximately 10 per cent of all mail intended for delivery overseas to the armed forces was incorrectly or insufficiently addressed, thereby making delivery very difficult or altogether impossible.

Cautioning the public to use the full name, rank, serial number, service organization, and Army post office number on all overseas mail to the armed forces, the Army Postal Service warned that prompt delivery could not be assured unless mail was addressed in this manner.

In many cases of non-delivery, the Army Postal Service has found that the address contained only the soldier's name and Army post office number. Pointing out that thousands of troops may be served through a single Army post office, the War Department states that it is impossible to effect delivery of mail so addressed without serious delay.

With the thirty day period—October 1 to November 1—for mailing Christmas packages to soldiers overseas now under way, the Army Postal Service states that it will be impossible to deliver these packages in time to be in keeping with the spirit of the holiday season unless the address thereon includes the full name, rank, serial number, service organization, and Army post office number.

The correct method to be followed in addressing a soldier overseas appears below:

Along Life's Way

By WILBURNE HARRIS

Dedicated to the U. S. Marine Air Base, its personnel, and all those whose efforts, however small, will go into its construction; to the intrepid and daring young men who will later make it a nest for eagles, fledglings who with their skill and courage will cause us, with hearts beating high with the promise of a better world and a better dawn to

LOOK UP INTO THE SKY With humble pride look up into the sky, And boldly face the sun 'neath sheltering hand; Look long upon the wings of men who fly, And listen to their song across the land. Look out upon the shade of flashing pinion, Upon the courage and the strength they cast; Look up into their empire and dominion, And let your heart cry out, "Our way shall last!" Look long and hark the song the eagle sings, Look out and ponder thoughtfully the crude But loyal Pioneers who dreamed these things Everlasting . . . Look on the eagle's broad. Look up into the sky, on this flag flying, Upon a people and a spirit undying.
