The new program, designated as the Navy's V-12 program, will also absorb most of the college students now enlisted in the Navy and Marine Corps Reserves, those who enlisted in the Army Enlisted Reserve Corps with Navy, Marine Corps or Coast Guard preference, and those who hold student probationary commissions in the U. Qualifying tests to be held on or about April 2 will take place throughout the nation. Students selected on the basis of officer-like qualifications including scores on these tests will be assigned to the Navy College Training Program in two groups. The first group will report to colleges and universities now being selected by the Navy, on or about July 1, 1943. The second group will report on or about November 1. Another group will report about March 1, 1944, following selection late in 1943.

The following civilians will be eligible to take the April tests:

Negroes On Hayes Farm Organize Garden Club

On February 26, the tenants on the Hayes Farm met and organized a garden club under the supervision of Alexander Blaine, vocational agriculture teacher. The courses in gardening are conducted according to rules and regulations sent out by the State Department of Agriculture and are taught by the Rev. N. S. Harris.

To date practically all the tenants on the farm are members of the club and the plans are, that each family will strive during the summer to grow and conserve vegetables and fruits sufficient to take care of its needs during the coming winter.

The club feels very grateful to Mr. Wood, owner of Hayes, and Mr. Skinner, overseer, for making it possible for their participation in this effort.

Two Days Devoted To Food Preservation By Organizing Leaders

Food Preservation Work Shops were conducted in the Edenton school Tuesday and Wednesday when block and sector leaders were organized in an effort to start Victory Gardens and preserve food for future use. The Government is asking for 12,000,000 backyard gardens in rural sections, and these work shops provide North Carolina's system of meeting the emergency.

Assisting in demonstrations Tuesday and Wednesday was Miss Martha Smith associate regional chief of home management of the Farm Security Administration, who very ably gave instructions to the leaders in canning, drying, brining, sulphuring and storing food raised in gardens. The leaders present will follow up the work by instructing women in their respective neighborhoods.

Raise a VICTORY GARDEN

Eat What You NEED— and Stock Up for Winter!

A food shortage in the U. S. A.?

It won't happen here if we all grow Victory Gardens. It takes a lot of hard work to have a good garden, but you will be rewarded with fresh vegetables on your table all summer—and a supply of canned goods on the pantry shelves next winter.

Grow the vegetables you won't be able to buy at the corner grocery. Plan a garden of your own or join up with your friends. Everybody will be gardening. If you had a Victory Garden last year, have a bigger one this year. And be sure to ask us about International Harvester's 84-page booklet, "Have a Victory Garden." It's a honey!
